CHICAGOLAND WEEK TO THRILL FAIR THRONGS

Colorful Spectacle Opens Aug. 13.

A seven day pageant and celebration to be known as Chicagoland week—will be held from Aug. 13 to Aug. 19, inclusive, as Chicago's contribution to A Century of Progress.

Arrangements for this gala week have been made through the joint participation of the Chicago Association of Commerce and the State Street council. Details so far completed are designed to harmonize with the World's Fair and to emphasize especially this region's vimful spirit and accomplishments.

It will be a glorious week, seven days of thrills, spectacle and opportunity. In some ways it will reflect a combination of the old county and the present world fairs. There will be parades, water carnivals, tableaus, displays, and the beauty of religious services. And as a fitting and glorious culmination of the week's festivities will be the annual Chicagoland Music Festival in Soldiers' field on the night of Aug. 19 under sponsorship of THE TRIBUNE.

Part of the Program.

A glimpse of the tentative program will give a suggestion, but only a suggestion, of what Chicagoland week will offer, for the complete program will add to this list. Here it is:

SUNDAY, AUG. 13—Church day. In the morning, outdoor Catholic mass in Soldiers' field; in the evening, vespers by Protestant denominations.

MONDAY, AUG. 14—Chicagoland day. This will be a day at the World's Fair in honor of Chicagoland and the central western states partly or entirely in the Chicago sphere.

TUESDAY, AUG. 15—Fort Dearborn day. In memory of the Fort Dearborn massacre of 121 years ago and in honor of Chicago pioneers.

WEDNESDAY, AUG. 16—State Street day. Displays and attractions by Chicago's big stores.

THURSDAY, AUG. 17—Lake Michigan day. Water carnivals and air events depicting the glories and benefits of Lake Michigan.

FRIDAY, AUG. 18—Automobile day. A recognition of America's greatest industry.

SATURDAY, AUG. 19—Music day. The Chicagoland Music Festival in Soldiers' field, in the evening.

Seven Days of Celebration.

Let's consider each of these days separately, in chronological order.

Properly, Chicagoland week should open with divine services, and accordingly the inaugural day has been set aside as a tribute to all churches. In the morning the solemn ritual of the Catholic mass will be held in Soldiers' field, outdoors, under the friendly beneficence of a summer sun. As many as 100,000 persons of the Catholic faith may attend.

And in the evening there will be the vespers of the Protestant church, beautiful, restful—just as the sun is lowering in the west. Here again another 100,000 persons may attend.

Gayety for Chicagoland.

The next day will be Chicagoland day at the World's Fair, and this, in appreciation of this productive energetic young area, will be a time of gayety, color and excitement. What is Chicagoland, by the way? Chicago, of course, its suburbs, Cook county, those countless towns dotting the countryside a hundred miles or more away—in Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Iowa and Michigan.

Parades and martial music will feature Chicagoland day, and speakers from various districts in the Chicagoland area will speak. Mixed with the serious business of honoring Chicagoland will be a spirit of carnival and pageantry.

Fort Dearborn Day.

The third day of Chicagoland week will be in memory of that tragedy of central western history, the Fort Dearborn massacre. On Aug. 15, 1812, the garrison of Fort Dearborn, standing on the site of the present London Guaranty and Accident building, marched out for Detroit, under the escort of supposedly friendly Indians.

The Indian guise of friendship was maintained until the party, including civilian men, women and children, as well as soldiers, reached 18th street, near the lake front. Then there was a sudden attack by the Indians. Thirty-eight men, two women and twelve children fell.

This anniversary will be fittingly observed. On the World's Fair grounds stands a replica of Fort Dearborn. There will be held memorial services

Quits Koenigsberg as Skies Clear.

BULLETIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KAUNAS, Lithuania, July 16.—The plane of Capt. Stephen Darius and Stanley Girenas of Chicago, trans-Atlantic flyers, has not been sighted over Lithuania, air officials said late tonight.

KOENIGSBERG, Germany, July 17 [Monday]—(AP)—Wiley Post, American world flyer, hopped away at 6:45 a. m. today [12:45 Chicago daylight saving time] after being grounded here about 12 hours because of poor weather.

Hopes to Regain Lost Time.

The American made a flight from New York to Berlin in record time and alighted here at 6:40 o'clock last night [12:40 p. m. Chicago daylight saving time], due to poor visibility. He received badly needed chances to rest here, and he left with the idea of regaining lost time on his schedule.

Post went to bed immediately on his arrival here. At dawn he arose to resume his interrupted flight around the world, only to find rain and overcast skies.

Philosophically he again went to bed pending the arrival of weather reports from Moscow.

LANDS IN BERLIN

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 16.—Wiley Post, the first flyer to span the Atlantic ocean in a solo flight from New York to Berlin, arrived here at 11:55 a. m. today [5:55 a. m. Chicago daylight saving time]—25 hours and 45 minutes after he left New York on the first lap of his around the world flight.

Post took off again in his plane, the Winnie Mae of Oklahoma, at 2:10 p. m. [8:10 a. m. Chicago time] for Novosibirsk, in the heart of Siberia. But the flyer was dead tired and struck bad weather as he crossed the Russian border. He was forced to turn back and landed at Koenigsberg, East Prussia, about 350 miles from Berlin, at dusk.

No Word of Chicagoans.

When Post landed here the Stars and Stripes, the German national colors, and the Nazi swastika flag were floating over Tempelhof airdrome. As his plane settled down "The Star Spangled Banner" and Nazi anthems were played by a band.

Though establishing a record for his flight from New York to Berlin, Post was five hours behind his schedule when he left the German capital. He arrived four hours later than he had expected and needed an extra hour to refuel because only hand pumps were available instead of automatic pumps. He was exhausted, but seemed to be in less of a strain than when he landed in Berlin with Harold Gatty on his first around the world flight in 1931. They made two previous stops before reaching Berlin on that trip. Post is attempting to break the record of 8 days 15 hours and 51 minutes he and Gatty established.

Fights Snow at Sea.

"I had hoped to make the flight in 22 hours, but fog, snow, and ice were much worse over the ocean than I expected," Post said on his arrival here. "As soon as I got out over the ocean bad weather set in. It was foggy all the way over. To get above the clouds I had to climb 12,000 feet. It was beastly cold. Snow and ice settled on the plane."

Post's eye was bloodshot and slightly inflamed. He wears a patch over the other eye. The aviator refused to see a doctor, insisting that he was "quite all right" to continue.

Post Sights Ireland.

Post broke through the blanket of clouds this morning and sighted Ireland.

His "robot" automatic pilot worked perfectly, Post told flyers in Berlin. The German aviators were especially interested in the robot, since they, too, have developed new automatic controls. Air experts pointed out that Post's robot does not control the flying height, whereas the German Siemens robot controls the height, but

Roosevelt Son, Free Today, to Meet Girl Here

Miss Ruth Googins of Fort Worth, Tex., is in Chicago to visit the World's Fair. She is a guest at the Windermere East hotel, 1642 East 56th street. Dispatches from Reno, Nev., yesterday stated that Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, is expected to fly here today immediately after he is divorced in Minden, Nev. It was reported in Reno that Elliott would join Miss Googins as soon as he can reach here after the decree is entered. Miss Googins could not be reached last evening when an effort was made to ask her about the reports.

Miss Googins' name has been linked with that of the President's son since it was announced that Mrs. Elizabeth Donner Roosevelt was planning to divorce Elliott. A month ago Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt scoffed at a report that her second son, Elliott, was to marry Miss Googins, and a few days later Elliott, too, denied the rumor.

Accompanied by Mother.

Miss Googins' mother is with her. They have been here since July 9, it was learned.

Miss Googins, who is 22, is active in Junior league circles. She met Elliott Roosevelt in Fort Worth last March.

Elliott, who is 22 years old, was in the advertising business when his father became President, and shortly thereafter he announced that being the President's son interfered with his business, and he was going west to the wide open spaces. Later he took up a residence in Nevada, and last Friday he filed suit for divorce.

His wife, who is 21 and the daughter of a Philadelphia steel magnate, is to file a cross bill today and present arrangements, as reported from Nevada, are that the divorce will be given to her immediately. They have one child, William Donner Roosevelt, born last Nov. 17.

Divorce Hearing Today.

Minden, Nev., July 16.—(AP)—The story of the blasted romance of Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, and Elizabeth Donner Roosevelt, will be placed in the records of the District court here tomorrow.

Reading from a deposition signed by Mrs. Roosevelt and sent here from Philadelphia by airmail, Lester Summerfield of Reno, attorney for Mrs. Roosevelt, will present to the court her reasons for seeking a divorce on a cross complaint.

Elliott will present no evidence to support his complaint and will testify only as to his residence in Nevada.

Case to Be Uncontested.

It was understood he will not resist the granting of a decree to his wife, whose cross-complaint is expected to be filed tomorrow morning.

Trial of the case has been set tentatively for 11 a. m. before Judge Clark J. Guild.

Samuel Platt, attorney for Roosevelt, has announced the hearing will be private and the transcript of testimony will be sealed.

AUTO SKIDS INTO HOME, BUT NO ONE IS INJURED

Harrisburg, Pa., July 16.—(AP)—Skidding on a wet street car rail, an automobile driven by a man who identified himself as Jacob Stromberger of Cleveland, O., today hurtled across a sidewalk and into the living room of a home in suburban Steelton.

A woman sleeping on a lounge in the room narrowly escaped injury.

Driving home with his wife, Stromberger tried to turn off the track, but lost control of the car, which lunged into a pole and then burst through the wall of Harry Patton's three story frame house.

The lounge against the front wall was thrown across the room into another room with the woman on it, along with a table.

Mr. and Mrs. Stromberger emerged unhurt. Their daughter was awakened by the crash and fainted, but was not injured.

BISHOP WALDORF VIEWS DRY LAW AS 'GOOD AS DEAD'

Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of the Methodist Episcopal area of Chicago yesterday told the crowd that overflowed the pavilion at the Des Plaines camp meeting that the repeal of the prohibition amendment will result in a great drive toward the establishment of temperance.

"When we see state after state approving the repeal of the 18th amendment, and when it appears that constitutional prohibition is as good as dead, are we not thankful that there is still a great desire to further the cause of temperance?" Bishop Waldorf asked. The congregation answered with a burst of applause.

Two young unidentified bandits were shot and killed early this morning when they attempted to hold up a beer parlor at 3601 Fullerton avenue. A third robber escaped, possible wounded.

The slain robbers fell under the fire of Peter Capedona, 40 years old, 2059 North Leamington avenue, an expert rifle shot. He is a bartender and brother of George Capedona, the owner. Twice during the last two weeks gunmen had held up the place, and after the second robbery Peter vowed he would foil any further attempts.

Warned by Patron.

He did so with the aid of Fred Freund, 2246 North Central Park avenue, a patron. Freund was a victim in one of the previous robberies, and this morning when a stranger stopped him in front of the place and asked for a match Freund looked him over and decided he was one of the men on the earlier job. He hastened into the saloon and warned Victor Capedona, a brother of Peter and George.

"You'd better tell Pete," he advised. However, Peter needed no warning. He was already in the rear of the place, hiding behind a partition, repeating rifle in hand. Also in the rear were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gilbertson, 2457 Logan boulevard, customers.

Bandits Take Possession.

A few minutes later the three bandits entered, two carrying shotguns and one a revolver. One of those armed with shotguns and the man who had asked Freund for a match walked up to Freund and ordered him to the rear. A second robber directed Victor Capedona to do likewise, and the third gunman stood guard at the door.

As this was going on Peter Capedona, concealed in the rear, aimed his rifle. He fired two shots, both hitting the bandit with Freund in the head and killing him instantly. The man guarding Victor picked up his fallen confederate's shotgun and raised it to fire when Peter let go two more shots. One bullet hit this man in the head, and he staggered outside, where he fell dead. The third man, standing at the door, fled in terror, with bullets from Peter's rifle whizzing by him. He cried out as if hit, but got away in a car.

"I ATE CHERRIES," PRESIDENT SAYS OF HIS CRUISE

Washington, D. C., July 16.—(AP)—The campaign of President Roosevelt for a reduction of 7 pounds went by the boards on his week-end cruise. He conceded tonight that maybe he ate too many cherries.

Appearing happy and well rested as he returned to the White House tonight, he was asked about the "news."

Sphinx to Top Museum at Old Porter Home

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

"A little World's Fair" is the way Washington Porter II., society man and former secretary to the American legation at Copenhagen, describes the structure nearing completion in the back yard of his mother's home at 4043 Lake Park avenue.

Mr. Porter has been engaged in building this structure of his own creation since 1928. It will house his art collection and will include living quarters for himself and numerous rooms in which he plans to entertain society. The cost of the entire project, including sunken gardens, an arcade or double walk, terraces, and roof gardens, has been variously estimated at between $300,000 and $500,000.

Sphinx Atop an Obelisk.

The feature of Mr. Porter's creation, which he describes as "Egyptian with a touch of Italian renaissance," is the 150 foot tower, or Egyptian obelisk, which will form the gateway to the place when entered from the east by Oakenwald avenue. Surmounting this will be the "surprise," the secret of which Mr. Porter up to now has guarded from his friends—a 15x15 foot illuminated winged sphinx, made principally of glass. The figure will be visible to motorists on the outer drive and Illinois Central commuters.

"He's going to be a symbol of the place," said Mr. Porter. "He'll face the east, and will be set diagonally across the 10 foot top of my obelisk."

Like all true obelisks, this one will be tipped off by an equilateral triangle, on which will rest the sphinx.

"He's my Kiosk Sphinx, and that's what I'm going to call my place," Mr. Porter said. "Hitherto it was my villa. Now it is my Kiosk Sphinx. Just as there's only one Hadrian Kiosk—on the isle of Philæ [in the Nile]—just so, there's only one Kiosk Sphinx in America. All the old emperors had their kiosks, and I have mine.

"I have a collection of sphinxes for the interior, too. They include four beautiful marbles, bronze, and porcelain sphinxes."

Loses Track of Cost.

Mr. Porter, asked about the cost of the project, laughingly declared, "O, it wouldn't be modest for me to tell. I've really lost track, anyway. I know I've found that one can write a lot of checks in five years."

Meanwhile, with the noise of hammer and saw close by, as forty workmen are kept busy in an effort to complete the building and obelisk within six weeks, wordless drama is being enacted in the old Victorian mansion which occupies the western part of the 225x90 foot lot which extends from Lake Park to Oakenwald avenue.

Here in the old Porter homestead, the lifetime use of which was provided by the late Washington Porter for his widow, Mrs. Frances Lee Porter, the mother and son live together without speaking. This was revealed by Mrs. Porter's daughter, Mrs. Mark White of 3945 Lake Park avenue.

"Mother has lived there more than 40 years," said the daughter. "She cannot stand the thought of moving from her home. Washington gives his parties in the new building even now, but he lives on in the old house. We don't know when, if ever, he'll get through building. They eat at different hours, and never exchange a word."

Son Sued by Mother.

The rift between the 73 year old mother and son became known after she filed suit in August, 1931, against her son. Mrs. Porter sought to have set aside title conveyances to almost $1,000,000 worth of securities and real estate which she later testified he had tricked her into assigning to him. In April, 1932, she testified that he had ordered her out of the home, saying she no longer owned it. Last March 31 Judge Denis E. Sullivan signed an

CHICAGO FETES BALBO HEROES IN HEROIC STYLE

'Vivas' Follow Them Wherever They Go.

Flyers' Program Today

On the plea of Gen. Balbo that his men be given a chance to rest, some of today's daytime events have been eliminated from the flyers' program. At noon they will make a formal call on Mayor Kelly in the city hall, and at 12:45 will unveil the Columbus statue in Grant park near the Field museum. The late afternoon and night program follows:

5 P. M.—Visit to the Indian village at the World's Fair where Gen. Balbo will be made a chief of the Sioux tribe.

7:30 P. M.—Dinner given by United States Commissioner Harry S. New at the Congress hotel.

10:30 P. M.—Grand ball given by Prince Potenziani, royal Italian commissioner to the Fair, and by Italian-American societies at the Casino club, 195 East Delaware place.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Hours upon hours of solemn ceremonial, of official levees both federal and municipal, of banquets and teas, of endless felicitations in the velvety Tuscan, and of the impartment of cabled greetings from Pope Pius XI. and the papal secretary of state filled the gala Sunday of Gen. Balbo and his Roman eagles in Chicago.

At midnight the festivities still were in progress.

Far from waning, jubilation was waxing.

"Viva Balbo!" Everywhere.

Everywhere the general and his ninety-six companions went they were greeted with rapturous vivas by compatriots now of American citizenship.

"Viva Italia! Viva Balbo!"

Banquet halls rang with the anthems of Italy and the United States.

Federal commissioners to the World's Fair, governors and former governors of American commonwealths, the mayor of Chicago, and eminent clergy of the Catholic archdiocese received the homage of the aviators and in turn gave them homage.

It was an illustrious day, radiant with sunshine, animated by eager cheering throngs, and crowned with a golden midnight moon.

Papal Benediction Read.

From the lofty marble pulpit of the Cathedral of the Holy Name this cablegram of benediction—addressed to Cardinal Mundelein—was read to Balbo and his men while they, facing about from the high altar, stood at rigid attention beneath the pulpit:

Vatican City: Please extend to Gen. Balbo and his companions, together with the congratulations of the Holy Father, also his blessing. He prays that the divine help invoked by them at the beginning of their journey may be continued for the happy return of the heroic trans-Atlantic flyers.

CARDINAL PACELLI,
Secretary of State.

The jubilee service in the cathedral of the archdiocese and of the cardinalate had been set for noon.

40,000 Outside the Cathedral.

An hour before noon the four streets around the old edifice of yellow limestone were packed with people too late to gain admission to it.

Its great bell was booming.

So heavy was the pressure of the throng that 500 mounted and unmounted police under command of Lieut. David Flynn, traffic superintendent, C. P. D., were posted along the bordering streets. At one time the multitude numbered 40,000.

At noon precisely the mayor and Mrs. Kelly—she dressed in soft gray and wearing a single piece of jewelry—entered the cathedral porch and were escorted to the pew second from the sanctuary rails and on the right side of the center aisle of the nave.

Then half an hour of waiting.

New Experience to Mayor.

"This is the first time in my experience," whispered the mayor, "that the church waited for anybody. But I am told the flyers are so dog tired after the completion of the six thousand mile flight that the clergy are being very patient."

The weary men had arrived.

With soft tread they marched down the center aisle to—startling sound—prolonged handclapping by the congregation. At a whisper of command from Gen. Balbo they halted in triple ranks three paces from the sanctuary rails.

There they stood during the two hours of the mass and of the greetings spoken to them in English and in Italian by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Bernard Sheil of the archdiocese, and the Rev. Father Aristo V. Simoni, major, U. S. A., and Catholic chaplain at Fort Sheridan, who wore not the priestly habit but the uniform of the service.

Balbo and his men did more than merely stand during those two hours. For, when their general gave the command—"Attention!"—just before the Sanctus, then the ninety-six stood at rigid attention throughout the clashing of mass bells and throughout that long portion of the service which is known as "the sacramental part of the canon."

Never once did they relax. Never once did they kneel, as the civilians in the pews were doing. Motionless, intent, with bowed heads, they stood.

Travel Worn Heroes.

All looked well but undeniably weary.

He and his flyers wore uniforms of white linen, white caps, white shoes, white kid gloves. His mechanicians and their officers were uniformed in bluish gray.

The white uniforms of the flyers were heavily loaded with gold—massive gold cordons; gold shoulder straps crested with the crown of Savoy. Across their breasts were wide ribbons of heavy, deeply ribbed bluish-green silk. All wore black scarves and all carried golden hilted swords of ornate design. One flyer wore large spectacles rimmed with tortoise shell. He looked like a young college professor.

The Royal Insignia.

At the general's side, and directly in line with the gleaming tabernacle of the high altar, stood the color bearer—holding before him a silver staff which was tipped with a golden eagle and which sustained a banneret richly embroidered on one side with the Italian flag and on the other with the insignia of the Royal flying corps.

The color bearer seemed never to move. There was an eerie fascination in watching that living statue. It pulled even the mayor temporarily away from his devotions.

Many of these heroic men looked more like young Englishmen than like Italians. The hair of some of them brown, the eyes of a few deep blue. That meant men from the kingdom's northern provinces into which centuries ago came the Gothic infusion. And yet swarthy Balbo is himself from northerly Ferrara.

Dazzling Setting of Day's Drama.

The setting of the scene was—to a Roman Catholic it must have been—of ineffable significance and loveliness.

The high altar is laden with great clusters of pink gladioli. Upon them falls the light of the six tall candles, in golden candlesticks, emblematic of the fact that the rite about to be celebrated will be high mass. The altar of the Virgin—to the right of the high altar as you face it—is hung with sky blue, her color, and that shrine is banked with white gladioli.

The "color of the mass" for this day is green.

The cardinal's crimson draped throne, his arms gleaming in gold above it, is empty, and there is news in that fact.

Where Il Duce Cannot Dictate.

Cardinal Mundelein had expected that the flyers would reach Chicago on a weekday and that on a weekday the jubilee service could be held. In view of that prospect he made definite arrangements for holding confirmations in several parishes yesterday. Not for the sake of the Italian air ministry and the petted darlings of Mussolini would he consent, by a postponement of confirmations, to disappoint the clergy and the little children of those parishes.

So Bishop Sheil comes forward as presiding prelate in the jubilee and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Dennis Dunne, pastor of great Holy Cross parish on the south side, is the celebrant of the mass.

Therefore, owing to the presence of Bishop Sheil, the occasion is "messa coram episcopo" and Mussolini can take comfort from that fact. If he could not have a cardinal archbishop for his darlings he has a learned bishop who sprang from the ranks of the plain people for whom Il Duce ever proclaims his solicitude.

In short, Il Duce's pleasure does not rank with the happiness of a parish priest and expectant child in the mind of the man who is Chicago's prince and senator in the sacred college at old Rome. 'Tis comforting.

Watch Gen. Balbo now at close range—this chronicler is not ten feet away from him—as he follows with dark, glowing eyes the stately progress, the poignant silences, the exultant harmonies of a rite that is ages older than the house of Savoy.

Balbo at Close Range.

A hairy, swarthy, vital man, sinewy, abrupt, watchful; too stout for thirty-seven, but firmly poised on his small feet. While he gazes now to the right, now to the left, upon the priests shimmering in white and silver and green beneath the swaying censers his head does not move. Only his eyes move. That is the sign of a man of composure—composure that has held firm amid the high excitements of a turbulent career. Once he brushes a persistent fly from his cheek. 'Twas the only gesture—save the swift crossing of himself—that I saw him make in the two hours he stood at the head of the long aisle.

But what readiness in him! He will fight you a duel, help capture an ancient capital—as he did; organize a ministry of state, be right hand man—as he is—to an autocrat in the rejuvenation of a kingdom; plan and execute transoceanic flights, or gayly crack a bottle of wine with you.

Lacks Only a Dumas.

A D'Artagnan of the air—lacking only a Dumas to immortalize him.

And this day in Chicago he can echo, not in bravado but in all seriousness, Falstaff's "I may justly say with the hook-nosed fellow of Rome, 'I came, saw and overcame.'"

And now, in the vast old church of yellow limestone, the touch that is the crowning touch not alone in his career thus far but also the crowning touch in the brief, close packed, perilous annals of aviation!

For the local hierarchy has set aside ancient precedents in permitting this day's ceremonial to take on the significance of "a Balbo day."

But young Bishop Sheil does not evade it.

Listen now:

He has come to the edge of the chancel steps. He is bestowing his gentle gaze and his winning smile on the general and his companions and he is softly releasing these phrases:

"Our very distinguished and illustrious guests. . . . This happy and historic occasion. . . . It is my joy to speak to you the simple, sacred word 'Welcome!' . . . And I would pay you the tribute of us all for the great lesson you have taught us all by the care and attention you have given to the simplest details of a grand enterprise; tribute, also, to your daring and fortitude in the execution of that enterprise. . . . You have taught us even a larger lesson, for you have shown us what the citizens of a united and an energetic nation can do by effacement of themselves and by unfaltering allegiance to a high ideal."

Italo Balbo, understanding some of the simple phrases, listens intently, head up, cheek not flushing, lips unsmiling. Only when the prelate lifts his serene hands in benediction does the general bow his head.

A Day of Contrasts.

The day of prayer and thanksgiving, of trivial teas and grandiose banquets, and of adulation that would have turned most men into preening actors left these quiet men as they were.

It was a day fraught with memorable contrasts.

Consider the contrasts in the eighteen hours that took Balbo and his men from their so triumphant, so facile landing at eventide on the sunlit bosom of our inland sea to the old cathedral.

The religious features of the day were made trebly impressive to the thousands within the church and its porches by their memories of the picture of eighteen hours before.

Those memories are now a lifetime possession.

What an evening it was!

They were three hours—those waiting hours—of exultant living, three hours of the joy and rigor of the most joyous profession in the world—journalism.

Unforgettable sight! Those roofs, piers and boulevards and far shore line black with people, and those crowded windows of skyscrapers.

Like Swans They Sank to Rest.

They came! Far above the sea of sweet water they came and they were a world's heroes and a watching city's thrill.

In formations at once proud and flexible they rode out of the evening clouds, glory winging with them and the long, deep diapason of three million welcomes meeting them.

The silvery seaplanes sank like swans to majestic rest on the sunlit bosom of the city's water gate—swans from far Mediterranean shores where for fifty centuries civilizations have struck root and bloomed and passed away and where a new civilization which they herald now is flowering.

How quietly, how confidently in the twilight they came to rest among us who tell our brief, strenuous story only by decades.

Such was Saturday.

On Sunday they stood before the altars of their ancient faith like children and like children they humbly followed a ritual that in identical words was being said and sung by their compatriots in ten thousand sanctuaries from Monte Corno to Scylla and Charybdis.

Ah the contrast!

Contrast of the night of festive clamor and hours of calm and consecration when the old church took them to her august bosom and said, "Well done."

5,000 Acclaim Balbo Flyers at Italian Dinner; Throngs Mass on Michigan Ave. to See Airmen

Nearly 5,000 men and women gave Gen. Italo Balbo and his flyers a fifteen minute ovation at a banquet in the grand ball room of the Stevens hotel last night. It was an enthusiastic gathering. Another rousing ovation was given the Italian airmen as they entered the hotel. Michigan avenue sidewalks for a block on either side of the hotel were packed with people, and the lobby of the hotel was jammed with other throngs.

The banquet was given by the Italians and Americans of Chicago. Former Judge John A. Sbarbaro, the first Chicagoan to greet Gen. Balbo at Montreal, was chairman in charge of arrangements. Richard Washburn Child, former United States ambassador to Italy, was toastmaster.

Hundreds Give Fascist Salute.

As Gen. Balbo and his men entered the banquet hall there were cries of "Viva Balbo," and the Fascist cry of "Eja, Eja, alala." Hundreds of arms were slanted upward in the Fascist salute. Gen. Balbo returned the salute. He was in dress uniform, his men in service uniform.

Just before Gen. Balbo spoke he was presented with a huge bronze memorial by the Italians of Chicago. In his speech he said he was overjoyed with the reception given to him and his flyers by Chicago, and regretted his schedule prevented a longer stay. He then called the roll of his men, leading off with the name of Sergt. Quintavalle, who was killed at Amsterdam. Gen. Balbo's first thought, he said, was of Quintavalle, and "I salute him."

"The purpose of our flight," said Gen. Balbo further on, "is to demonstrate Italys' good will for America and to knit closer the ties of friendship. This flight results after ten years in which we have shown the world a new Italy. I give all credit to Benito Mussolini."

Assails New York Rumors.

Another speaker, Augusto Rosso, Italian ambassador to the United States, in his remarks referred to rumors from New York to the effect that Gen. Balbo was cutting his visit to Chicago short because of dissatisfaction over the welcome accorded him. Such rumors are ridiculous, he asserted, and not worthy of formal recognition and reply.

A message from President Roosevelt congratulating Gen. Balbo and the flyers was read. It said:

"Please express to Gen. Balbo and his intrepid companions my great admiration for their achievement, and my warmest congratulations on the success of their exploit. Their accomplishment, characterized by careful preparation and scientific skill, marks an important step in the progress of the conquest of the air. They are most welcome visitors."

Former Ambassador Child, after the reading of the telegram, delivered a speech in which he praised the courage of the Italian airmen. He said a lesson in practical bravery and discipline could be learned from them.

Other Leaders Speak.

Other speakers were the Rev. Robert G. Kelley, S. J., president of Loyola university; Mayor Edward J. Kelly, Gov. Henry Horner, United States Commissioner Harry S. New, Dr. Allen D. Albert, representing President Rufus Dawes of the World's Fair; and Consul General Giuseppe Castruccio.

Dr. Kelley conferred the degree of doctor of laws upon Gen. Balbo. Mayor Kelly, in his speech, said that Gen. Balbo "had stolen the heart of Chicago by his courage and his personality."

HAILED BY FAIR CROWDS

Gen. Balbo climaxed his crowded day at A Century of Progress yesterday with an address to thousands of Italian Americans who assembled in and about the Italian Pavilion on the Fair grounds.

Long and resounding cheers greeted his statement, delivered dramatically and with upflung arm, that he would go back to Italy with the "everlasting memory of the sympathetic and friendly greeting" given him by Chicago and America.

In his first lengthy statement since his arrival in the United States, Gen. Balbo outlined some of the trials of his flight from Italy to Chicago and paid tribute to his gallant crew of 96 men who manned the 24 great seaplanes which spanned the Atlantic ocean with him.

Thinks Southern Route Better.

The delays caused him in Iceland have led him to believe that the southern route from Europe to America is the better, he declared. The northern route is not to be discarded from consideration, he pointed out, but the present development of aviation does not warrant the risks and dangers the route entails.

The great crowds about the Italian pavilion waited patiently, standing in the sun for more than three hours before the air minister of Italy and his crew appeared. The flyers slept late and some of the events on their schedule for the day were omitted. They did not complete luncheon in the Trustees' Lounge in the Hall of Science till nearly 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Then Gen. Balbo, resplendent in his white uniform with many orders on his chest, stepped out on the terrace of the Hall of Science, accompanied by Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Fair, and Gov. Henry Horner. A great yell went up from the crowds amassed along the walk from the Hall of Science to the Italian Pavilion. Hundreds of Exposition guards kept a way clear.

They Stroll to Pavilion.

The general was smiling and happy as he strolled the few hundred yards to the Pavilion, followed by his crew and a number of civilians. Occasionally he raised his arm in the Fascist salute as "Vivas" and "Bravis" were shouted by Italians in the crowds.

Inside the Pavilion, a few hundred selected guests had been given seats. Gen. Balbo spoke to them from a high balcony while his men massed behind him, making a brave picture. He spoke in Italian and his remarks were later translated by the Italian consul general in Chicago, Giuseppe Castruccio.

"This flight is but an incident in Italy's technical development of modern aviation," the speech began. "Far more important than the fact that two continents and an ocean have been spanned in mass flight for the first time is the fact that in the tenth year of the Fascist revolution, we have been able thus to bring a message of friendship to the United States, the mother of aviation, and to this marvelous Century of Progress.

Tells of Long Preparation.

"The success of our trip has been due to long and careful preparation. Since the Atlantic flight to South America two years ago, much time has been spent on the improvement and development of the planes and engines and the men have been severely disciplined to fit them for their tasks."

"Let me thank you," he concluded, "in the name of my leader, Mussolini, in the name of Italy, and in the name of the Atlantic crew, my gallant comrades, who have helped me to make this long flight to your marvelous metropolis of Chicago."

Following the talk, Gov. Horner and Bishop James A. Griffin of the Roman Catholic diocese of Springfield, were summoned to the balcony where Gen. Balbo bestowed upon each of them the Cross of Lombardy and of the House of Savoy as a token of Italy's admiration and friendship for Illinois.

PROCESS TAXES LIKELY TO FACE COURT ATTACKS

Rise in Prices Brings an Added Problem.

Washington, D. C., July 16.—(AP)—Farm administrators today looked for an early challenge of the rates at which they set the processing tax on wheat and cotton, because climbing prices have reduced the margin for taxes provided by the agricultural act.

Their programs for the two big money crops are predicated on the expectation of a large amount of revenue from the taxes to pay farmers cash to reduce their output—about $150,000,000 to wheat farmers starting Aug. 1 and $100,000,000 to cotton growers who will begin receiving checks for curtailing this year's production late this week.

Tax on Other Crops.

Programs for other crops—tobacco, corn and hogs, and rice—are being worked out, with the tax expected to be the keystone of each.

The administrators fear that manufacturers or consumers will object in the courts to the tax rate on grounds that it is in excess of that authorized by the act and that they may be forced to cut it as a result.

If the government reduces the rate, the revenue produced by the tax would fall below their estimates on which administrators have based their programs for making payments to farmers to induce them to cut production.

Another Point for Challenge.

The administrators also have looked for a challenge in the courts of the principle of the processing tax—levied at the first processing plant where the raw material begins its transition into a finished product—since the farm act was passed by congress.

The issue was presented forcefully this week when both cotton and wheat prices hit new peaks. May wheat at Chicago Saturday jumped almost six cents to $1.23 a bushel; cotton touched 12 cents a pound during the week, its high mark since early in 1931.

Both of the tax rate formulas are based on average farm prices from May 15 to June 15 and it is since the latter date that the most sensational rises have been registered for both commodities. The wheat tax, in effect a week, is at the rate of 30 cents a bushel, while the cotton tax will be 4.2 cents a pound, effective Aug. 1.

The act further provides that the rate shall be determined on the "latest available statistics." Administrators are using the figures of the bureau of agricultural economics, whose next report, due July 29, will give the recent price increases including those of Saturday.

Three Die in Crash.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 16.—(AP)—Three persons were killed late today when their airplane fell and crashed into a patch of woods near Grottoes in Rockingham county. The dead were George Olinger, 20, New Market, pilot; Harry Strickler, 23, New Market; William Eaton, 22, Grottoes.

Witnesses said the motor stopped a moment before the ship fell.

COTTON TEXTILE CODE IN EFFECT; SCOPE WIDENED

700,000 Are Affected by New Regulations.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 16.—[Special.]—More than 700,000 workers will go to their jobs tomorrow under the new textile code which went into effect at midnight tonight.

In addition to workers in the cotton textile group, employés in the rayon, cotton thread, silk and throwing, or silk spinning, industries will come under the code by virtue of executive orders signed by President Roosevelt tonight immediately upon his return from a week-end cruise and motor trip along the Maryland coast.

Minimum Wages Set.

Under the provisions of the code, the employers of the 700,000 workers affected will be required to pay a minimum wage of $13 a week in the north and $12 a week in the south, and to fix a 40 hour work week. In every factory in these branches of the textile industry, it will hereafter be a violation to employ a person under 16 years of age.

In a further order the President warned members of those groups, who have not yet agreed to abide by the code, that they must file their objections and petition for a hearing within ten days, or be subject to penalties for any violation of regulations. Some 23 per cent of the cotton textile industry has not yet consented to the code.

Johnson's Job Permanent.

The issuance of the several orders culminated a day spent in consultation with Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the recovery act, who left Washington by plane this morning and joined the presidential outing. In still another decree, President Roosevelt made Gen. Johnson's original thirty day appointment a permanent one.

Tonight's action in bringing additional industries under the one code was regarded as the first step toward the imposition of a plan for even more embracing blanket orders. Reports that the President had approved a compulsory decree imposing a minimum wage scale and maximum work week on all industry were denied by Gen. Johnson. He said no such decision had been reached.

In at Own Request.

But it was considered certain that the idea of voluntary group action, like that in the textile group, but far broader, had, by no means, been abandoned. The additional textile industries which came in under the cotton textile code did so at their own request and pending approval of their own codes.

It was a plan for such a method of imposing maximum work week and mimimum wage schedules that Gen. Johnson took with him for discussion with the President.

STOCK MARKET TIPSTERS TARGET OF U. S. DRIVE

Plan to Prosecute Under Postal Laws.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 16.—[Special.]—A declaration of war against stock market tipster services was issued today by Postmaster General James A. Farley.

In addition to announcing that he is ready to issue fraud orders under the postal laws against any service which is suspected of fraudulent practices or pretenses, he warned investors about becoming clients of such services. He reminded them that full and accurate information about new securities may be obtained from the federal trade commission since the operation of the new securities act began.

Informed that the recent rise in the stock market has brought forth tipster services again, the postmaster general said that he has already instructed the chief inspector of his department to investigate suspicious matter going through the mails. He invited the public to report violations to him.

"The whole practice tends only to encourage speculation and to undermine the efforts of the administration to bring about a normal and healthy industrial recovery," Farley stated, adding that the whole scheme of market services is "designed only to separate the people from their money."

"Persons claiming to have expert knowledge, which, in fact, they seldom possess," he explained, "offer, for a price, to advise clients throughout the country when to buy and when to sell stocks. Investors are urged to submit lists of their security holdings. Sometimes such lists are handed over to unscrupulous promoters, who endeavor to induce the owners to exchange valuable securities for worthless stocks.

"I shall issue fraud orders against every individual, bureau, corporation, or association engaged in any practice which, under the law, is fraudulent."

"RUBBER" DOLLAR EXPERT IS CALLED TO WASHINGTON

Favors Money Based on Commodity Values.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 16.—[Special.]—A dollar which he frankly admits is "rubber" is the goal of the latest professorial recruit to President Roosevelt's brain trust, George Warren of Cornell university, it was learned today.

Announced to the public as a new specialist on the budget and government financing, Prof. Warren is attracting the attention of the capital for another reason. Officials believe privately that he is preparing the way for what he calls a commodity or rubber dollar.

It is pointed out that he was installed in an office in the department of commerce building shortly after President Roosevelt had told the London economic conference that what the United States wants is a "dollar which will have the same purchasing power a generation hence."

Forecast Commodity Dollar.

This, experts say, can mean only a commodity dollar, of which Prof. Warren has been a leading exponent.

Holes are being poked in the explanation that he is here to study the budget and government financing. It was learned today that he is a professor of agricultural economics and farm management who never has strayed out of that field to write on government finances. Officials of the bureau of the budget, whose investigator Prof. Warren is supposed to be, said today they had never seen him.

Mystery cloaks the activities of the newest brain trust member, so completely that research experts and economists, even those in the treasury department, where Prof. Warren is supposed to be interested, do not know what he is doing. He and the other professor, who was brought here with him, James H. Rogers of Yale, frankly admit that they have been told not to discuss their work.

Studying Stabilized Value.

Prof. Warren is believed to be making an intensive study of his commodity, or rubber dollar, for the administration. This new monetary unit, for which Prof. Warren has become famous, would be geared to commodity prices instead of to gold. No currency like it has ever been attempted.

With a view to stabilizing purchasing power, Prof. Warren has explained publicly, he would like to see the gold content of the dollar varied often, perhaps every month. When prices go down, he argues, what really is happening is that gold is becoming more valuable in terms of commodities. What he says should be done is the removal of enough gold from the dollar to bring its value back down in terms of commodities. The gold could be put back if prices started to skyrocket, and the rise would be checked.

Blames Gold Currencies.

Prof. Warren blames all of the price collapse of the depression on the remonetization of gold by many countries just before the break came. He points out that France went back on the gold standard in 1928 and he adds that "the collapse came soon after."

What happened, according to the new brain trust member, is that the remonetization of gold multiplied the demand for it many times and that this demand sent the price of the precious metal booming. As gold became more valuable, commodities became less valuable in relation to it, and prices quoted in terms of gold currencies dropped.

His rubber dollar would stop all this by having its gold content varied in such a way as to keep the relationship between gold values and a composite of all commodity values at a constant ratio. He says the dollar is already rubber in that its value in terms of commodities may go up or go down.

TEN STATES' FARM GROUPS TO DISCUSS CORN, HOG PROBLEMS

Des Moines, Ia., July 16.—(AP)—An attempt to lessen the flow of golden corn and fatted hogs from the midwestern horn of plenty is to be made here Tuesday.

Representatives of farm groups of ten states are to assemble here to discuss plans to bring prices of those corn belt commodities up to pre-war levels.

Their decisions are to receive attention at the national conference of producers, packers and farm administrators in Chicago.

The 76 delegates are looking into the future to decide their attitude on pork processing taxes and production control of corn. They have been told that packers have intimated their opposition to a processing tax, preferring trade agreements.

Iowa representatives have decided that reduction of corn and hog production is necessary for stabilized price recovery. To this idea, many delegates from other states agree, according to recent meetings.

THE ISLE OF MAN ENACTS 23 LAWS IN AGE OLD RITES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 16.—After a thousand years the Isle of Man in the Irish sea still observes doggedly the custom known as "promulgating the laws" passed by its parliament. This year for the first time since 1765 the Manx flag was flown from the flagstaff of the promulgation bill instead of the Union Jack.

The mound on which sits the governor of the island and his parliament—whose laws are being promulgated—is composed of earth brought from every parish in the island.

Twenty-three new laws were promulgated this year by reading in the strange, rapidly disappearing Manx language, and again in English. A large crowd of holiday makers and some residents attended the ceremony, which began as the governor and the Manx parliament ascended the hill on a pathway strewn with rushes as a tribute by the land owners to the lord of man for their holdings. The ceremony dates back to the Norse sea rovers who conquered the island.

POLICEMAN ENDS LIFE WITH GUN OVER FINANCES

Patrolman Nicholas Rosch, assigned to the Sheffield avenue police station, yesterday shot and fatally wounded himself in the right temple, behind a factory building at 2725 Clybourn avenue.

He was taken to Alexian Brothers' hospital, where physicians found that the bullet had pierced his brain. He died late last night. Rosch, who was 38 years old, was married and had two children. His home was at 4877 North Ashland avenue. He was chauffeur for Francis X. Busch when the latter was corporation counsel and recently was assigned to the detective bureau.

Fellow policemen said that he had been despondent recently over poor health and financial difficulties resulting from failure to get his pay.

ASK HUNT FOR MISSING YOUTH.

Emil Sobotka, 6439 27th street, Berwyn, asked police yesterday to search for his son, Robert, 17 years old, who has been missing from home since Thursday. The boy left home, his father said, after being scolded for smoking cigarets.

JEALOUS SUITOR SLAYS WOMAN AND HIMSELF

Walter Ray, 6311 Ellis avenue, a milkman, yesterday shot and killed his sweetheart, Mrs. Elizabeth Peterson, 28 year old waitress at the Riviera hotel, 4900 Blackstone avenue, and then killed himself in her home at 6201 Woodlawn avenue.

Mrs. Peterson, who had been separated from her husband, had kissed her 9 year old son, Norman, and brother, Leo Shores, good-by before going to work, when Ray met her in the hallway and fired. Her brother told Woodlawn police that the milkman, who was married, came to the house yesterday morning with a bottle of liquor and a gun. Shores said he took the gun away from Ray, but later gave it back.

One Shot During Battle of Boy Gangs in Street

Anthony Garillo, 12 years old, 923 Sholto street, was shot last night in a fight between two boy gangs at 11th and Sholto streets. The bullet entered his left hip, coursed upward and stopped near the spine. Anthony's condition was described as serious at the Mother Cabrini hospital. The fight started when Anthony and three friends were stopped in an automobile by three other boys who claimed ownership of the car.

CANAL ZONE ASKS ROOSEVELT FOR RECOVERY PLUM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BALBOA, C. Z., July 16. — The Democratic club of the Canal Zone has petitioned President Roosevelt to apportion $5,000,000 from the funds of the national recovery act to the Canal Zone to put Americans to work and to prevent American families here from becoming destitute.

Canal labor leaders stated that the petition is being considered by the special board of public works of which Secretary of Interior Ickes is chairman. The petition was transmitted through Lieut. Col. Julian L. Schley, governor of the Canal Zone.

The Democratic club today passed a resolution requesting that under all future Canal Zone contracts only Americans or Panamanians be employed with wages according to the canal's scale.

WEAVERS REJECT A 40 HOUR WEEK IN RHODE ISLAND

Pawtucket, R. I., July 16.—[Special.]—The Rhode Island Textile council, representing 25,000 workers in the worsted and woolen goods industry, today rejected the employers' proposal for a national 40 hour week and a minimum wage of $14 a week and demanded instead a 30 hour week and $18 minimum.

The council also refused to accept as permanent the temporary code in the silk and rayon industry, which goes into effect tomorrow. Instead of the 40 hour week and $13 minimum temporarily accepted the union representatives demanded a 35 hour week and a minimum of $26 and $30 a week for skilled silk weavers and $13 for unskilled hands.

POST HOPS FROM U. S. TO BERLIN IN 25 HOURS

World Flyer Now on Third Lap to Moscow.

Post was welcomed at the Berlin airport by German officials and Lieut Col. Jacob W. S. Wuest, military attaché, representing the American ambassador, Prof. William E. Dodd.

His first words on climbing out of the cockpit of his plane were: "I want to get this gassed up and get going as quick as possible." He was whisked off to the same room where he rested on his first flight. He took a shower bath and stretched out on a bunk, but refused to go to sleep.

Tuck Sandwiches in Plane.

Chicken sandwiches, two thermos bottles of ice water, and Swedish whole wheat bread were tucked in his plane.

Long before attendants had finished pouring 500 gallons of gas and 25 gallons of oil into his plane Post was beside his ship fretting at the delay. The use of hand pumps delayed him at least an hour. He fell asleep as the ship was being refueled.

With weather charts prepared by the German Lufthansa sticking in his pocket, Post climbed aboard and took off. Fog was predicted just ahead, but favorable weather and winds were reported over Russia.

Reports from Koenigsberg said that air police sighted Post circling over the city and fired rockets to signal him to a safe landing.

Post traveled 3,900 miles on the flight to Berlin. He averaged 150 miles per hour.

Post's time was the fastest ever made between New York and Berlin.

The previous New York-to-Berlin record had been held by Jimmie Mattern and Bennett Griffin, who covered the distance in a flying time of 29 hours 18 minutes on their ill fated attempt to encircle the world last summer. Their elapsed time was 31 hours 39 minutes because of a stop at Harbor Grace, Newfoundland.

Post and Gatty flew from New York to Berlin in 1931, with three stops, in 34 hours 34 minutes.

Chicago Flyers Overdue.

New York, July 16.—(AP)—Hours after they were due at their destination, no word had been received tonight of the Lithuanian-American flyers, Capt. Stephen Darius and Stanley Girenas of Chicago, who took off from Floyd Bennett field yesterday morning for Kaunas, Lithuania.

At 11:30 o'clock tonight, Chicago time, they had been absent 41 hours. With favorable weather they had hoped to arrive at Kaunas by 3:30 p. m.

There was some uncertainty as to how long their gasoline supply would keep them aloft and estimates ranged from 40 to 60 hours. Confusion attendant upon their departure, which was undertaken without government sanction, prevented accurate calculations on this point.

Their orange and black monoplane, the Lituanica, was last reported over the east coast of Newfoundland at 2:38 p. m. Saturday, headed seaward.

From Newfoundland the flyers' route lay over the ocean to the north tip of Scotland, then across the southern end of the Scandinavian peninsula and over the Baltic sea to Kaunas.

Friends of Darius and Girenas remained optimistic as the hours passed without word. They suggested the plane might have been forced down in an inaccessible spot in Norway or Sweden, pointing out that hours had elapsed before Jimmie Mattern was reported in Jomfruland, off the Norwegian coast.

No Permission to Fly .

If the aviators should have landed in any country but Lithuania, they may be subject to a "spanking" in view of their failure to receive permission to fly over the nations on their route. They had been arguing with the commerce department over paying cable toll for this permission, and hopped off without passports or other credentials.

The plane was heavily loaded—it nearly crashed on the takeoff—so that neither wireless equipment nor parachutes had been added to the burden. Besides its regular fuel supply, it carried 135 gallons of gasoline in five gallon tins.

In view of Post's statement that he had flown through bad weather on much of his trip across the Atlantic, it was assumed here that Darius and Girenas encountered similar difficulties. Their route lay to the north of Post's and was said by Dr. James H. Kimball, meteorologist here, to be less favorable.

Heavy line on map shows progress of Wiley Post on his flight around the world. Post reached Berlin yesterday after a 25 hour trip from New York. After a brief pause in the German capital the aviator sped for Novo-Sibirsk, Siberia, but was forced to turn back because of unfavorable weather. He landed at Koenigsberg, East Prussia.

July 16.

5:55 a. m.—Landed at Tempelhof airdrome, Berlin.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh Rest at Labrador on Flight

CARTWRIGHT, Labrador, July 16.—(AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, preparing to survey possible air routes across the north Atlantic, spent a quiet week-end here. They arrived last week after an easy flight by stages from New York. Over the week-end they visited the Italian supply ship Alice, which was anchored here to service Gen. Italo Balbo's squadron of 24 seaplanes on its flight to Chicago.

South Side Tavern Owner Shoots Burglar to Death

Louis Mankin, owner of a beer tavern at 5758 Wentworth avenue, shot and killed an unidentified burglar who broke into the place early yesterday. Felix du Pont of Wilmington, Del., millionaire manufacturer, and his son, Richard C. du Pont, escaped injury late today when a glider piloted by young Du Pont was wrecked by a sudden shift in the wind just after they took off from a hill top. The glider's fall was broken by bushes.

U. S. GIRL FLYER TO AID POST IN SIBERIAN CITY

NOVO-SIBIRSK, Siberia, July 16.—(AP)—Waiting here to help Wiley Post when he arrives on his globe-circling solo flight is a 24 year old American girl flyer, Fay Gillis. She not only has made all refueling and rest arrangements, but will act as the aviator's interpreter during his brief halt at this far eastern outpost.

[Previous plans for Miss Gillis to fly from Novo-Sibirsk to Khabarovsk, Siberia, with the pilot were cancelled yesterday in New York by Lee Trenholm, Post's manager.]

Fay, who is one of the few women members of the Caterpillar club—that exclusive group of flyers who have had to take to parachutes for their lives—has been here three weeks acting as Post's personal representative. She has been telling local airport officials just what he will need in the way of food and fuel and has been getting everything in readiness to speed the Oklahoman's voyage over the latter half of Russia.

"We're all set now," she said today. "The local air administration and the secretary of the district central executive committee here have done everything to facilitate his arrival and departure. They have mowed the grass on the landing field, set aside a special room where he can rest at the airport, and even arranged a menu for the meal they will have ready for him."

Fay has been in Russia three years. Her father is employed as a consulting metallurgist by the soviet government.

Post's Fast Time to Berlin No Surprise to His Wife

New York, July 16.—(AP)—There was no surprise for Mrs. Wiley Post today in her husband's fast flight to Berlin. "It was nothing more than I expected," the aviator's wife said smilingly when news of his progress was brought to her in the hotel where she is waiting his return.

SCHOOL ECONOMY TO SAVE MILLIONS ON NEW BUILDINGS

Junior High Change Eases Seat Shortage.

The board of education's economy order doing away with the expensive junior high school system of instruction will save the city millions of dollars in expenditures for new school buildings, rendered unnecessary by the new plan, it was indicated yesterday by Don C. Rogers, director of building surveys in the school system.

This saving was roughly estimated at $27,000,000 in the matter of high school buildings alone. Abolition of the junior high schools will meet more than 60 per cent of the present shortage of 40,000 seats in senior high schools, Mr. Rogers said, upon the basis of average figures for the school system as a whole, without adjusting them to requirements of individual schools.

48,000 in Junior High Schools.

There were 48,000 pupils this year in junior high schools. Of these 21,000 were ninth grade pupils, who will be sent to senior high schools under the reorganization ordered by the school board. The remaining 27,000 seventh and eighth grade pupils will go back into the elementary schools, leaving that number of seats available in the present junior high schools for senior high school pupils. The junior highs are easily adaptable to use as senior high schools.

The problem of readjusting the pupils will not be so simple as this, however, it was pointed out by Mr. Rogers. In some neighborhoods in which junior high schools are located there are few vacant rooms in elementary schools, which may make it necessary to put elementary school branches in the junior high buildings.

800 School Rooms Vacant.

"I have not made a complete investigation but I am under the impression that there is little available space in elementary schools near the Wendell Phillips Junior High school," said Mr. Rogers. "In that case it may be necessary to have an elementary branch in the building, using the remainder of the space for high school classes."

In the city as a whole, however, there are enough vacant rooms to house the whole elementary school population, even after it is augmented by the 27,000 seventh and eighth grade pupils from junior high schools. The Sargent committee, in its survey, found more than 800 vacant school rooms.

To these will be added several hundred more rooms vacated as a result of the board order abolishing manual training, domestic arts, and printing instruction in the elementary schools.

Some of Rooms Unsuitable.

The trouble with these rooms, Mr. Rogers said, is that in many of the older schools they are in basements, and are not fitted for use for general classwork.

The saving in building costs through the use of junior high school space for 27,000 senior high pupils may be estimated roughly at $1,000 per pupil. That is close to the average cost of the four senior high schools and five junior high schools on which construction was started, only to be halted when the school system ran out of funds.

Those schools, if finished, would give 22,800 additional high school seats, while the seat shortage, if full use is made of junior high school buildings, will be only about 13,000. That includes all pupils attending high school branches in elementary buildings, those using portables, and those on split schedules.

Some of Frills Total Loss.

The Chicago Federation of Labor voted yesterday to table a resolution criticizing the board of education for its economy program. Several officials of teachers' unions criticized School Trustee Charles Fry, a labor leader, for backing the program.

"Think twice before you condemn any one," said County Commissioner Mary McInerney, representative of the Bindery Women's union. "The elimination of some of these educational frills was the best thing for the children. The vocational classes were a total loss."

Representatives of some forty different organizations, principally teachers and parent-teacher associations, met yesterday at the City club. They sent a telegram to Mayor Kelly protesting against the economy plan, and planned a massmeeting Friday night.

MAYFAIR ASKS FOR IDLE MEN TO CUT WEEDS

Edward L. Barr, president of the North Mayfair Improvement association, asserted yesterday that weeds in that northwest side area are a menace to the safety of the public.

"In many sections the weeds are 5 feet tall," said Mr. Barr. "They make a perfect hiding place for criminals. Two women have been terrorized by them. The weeds are particularly dense along Elston avenue, said Mr. Barr. Last year the North Mayfair association spent its own funds in clearing them. This year the association hopes the city will use relief recipients to do away with the weeds.

STRANDED FREIGHTER SAVED.

San Francisco, Cal., July 16.—(AP)—The freighter Henry S. Grove, captain, J. McKenzie, which went aground at Lime Point in the Golden Gate in a fog last night with a crew of 35 aboard, was floated by tugs today and proceeded to drydock for inspection.

REPORT $10,000 PAID KIDNAPERS BY LUER FAMILY

Aged Banker Held 6 Days Home Unharmed.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Alton, Ill., July 16.—[Special.]—August Luer, 78, Alton banker-packer, was released shortly after midnight this morning by the kidnap band which had held him captive for six days.

AUGUST LUER.

While the Luer family denied paying any ransom, reports were that the kidnapers had scaled down their original $100,000 demand, first to $50,000 and then to $25,000, and that Carl Luer, the banker's youngest son, finally obtained his father's liberty by tossing $10,000 in small bills over a cemetery fence within a thirty mile radius of Alton, twenty hours before his father was turned loose.

Tells Story to Officers.

Refreshed by a bath, a shave, and nine hours' sleep, the aged banker, whose family had professed grave anxiety lest he die of a heart shock during his captivity, spent the afternoon conferring with postoffice inspectors and department of justice agents, who arrived on the case from St. Louis within two hours after Luer gained his liberty.

Notwithstanding the family's fears for his health Luer's physician declared after examining his patient, that the banker had come through his more than five days of confinement in a basement on a diet of sandwiches and water in excellent shape. Thus, it appeared, Luer was endowed with a far more robust constitution than his sons had supposed.

U. S. Agents Have Clews.

It is understood that the federal agents have obtained several promising clews, giving them reason to hope that the government will secure the arrests and convictions, which Attorney General Cummings has informed the department of justice must be obtained to check the operations of kidnap gangs now infesting the country.

Among the clews reported to have fallen into the agents' hands are several of the five letters the kidnapers are believed to have exchanged with the Luers in the ransom negotiations. It is known that at least one of these letters was sent through the mails, thus giving the government full jurisdiction under the federal kidnaping act passed by congress following the Lindbergh outrage.

The old man also gave the agents the best description of his basement prison that his sense of smell and hearing permitted. The description was somewhat vague by reason of the fact that his eyes were taped throughout his period of captivity.

Imprisoned in Basement.

He knew the kidnap lair was a basement, he said, having been doubled up and thrust through a narrow window down an incline like a coal chute. Upon arrival there, he could feel the dampness of the stone walls and earthen floor.

He fancies the place was a farmhouse, for he could hear cackling chickens in the mornings and could smell the scents of a barnyard. He was certain the spot was close to a railroad crossing, the wail of locomotive whistles and the rattle of cars across the rails frequently disturbing his sleep.

Except for the limitation of his food to a diet of ham sandwiches, cold water and a little beer and the provision of only an old auto cushion for his bed, the kidnapers did not mistreat him, according to his story.

He had explained the seriousness of his heart ailment and told them of his need for the heart stimulant his physician had prescribed for him.

Afraid to Trust Them.

"They bought me ten cents' worth of pills," he said, "but I didn't take them because I couldn't trust those men."

"They seemed to be sorry for me at times," he went on. "Occasionally, during what seemed to be the day time, they would come and sit with me. One of them told me if they had known how old and sick I was, they wouldn't have taken me. On the morning before they let me go, they gave me some orange juice."

The release was effected at approximately 12:15 a. m. o. a dirt road some four miles south of Collinsville, in the southeast corner of Madison county, not far from the Fairmont race track.

His eyes still taped, the banker could not be certain how many men were in the car which bore him to that deserted spot. He remembered that as they stopped beside a ditch and opened the door for which he groped, he heard two voices warning him not to remove the tapes for ten minutes.

Temporarily Blinded.

He disobeyed this warning. Luer said, but discovered on opening his eyes that the 128 hours he had spent in darkness had temporarily deprived him of his sight. He was unable to see the stars shining in the cloudless sky and could only perceive the woods around him as vague dark masses.

"I set off down the road in the opposite direction from the way the kidnapers fled," Luer said. "I figured they were going deeper into the woods and that I had better go the other way to find a habitation.

"My vision came back gradually. But I had no sense of direction, I found a concrete highway after half an hour's plodding, and saw a lighted house far up the highway. I started towards it. The walk seemed about two miles."

Finally Reaches Roadhouse.

The lighted place the banker saw was a roadhouse three miles out of Collinsville. He knocked on the latched screen door there about 1 a. m., bringing the proprietor, a sprightly woman in a pale green party gown, named Mrs. Grace Miller, better known as Grace Maddox.

Mrs. Miller took a casual glance at the forlorn figure on her doorstep, noting his bloodshot eyes, the wrinkled shirt and trousers in which he had slept five nights, his grizzly beard, and the dusty, broken shoes the kidnapers gave him to replace the carpet slippers he had been wearing when they snatched him from his household. She decided he was a vagrant.

"Come in," she said, "it's late for an old man to be on the road. Come in and I'll give you a cup of coffee."

"I'm August Luer," the weary banker said with quiet dignity. "The kidnapers shoved me out of a car down the road. If I'm close to Alton, I would like to call my family."

Dancers Pause to Stare.

The jazz band, which had been blaring fox trots into the ears of half a dozen dancing couples, stopped silent. The dancers gathered in the hall to stare as the old man settled heavily in an easy chair. The hostess helped him to rise as he gathered his confused thoughts and indicated the telephone on the wall.

He could not make the operator understand the telephone number. In solicitude for his plight, Mrs. Miller asked him to sit down. The operator had overheard the old man mention the name of Luer, however, and immediately called the Madison county sheriff, Peter Fitzgerald.

Thus it happened that the sheriff got news of the banker's release almost at the moment the old man finally completed his call to Alton and gave his son the message:

"Carl, I'm safe; tell mama."

U. S. Agents Notified.

The sheriff's first move was to notify the St. Louis federal agents, then to spread the alarm in adjoining counties for a car, the description of which he could not give, however. Mayor Thomas Butler and Police Chief James P. Hart also were notified.

The Luer family decided against going to Collinsville and awaited Mr. Luer's return at Herman's home. The sons brought their mother there to welcome her husband back, she showing tears for the first time since she valiantly tried to fight off the two men and a woman who had seized him Monday night.

Sheriff Fitzgerald and his deputies were the first officers to reach the roadhouse. The federal agents, accompanied by St. Louis police in three cars, arrived an hour later.

The federal men suggested that the banker ride with them to Alton, to spare him the tedium of being questioned there. The old man demurred, however, until Sheriff Fitzgerald reassured him. His objection was that he "didn't know those men and didn't want to ride with them."

Familiar Scenes Bring Tears.

Back amidst familiar scenes in Alton once more, the old man began to cry a little as the car passed the packing plant he had built up from a little butcher shop in 50 years, and the bank he had saved in a panic a year ago.

On the porch of Herman's home was his partner in fifty-seven years of married life, Mrs. Luer, surrounded by her three sons, two daughters, and her grandchildren. The old couple could be seen weeping on each others shoulders as they embraced. The police guards had not yet arrived. A half hour after the reunion, Carl Luer came out of the grounds to make a statement. He announced that the family had not paid a dime.

Twelve hours after making that statement, Carl Luer again talked to reporters. In this second statement he confirmed reports that five notes had been received, two containing messages in his father's handwriting.

Questioned About Ransom.

Under renewed questioning about the ransom, he was silent, indicating that the sum of $10,000 had been paid. The questioning ran as follows:

Q.—Did you pay a ransom? A.—I cannot answer that.

Q.—Would you say no ransom had been paid? A.—The federal agents instructed me to say nothing about it.

Q.—The report is that $10,000 was paid and the family decided not to discuss the matter; is that true? A.—Alright, boys, that's all.

SEIZED IN HUNT FOR KIDNAPERS

Carlos Fontana (left) and Martin O'Leary, two arrested yesterday in intensive search for members of the gang which kidnaped Jake Factor.

Cicero Police Fail to Tell Kidnaping Bureau.

For several days Martin O'Leary and Carl Fontana, west side hoodlums, have been sought by federal authorities and police of the state's attorney's office and the city of Chicago as suspects in the kidnaping of John (Jake the Barber) Factor, as well as membership in a nation-wide kidnaping ring. Much publicity was given to the fact.

Yesterday it became known that O'Leary and Fontana were taken into custody by Cicero police Saturday night while forty members of the new Chicago kidnap detail were out looking for suspects in the Factor and other kidnapings.

Chief of Police Michael Solar of Cicero promptly verified the report that he had O'Leary and Fontana in the lockup. He was asked what he planned to do with them.

Says Factor Will See Them.

"Right now," said the chief, "they're at the showup at the detective bureau downtown. As soon as my men get back I'll give you their records. You can say that we will hold them here for Capt. Gilbert of the state's attorney's police. Tomorrow we'll bring Factor out here and see if he can identify these men."

The showup had just been concluded at this time, so Deputy Chief of Detectives William V. Blaul was asked whether O'Leary and Fontana were present. No, he didn't know they had been arrested. Capt. Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney, was asked whether he had been notified of the arrest of Fontana and O'Leary. He said it was news to him. Lieut. Andrew Barry, head of the new kidnaping detail, said he had not heard of the arrest.

At the detective bureau it was learned that four minor suspects were brought in for the showup from Cicero, but not O'Leary and Fontana.

Gilbert to Quiz Them.

Capt. Gilbert, upon learning that O'Leary and Fontana had been arrested, asked Deputy Chief Blaul to request the Cicero police to hold them until this morning so that he might question them. This was done.

Fontana and O'Leary were the first suspects arrested in connection with the Factor kidnaping, although Lieut. Barry and his men were out again last night searching the northwest section of the city and county for members of the Touhy gang of ex-convicts and murderers.

Fontana was indicted but never tried by the federal government in connection with the famous Rondout mail robbery in 1924. Both hoodlums have appeared on the public enemy lists.

FIRE DESTROYS 3 HOUSES.

Harrisburg, Ill., July 16.—[Special.]—Three houses were destroyed by fire today at Carrier Mills, eight miles south of here. The fire was caused by an oil stove exploding in one of the houses. The Harrisburg fire truck was called to help in extinguishing the flames.

SEEK MEN PHONING KIDNAPING THREATS TO EX-PRES. RUBIO

San Diego, Cal., July 16.—(AP)—An investigation, its nature classified by police as "secret," was under way here today into reported kidnaping threats against Pascual Ortiz Rubio, former president of Mexico.

Authorities were informed last night that he received a telephone call yesterday from an unidentified person, the second since July 7, demanding that $50,000 be left at a designated spot.

"Do as we told you or the president will be abducted and something worse may happen to him," Ortiz Rubio's secretary told police the man said.

Authorities were told the man who made the threats on July 7 and yesterday spoke English. Jack Tillery, former deputy sheriff, who has been acting as Ortiz Rubio's bodyguard and secretary since the former president and his wife came here a year ago from Mexico, said he ordered additional guards placed about the residence in the Parkside district.

Tillery said Ortiz Rubio treated the first telephone threat lightly, but was more or less unnerved by yesterday's call. The ex-president underwent medical treatment in San Diego after he resigned and was succeeded as chief executive by Abelardo Rodriguez.

Police would not disclose the whereabouts of Ortiz Rubio today. Efforts to reach him at his home failed.

ROOSEVELT JR. FINDS PARIS FINE PLACE FOR SLEEP

PARIS, July 16.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., son of the American President, who arrived last week on a vacation trip from America, said today—reversing the usual experience of tourists—that he found his visit to Paris affording him an opportunity to catch up on his sleep. He described his stay in Paris, where he passes unnoticed, "as very vacationish."

Mrs. Roosevelt Visits Mrs. Taft.

MURRAY BAY, Que., July 16.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, on a vacation tour in Canada, called on Mrs. William Howard Taft, widow of the former President of the United States, during the week-end. Afterward she continued her motor trip eastward.

KIDNAPING PLOT TARGET GIVEN POLICE GUARD

Stockton, Cal., July 16.—(AP)—Object of a mistaken identity kidnap plot, W. Q. Wright, wealthy land owner, was given a police guard today.

The plot was revealed after E. T. Wiggins, 70, superintendent of Wright's land company, was released by kidnapers in northern California yesterday.

Wiggins was carried away in the belief he was Wright, police said. A note received at the land company's office demanded $50,000 for the release of "W. Q. Wright."

A state-wide search was started for the kidnapers.

FAMILY REFUSES AID OF POLICE IN RANSOM DEALS

Albany, N. Y., July 16.—(AP)—Ed and Dan O'Connell, politically powerful uncles of John J. O'Connell Jr., continued unshaken today in their belief that direct dealing with the persons who abducted the youth nine days ago will restore him to his family soon. The O'Connells yesterday rejected an offer of official aid and refused to assist District Attorney John T. Delaney.

The crisp statement of Dan, "We will not coöperate with the authorities," it is believed, will definitely convince the kidnapers the way is open for the payment of a ransom and the exchange of the young National Guard officer.

Since the boy was snatched early in the morning of July 7, the O'Connells, able through their political connections to turn loose an army of investigators, have relied on a personal deal with the gang. In their first contact with the kidnapers, a telephone call to Ed O'Connell's law office, the family was warned not to aid authorities. The boy's life would pay for their failure to observe this order, the voice said. A ransom of $250,000 was demanded.

Irked by the slowness of the family negotiations, Delaney yesterday complained because the O'Connell family would not aid him. Until the Delaney outburst virtually all of the officers on the case marked time in deference to the family's wishes.

Delaney has had the support of the O'Connells in his campaigns for the district attorneyship.

For the first time since young Johnny was stolen members of the family appeared in public today. The youth's mother and others of the clan attended mass, surrounded by a heavy police detail. Prayers were said at St. Ann's for the safe return of the youth. He was an altar and choir boy in that parish.

FIVE MILLIONTH VISITOR GREETED AT WORLD'S FAIR

Girl Achieves Honor by Being Late for Date.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Total attendance at the Fair passed the five million mark last night, 91 days after the opening on May 27. This placed the 1933 Exposition 3,300,000 visitors ahead of the Columbian Exposition of 1893 for the same number of days. At the old Fair the five million mark was reached on July 13, 74 days after the opening on May 1.

The five millionth visitor was Miss Majorie Fogg, 23 years old, 3945 North Crawford avenue, who became the honor guest for the day at the Fair because she was thirty minutes late for a date with Bill Hanley, a student at Northwestern university.

Party Given Free Tickets.

Accompanying Miss Fogg was a friend, Eleanor Smith, 20 years old, of Beloit, Wis. Hanley had a date with Miss Fogg for 9:45 p. m. but didn't criticize her for being late when he discovered that due to her tardiness the entire party were to be given free tickets to a majority of the concessions on the grounds. In addition, Miss Fogg was given an official World's Fair medal.

Attendance yesterday rolled up a record exceeded only by the July 3 and 4 figures, when special programs drew huge throngs. On July 3 the pageantry of Jewish day and the gigantic theatrical presentation in Soldiers' field drew a crowd of 244,472, the highest mark of the Exposition so far. The following day holiday crowds passed through the turnstiles in a steady stream to roll up the second largest day's attendance of 232,472.

At 10:10 o'clock last night the official attendance was 188,107, making the total of 5,000,000 paid admissions for the 51 days of the Fair.

Day's Total Above 192,000.

The final turnstile count taken at 11:30 p. m. last night showed total of 192,167 paid admissions during the day.

"We are delighted with the attendance," Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager, said; "but not alone with the grand total, or the way we are surpassing the old Fair, but by the manner in which the daily attendance is steadily increasing.

"Of course the special programs of the last week have had much to do with the attendance increase, but we also are certain that Chicago people are beginning to come to the Fair in larger numbers. This interest on the part of our own people will assure the success of the Exposition."

Clear Up Pass Nuisance.

Maj. Lohr last night cleared up a rapidly growing free pass nuisance after it had been brought to his attention by newspaper men. The situation was created by a misinterpreted order by the cashiers' division of the treasurer's department, which permitted free admission to the Fair to any one with a little nerve and the desire to get something for nothing.

In one case, it was learned yesterday, a pants presser was admitted as a working newspaperman. The pants presser presented as credentials a business card. On one side was printed: "We press everything," with the first and last words in small type and the "Press" in large red capital letters. The word "Press" got him in.

Enter on Police Cards.

Under the order all policemen, firemen and newspaper men, whether from Chicago or not, were admitted on their credentials. World's Fair passes for reporters were not necessary, the ordinary police press card providing admission. There are more than 1,400 of these "courtesy" cards in circulation in Chicago alone, and every town in the country has some like system.

Under the trust indenture, which provided $10,000,000 for the starting of the Fair, such pass privileges are not permitted. The trust provides passes only for officials, employés, and visiting dignitaries. Even working press passes must be paid for by the Fair. When this was pointed out to Maj. Lohr he immediately revoked the order and in a short time the gate crasher's paradise had ceased to exist.

Queen of Day Crowned.

Under the present system Chicago policemen and firemen, but not those from neighboring cities, are admitted on their credentials as city employés. Press cards, except for the bona fide ones issued by the Fair, are not good for admission.

Aside from the Italian flyers' program the highlight on yesterday's Fair presentation was the Lithuanian program. The ceremonies took place in the court of the Hall of Science, and on the floating theater in the lagoon. Singing, speeches, music and athletic events featured the day. As a part of the program Miss Eva Paulekiute was crowned as the queen of the Fair. Honor guest during the ceremonies was E. K. Balutis, Lithuanian minister to the United States.

BUS COMPANY TO BUILD STAIRS AT 3 FAIR GATES

Pedestrians Delaying Inner Drive Traffic.

The Chicago Motor Coach company yesterday agreed to build stairways to the World's Fair gates at 18th, 23d, and 31st streets so bus patrons will not have to cross the busy inner drive. The improvement probably will be in service within a week.

"The construction is of urgent necessity," said Otto Jelinek, traffic engineer for the south parks. "Pedestrians on this pavement are a major hazard. We have been lucky that no one has been killed. In addition to safety, traffic can be speeded.

Aids Soldiers' Field Crowds.

The stairs at 18th street, on the east side of the drive, will also be used by persons walking to Soldiers' field from the 18th street car line terminal, and from the Century Service corporation's parking lot just west of the drive, and from the Illinois Central station.

"This improvement at 18th street, said Mr. Jelinek, "will be a big help in handling large stadium crowds such as will attend THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves tournament on Aug. 2."

Pedestrians Cross at Grade.

At 23d street the new stairs, also on the east side of the drive, will remove another awkward and hazardous arrangement. Bus patrons from the south, going to the Fair, now have to cross busy pavements at grade to reach a pedestrian ramp on the viaduct over the Illinois Central tracks.

At 31st street, the new stairway will be built on the west side of the drive so bus patrons from the north will not have to cross the pavement at grade to reach the Fair.

CHICAGOLAND WEEK TO THRILL FAIR THRONGS

Hail to Lake Michigan!

Next in the procession of special days is Lake Michigan day in tribute to Lake Michigan itself. This friendly lake has staved off innumerable heat waves in summer, giving Chicago's millions enjoyable temperatures while all around the mercury stood near 100.

The vistor, passing through torrid areas en route here and finding moderate weather on his arrival in the city, soon learns what Lake Michigan means. In addition, Lake Michigan has given Chicago the finest and longest stretch of beach in the world.

Thus, the day has been set aside in honor of the lake. Water carnival will rule the day. There will be aquatic sports. There will be boat races, and seaplane races. There will be other water events of various description—and plenty of room for all to see.

State Street Opportunities.

Now comes State Street day. The big stores have already entered into a cooperative spirit of rivalry—cooperative in desiring to make the day a standout, and rivalry in a desire to offer the best opportunities to the people.

State street will be gayly decorated. The windows will show the latest styles in clothing. The thoroughfare, already recognized as the world's greatest street of stores, will be one vast panorama of attractions. And it is whispered the occasion may be designated as a bargain day extraordinary.

Friday, Aug. 18, will be Automobile day in recognition of America's greatest industry. Details of this day's program are nearing completion, and it may be safely said that the automobile world is preparing a splendid surprise for the motoring public—which means everybody.

Finally, the Music Festival.

Finally comes Music day to conclude Chicagoland week. The climax will be THE TRIBUNE'S annual Chicagoland Music Festival, with its marvelous choral groups and bands. This festival has been one of the outstanding annual events in Chicago. Each year it has packed huge Soldiers' field with music lovers. Each year more than 115,000 men, women and children have sat in the open listening to melody floating into the open night.

The Chicagoland Music Festival is the voice of great Chicagoland itself, singing in joyousness, while the ears and eyes of Chicagoland listen and see. Truly, a spectacle, and this year's festival, with the corps of musicians already enlisted, promises to excel previous presentations.

So there you have a suggestion of the eventful days that are coming next month, from Aug. 13 to Aug. 19, Chicagoland week. It's going to be a memorable week, one to be remembered for years by Chicago and Chicagoland. And it will all be part of A Century of Progress, Chicagoland's own contribution.

MOTHER OF FIVE DROWNS IN RIVER AT WAUKESHA

Waukesha, Wis., July 16.—[Special.]—The mother of five children was drowned in the Fox river here today while bathing with a woman companion. According to Coroner John Schaeffel she became exhausted attempting to prove to the companion how good a swimmer she really was.

The woman is Mrs. Ethel Carlson, 26. Her body was recovered after a three hours' search by John Martello and Max Kuhler, 50 feet from shore. The latter is a one legged swimming star.

Mrs. Carlson and Miss Sigrid Johnson, 2930 North First street, Milwaukee, went to an unsupervised beach in Frame park. Mrs. Carlson told her companion that she could easily swim to the center of the river and back again, but on her way back she called for help and went down. Gunnar Peterson, 1321 Cass street, Milwaukee, a spectator, attempted to reach the woman before she drowned but failed.

60,000 REAVOW LUTHER'S FAITH AT CONVENTION

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The vitality of Lutheran Christianity was again demonstrated yesterday in Soldiers' field. On this occasion, more than 60,000 assembled at the field to render homage to the Reformation faith. A few weeks ago nearly 50,000 persons assembled in the same field to affirm Lutheran doctrines which now hold more adherents in Chicago than any other Protestant church.

Yesterday's occasion marked the opening of the convention of the Walther league of the Evangelical Lutheran Missouri synod. Sessions will continue through most of the week at the Stevens hotel. Hundreds of delegates representing all sections of the country were present yesterday to witness the pageantry and to join in the great Reformation chorales.

Chorus of Thousands.

Prior to the opening of the great service, more than 1,000 children from Lutheran parochial schools of the city executed a perfectly timed and impressive flag drill. Following the drill, these children joined 2,000 other children and 4,000 adult singers selected from the 160 Lutheran choirs from the city and suburbs who assembled as a great chorus on the mammoth stage used first for the Jewish pageant, "The Romance of a People."

The keynote of the demonstration was sounded by the Rev. Erwin Umbach, executive secretary of the Walther league. He told the great throng that the answer to today's uncertainty and human boastfulness is Luther's Reformation hymn, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God, a Trusty Shield and Weapon."

"There is no saving hope for the world in a historic Christ when men confess their acceptance merely of the fact that a Jesus did live and die 1900 years ago," said the Rev. Mr. Umbach. "But there is unfailing hope to the soul when we confess with Luther: 'I believe that Jesus Christ, true God, begotten of the Father from eternity, and also true man, born of the Virgin Mary, is my Lord.'"

Sees Need for Definite Creed.

The Rev. J. S. Behnken of Houston, Tex., vice president of the synod, who spoke later on the program, asserted that a church must have a definite platform if it is to avoid becoming sterile. He said the creed of a church is its platform and that even those churches who deny adherence to any formulated creed have been creating a creed in their denials.

"Of all organizations under the sun," said the Rev. Mr. Behnken, "the church could be the very last to stand before the tribunal of public opinion without a definite platform of principles. A spineless church is repulsive and abominable."

MISS POPULARITY NAMED FOR FAIR'S POLISH FESTIVAL

Miss Caroline Law, 1642 West 21st place, a clerk in the federal internal revenue department, has been awarded the title of "Miss Popularity" in connection with the Polish celebration to be held at Soldiers' field next Saturday night.

She was selected in a contest involving the sale of tickets for the event. The ballots for the various contestants, of whom there were more than fifty, were counted yesterday, and the results announced last night by Leon C. Nyka, president of the Polish Day association.

As "Miss Popularity," Miss Law will ride at the head of a parade of 20,000 persons down Michigan avenue to the field. She will be escorted by maids of honor. The second and third maids of honor are, respectively, Miss Helen Rogowska, 2629 North Harding avenue, and Miss Loretta Gondek, 2135 Webster avenue. They were runners up to Miss Law.

FORECAST 2 TO 1 ARKANSAS VOTE FOR REPEAL LAW

State Has Clearly Shown Wet Sympathies.

Little Rock, Ark., July 16. — [Special.]—That Arkansas will vote to repeal the eighteenth amendment in the special election Tuesday seems a certainty on the eve of the state-wide referendum on national prohibition. Best guessers among the state's political prognosticators, regardless of their personal views on the prohibition issue, are agreed that the vote will be favorable to the repealists, perhaps by a majority of two to one.

Leaders in the repeal movement are claiming the state by even a larger majority. Spokesmen for the dry forces still are making public claims that their side will win, but privately some of them have admitted that prohibition is a lost cause even in this state long listed among the most arid sections of the world.

Under the provisions of the law enacted by the legislature the voters Tuesday will elect delegates to a convention to be held in Little Rock Aug. 8. Each county will choose between a wet and dry candidate, but the law provides that the convention shall cast its vote for or against repeal of the amendment upon the basis of the total popular vote in the state.

Arkansas has gone for the new 3.2 beer with a rush, although state law forbids its sale.

Repealists Confident in Alabama.

Birmingham, Ala., July 16.—[Special.]—With both wet and dry leaders claiming victory, a careful survey of the state on the eve of the repeal vote in Alabama Tuesday indicates that the state will go 2 to 1 for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

This margin was claimed by repealists before Postmaster General James Farley spoke at Memphis Saturday. After Farley's address wets in some sections of the state boosted the margin to 3 to 1. In Birmingham the betting is even money the state will vote wet 2 to 1, and that repealists will take Alabama by at least 40,000 votes.

Dry Orators Mass in Tennessee.

Nashville, Tenn., July 16.—[Special.]—Prohibition forces are climaxing their campaign in Tennessee by flooding the state with one thousand speakers tomorrow. Voters go to the polls Thursday.

There is no doubt in the minds of political leaders and newspaper men that this state is safely on the side of those who want the eighteenth amendment discontinued. Whether it will go for repeal by the narrow margin predicted by the conservative or by the 50,000 claimed by repeal leaders remains to be seen.

Oregon Conceded to Wets.

Portland, Ore., July 16.—[Special.]—That Oregon is certain to vote for repeal of the 18th amendment on Friday is a foregone conclusion in political circles here. Even the most ardent drys are only half hearted in claiming victory.

In addition to voting on federal repeal on Friday, the Oregon voters will also consider abrogating the prohibition amendment to the state constitution. Federal repeal is expected to carry state repeal along with it.

HOYNE BROTHERS MARK 90TH AND 79TH BIRTHDAYS

Thomas Maclay Hoyne, Chicago's oldest practicing attorney, and his brother, Frank G. Hoyne, held an advance celebration yesterday of their birthday anniversaries today, when Thomas Hoyne will be 90 years old and his brother 79.

The younger brother played a round of golf in the morning. The elder gave up golf about two years ago, but still goes to his Chicago office daily. He lives at 561 Surf street.

The celebration was held on the lawn of Frank Hoyne's home in Highland Park. With them was their sister, Mrs. Clifford Williams, 85 years old, of Glencoe. Another sister, Mrs. Gertrude Wells, the "baby" of the family, lives at the Hyde Park hotel.

HUTTON CABLES AIMEE $400 AND SAYS COME HOME

Los Angeles, Cal., July 16.—(AP)—David L. Hutton Jr. has cabled his Evangelist wife, Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton, $400 to return to the United States from Paris in the hope of clearing up a marital situation which has him "very much perplexed."

He was silent on a report divorce was considered.

Contradictory plans and mental attitudes his wife has exhibited in cablegrams to Angelus temple officials, Hutton said, had created a "difficult situation" for him.

"I wonder if I married just Aimee or the whole temple," mused the baritone.

Hutton declined to comment on a copyrighted article in the Los Angeles Examiner saying negotiations were under way between the couple for a Mexican divorce.

Willedo Andrews, attorney for Mrs. McPherson-Hutton, was quoted by the Examiner as saying he had conferred with Vincent Riccardi, a specialist in Mexican divorces, but that their discussion was of a "confidential and unprivileged" nature.

Hutton revealed he had received a message from is wife asking, "Are you coming over or shall I return?"

"It is very important that you return at once," Hutton cabled in reply, and sent the money order. "Important matters require your presence here. I am not coming over."

Hutton said "she has never urged me to go there in a direct communication like this."

"I'm tired of having such requests relayed to me by temple people. There must be a reason for such methods. Just the other day temple officials called my mother's home and later called me, urging me to go to Paris at once."

Mrs. McPherson-Hutton is in France with her nurse, Miss Bernice Middleton, and her daughter, Mrs. Roberta Semple Smythe. She recently underwent an operation in Paris.

FANNY MITCHELL RENO TRIP MAY SOLVE TRIANGLE

New York, July 16.—[Special.]—A new shopping excursion to Reno, where Fanny Todd Mitchell, Broadway playwright, only last September picked up a divorce and a new husband, will be undertaken by the blonde author of stage successes this week.

Miss Mitchell, a native of St. Louis, who freed herself in the Nevada divorce mecca last fall from Leon Leonidoff, Russian ballet director of the Radio City Music hall, after naming Frances (Peaches) Browning as one of her hubby's girl friends, now plans to abrogate her marriage in Reno soon afterward to Seymour Woolner, former Peoria, Ill., distillery millionaire.

Cole Harwood, Reno divorce lawyer, it was revealed in dispatches today, has been retained by the playwright, who engaged Bernard H. Snadler, New York attorney, to advise her locally before she departed for Nevada.

Reports from Reno today also stated that negotiations were under way for calling off a series of suits that grew out of the Leonidoff-Mitchell-Woolner triangle.

Woolner, now a resident of New York, sued Leonidoff for $250,000 alienation damages last January, charging that Miss Mitchell had transferred her heart interest back to the ballet director. Leonidoff earlier had filed an alienation suit against the erstwhile South Peoria whisky and dry gin manufacturer, pricing the playwright's love at $600,000. Both actions still are pending.

Feber, chairman of the board of the Gridley Dairy company. Fred Carberry led the singing.

TAXES SOAR 185 PER CENT UNDER HOAN REGIME

Petitions for Recall Are Ready for Signers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., July 16.—[Special.]—Milwaukee property taxes have increased 185 per cent in the 17 years since Daniel Hoan was elected mayor. The population in the same years has increased 39 per cent and the city's bonded debt has increased 195 per cent.

The percentages are from a tax table prepared for THE TRIBUNE by R. O. Wipperman, Wisconsin tax expert, and were received from him just as the announcement was being made of the organization of a group to seek the recall of the city's executive on the charge that he is completely out of harmony with the current modern movement to reduce public expenditures.

Heads Recall Council.

The new organization is the Recall council of which Leonard Grass is chairman. It was announced that petitions will be circulated at once for the recall election.

Mr. Whipperman has broken down his tax analysis to show the per cent of increase for each of the main divisions for which local taxes are levied. The tax for city purposes ranks first in point of actual money increase, although the tax for county purpose shows the largest percentage of increase.

The city taxes grew from $7,652,927 in the 1916 levy to $20,587,113 in the 1932 levy to be collected this year, an increase of 169 per cent.

Purposes of Levies.

The purposes and the amounts for which the 1932 levy was made were:

General city purposes	$ 5,189,013.40
Firemen's pension	310,000.00
Policemen's pension	330,000.00
Public school	4,872,795.00
School repair	842,384.00
Trade school	499,729.00
School extension	345,542.00
School construction	919,294.23
Industrial education	935,000.00
Sewerage	557,409.60
Tax deficit
Tax readjustment	150,000.00
Delinquent tax
Principal on funded debt	3,518,652.48
Interest on funded debt	2,117,293.96
Total	$20,587,813.67

The county taxes increased from $2,034,929 to $9,248,915, a growth of 354 per cent. This is the money raised for general county government, protection of property and person, health and sanitation, charities and corrections, highways and bridges, education, recreation, public debt, and miscellaneous expenditures.

Expenditures for County.

Expenditures for Milwaukee county government increased from $33.70 per family of five persons in 1916 to $85.42 for the same sized family in 1930.

On July 1, 1933, there was $7,675,750 of the 1932 tax levy delinquent and $4,292,062.47 delinquent extended, a total of $11,967,812 of this year's property tax unpaid. Total accumulated tax certificates held by the city on that date were $17,125,371.47.

The recall fight, Mr. Grass said, is to be waged on the basis of tax increases and the unwillingness of the mayor to adopt a policy of vigorous reduction in public expenditure.

Police Find Couple Beaten on Floor of Beer Tavern

Police yesterday found a man and woman beaten nearly to insensibility, lying on the floor of a beer tavern of Charles Crane at 916 North Wells street. The victims were Mrs. Elenor Wolf, 27 years old, 1049 Foster avenue, and James Weir, 38 years old, 1312 Byron street. Mrs. Wolf lapsed into unconsciousness at the county hospital. Weir said he did not know her. He and she were attacked by a man, also unknown to him, when he entered the place late Saturday, he said. Crane is being sought.

DALADIER, HITLER, MUSSOLINI HAIL NEW PEACE ERA

See European Amity Under 4 Power Act.

ROME, July 16.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini today replied to a message from Premier Edouard Daladier of France congratulating Il Duce on the four-power peace pact signed yesterday by the Italian premier and representatives of Germany, France, and Great Britain.

Il Duce's message read:

"The cordial cooperation of the French government and your personal aid constituted a valuable contribution to the pact negotiations, which were conducted in a great spirit of comprehension of the pact's objective and the problems which it should meet and solve. I share your excellency's belief regarding the results of amity to our countries which the pact achieved."

Replies to Hitler.

Premier Daladier, after recalling the Italian initiative which led to the agreement, had declared: "I wish to express my confidence in the happy results of the pact for collaboration and understanding which it will undoubtedly achieve for the amity of the two countries as well as for all nations."

Replying to a message from Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany, made public today, in which the chancellor attributed the pact to Premier Mussolini's initiative, Il Duce said he considered that Hitler's understanding "of the objectives of my initiative" was one of the fundamental reasons for the pact's success.

Hitler's Message.

Chancellor Adolf Hitler's message of congratulations to Mussolini said: "Signature of the four power pact affords me a welcome opportunity to convey warm congratulations on a treaty cementing the friendship of the two countries, happily concluded after difficult negotiations thanks to your excellency's statesmanlike initiative. In the present grave world situation this willingness of the four powers to agree and cooperate is a ray of hope in the life of European peoples."

SPHINX TO TOP MUSEUM AT OLD PORTER MANSION

Family Heir Discusses $300,000 Project.

order in the Superior court, after an out of court settlement, directing Porter to retransfer the property within ten days.

It was to this family mansion that Porter brought his bride, the former Signe Dorothea Berg-Hansen, member of one of Denmark's first families, after their marriage abroad in 1919. He met the Danish society girl at a court function when he was secretary to the American legation in Denmark. In 1920 she went home to Denmark to her father, and in 1922 Porter obtained a divorce here.

Striking Contrast in Buildings.

In striking contrast to the huge, old fashioned mansion is the smaller building nearing completion to the east. Glass domes, glass tiles in floors and ceilings, and enormous windows, as well as a system of terraces, provide all the light which Mr. Porter craves.

The building is 115 feet long and 40 feet at its widest part. It is connected to the obelisk entrance way by means of an "arcade," two terrace sidewalks which extend, one above the other, from the tower to the north and south entrances of the building proper.

All the steelwork of the 150 foot tower is complete. It will be covered over with limestone. Entering from the east the visitor will step through the tower entrance gate, which is to be 28 feet 9 inches high.

Ship's Ladder to Top.

He may walk through, coming out on the upper level of the arcade, which surrounds a sunken garden lying between the obelisk and the building proper, or he may ascend a spiral staircase to a height of 62 feet above the grade level. For the hardy visitor who desires to ascend to the top of the obelisk a ship's ladder will be provided.

Forty-three feet above the grade level a terrace platform juts from the obelisk. From here the visitor will be able to look down at a series of three cascades of water falling from the west wall of the obelisk into a star shaped pool in the sunken garden which will hold 4,200 gallons of water. It will be pumped back in a recirculating system. The uppermost basin will be 33 feet above the garden.

The upper sidewalk is ornamented by wrought iron borders and a series of twenty-one stone vases which, like the building, Mr. Porter designed.

Some of the vases, which also are used on the second floor level dancing terrace, required 41 cubic feet of stone. All contain growing evergreens, roses, or other plants.

Varying Heights and Levels.

The building is of varying heights and levels. The extreme west end, which is finished in limestone and fancy brick work, is three stories high, and is topped by a roof garden. The center is two stories high and the eastern end contains, besides the grotto floor, a huge room, the exterior of limestone, whose long windows overlook the sunken garden, in which several hundred evergreens now are growing. Its roof forms the open air dancing terrace.

One of the three rooms on the first floor is the fountain room. A marble fountain 9 feet high, one of the many priceless treasures in Mr. Porter's art collection, is to be set in a glass basin. An opening in the room above permits the fountain to be visible there. This second floor room is the conservatory.

The Chinese gallery is on the second floor. This will contain the bronzes, cloisonné collection, and other Chinese art objects of Porter. Elsewhere in the building are the Venetian dome room, to be used for musicals, Mr. Porter said, and the "Egyptian den," on the third floor.

Pink Marble for Shower Bath.

In the western part of the building is a suite of three rooms which Porter will use as living quarters for himself and a small kitchen and bar. In the shower bath he will use a huge slab of marble from Spain whose warm pink is necessary to carry out the color scheme, he said.

To add to his art collection Porter toured Egypt and Africa in the spring and winter of 1931, he said, returning with many treasures, among which he especially values the marble sarcophagus of a pharaoh.

Mr. Porter Sr. died in 1922 at the age of 79 years. Born in Boone county, Ill., remaining on a farm until he was 16 years old, he enlisted and served as a private under Grant. In 1865 he was mustered out and four years later shipped the first carload of fruit into Chicago, making a fortune before the World's Fair, in which he was a director.

ELKS WILL PARADE IN MILWAUKEE AFTER YEARLY ELECTION

Milwaukee, Wis., July 16.—(AP)—Elkdom's legions moved into Milwaukee today and with a genial "Hello, Bill," took over the downtown district and the lake front park area, there to rule for the five day grand lodge convention of their order, B. P. O. Elks.

They launched immediately into a round of merriment, to be broken at intervals with brief business sessions. The festivities will be climaxed Thursday with a prosperity parade. Grand lodge officers will be elected Tuesday.

The visitors found the city's principal streets archways of gay bunting in which the national colors and the purple and white of the organization predominated. Lamp posts were hidden by huge, grotesque figures which drew many a laugh.

Juneau park was transformed into an Indian village, where Wisconsin tribesmen engaged in ceremonial dances.

The convention will be formally opened tomorrow night with a public meeting to be presided over by Grand Exalted Ruler Floyd E. Thompson of Moline, Ill.

FILIPINOS URGE POPULAR VOTE ON FREEDOM BILL

Assembly to Begin 100 Day Session Today.

MANILA, P. I., July 16.—(AP)—On the eve of the opening tomorrow of the annual hundred day session of the insular legislature, advocates of Philippine independence paraded tonight and then rallied at an open air meeting.

The demonstrators adopted a memorial urging that a plebescite be held on the question of adoption or rejection of the Hawes-Cutting independence act, passed by the United States congress over the veto of former President Hoover. Police estimated the crowd at about 60,000. Opponents of the independence act plan a demonstration after the preliminary session opens at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Say Quezon Satisfied.

Manuel Roxas, speaker of the house of representatives, and Sergio Osmena, president pro tem. of the senate, conferred at length today with Manuel Quezon, president of the senate.

After the conference it was widely reported that Quezon, opponent of the independence measure, was satisfied and had decided not to press his recently announced move to oust Roxas and Osmena, who have supported the act, from their legislative poses.

Osmena, at the aceptance rally tonight, said that Quezon, whose supporters claimed a clear majority in the senate and house, pledged himself weeks ago as agreeing to permit a popular vote on the independence measure.

Opposes Exports Clause.

Osmena, at the acceptance rally today, declared opposition to the Hawes-Cutting act on provisions which would retain exports to the United States during a ten year transition period that would precede complete independence.

The first order of business at tomorrow's opening session will be the message of Governor General Frank Murphy. Legislative leaders said they expected both houses would recess until Wednesday after receiving the message. The executive committee of the Nacionalista party will meet Tuesday.

BABY UNINJURED AS AUTO TURNS OVER TWO TIMES

Edmore, Mich., July 16.—[Special.]—A baby whose clothes were torn from its body in an automobile collision tonight escaped unhurt. Three other persons were injured. The automobile containing the child turned over twice, injuring the mother, Mrs. Walter Cook, and two daughters, 6 and 12 years old.

Attendants at Edmore hospital, where they were taken, said they could not find a scratch on the infant. The accident occurred on M-46 east of here. Cook was driving his family. Archie Mumby, the other car driver, escaped unhurt.

I learned about "Toasting" from my husband

I used to think that "Toasting" was just an advertising phrase. But one day my husband explained to me what "Toasting" is—and what it does. Where he learned it all, I don't know, but I began to understand the difference in cigarettes. Now I find myself enjoying Luckies' mildness and fine taste with a new respect. But even more—since I am a woman quite sensitive to personal daintiness—and since my cigarette and my lips are so intimately related, I especially appreciate the comforting purity of "Toasting". Naturally, with me it's always "Luckies Please!"

HULL EMERGES FROM PARLEY AS REAL DIPLOMAT

Ranks as Leader in World Affairs.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 16.—Among the 160 delegates to the world economic conference the outstanding figures are America's secretary of state, Cordell Hull, James Middleton Cox, former governor of Ohio, and Great Britain's prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald, and its chancellor of the exchequer, Neville Chamberlain.

A matter of widespread comment in and about the conference is the commanding place Mr. Hull has won for himself in the deliberations and negotiations of the conclave. He came into the circle of world statesmen virtually unknown and untried. Within a month he won universal respect and confidence through the unfolding of his character, through his frankness and fairness, and through his devotion to the ideal of international cooperation amid all the mishaps that made that ideal impossible of realization at this conference.

Astonishes Statesmen.

Though a tyro in the arts of diplomacy, Mr. Hull astonished the veterans in international negotiations by the manner in which he handled himself in delicate situations, by his success in pressing his views under difficult conditions, and by his extrication of the American delegation from the embarrassments created by President Roosevelt's reversal of policies.

By his resourcefulness and quickness to seize the advantage he routed even MacDonald when the British prime minister was moving to suspend the conference with the blame thrown on the United States. Mr. Hull alone averted a bust up that would have rendered impossible any resumption of this conference and given a setback to international cooperation generally.

To the extent the secretary of state has failed to achieve the objectives with which he set out for London, he is the victim, it is generally recognized, of the subsequent change in the Roosevelt administration policies, whether they be for the good of all the American nation. From the conception of international cooperation with which Mr. Roosevelt approached and promoted the London conference, the President veered sharply after Mr. Hull's departure to a policy of intense nationalism brought about by the theretofore dimly, if not wholly, unperceived implications of his program of inflation, price raising, and government control of industry and agriculture.

Run Over by Juggernaut.

This policy conflicted sharply with currency stabilization, restoration of the gold standard, tariff reductions, and other aims of the world conference. Hull was run over by the Roosevelt administration juggernaut clearing the way for the new economic system, partly fascistic and partly communistic, with the more radical tendencies of which his conservative mind is reputed to be out of sympathy.

Outside of these two American and two British commanding figures in the conference, Maxim Litvinov, soviet Russia's foreign commissar, probably is the most interesting personality on the scene. He is commonly regarded as the best politician at the gathering. This smallish, rotund man, untidy in appearance, with mocking eyes and a cynical smile, who loves good eating, good drinking, and a good story, came to London like most of the delegates except the American with a market basket on his arm. He began trading as soon as he got here and did quite a brisk business for the soviets.

He negotiated lifting of the British embargo on Russian imports in consideration of the release of the two British engineers convicted last March of sabotage and he is now negotiating a new trade treaty with Britain. He concluded nonaggression treaties with Czechoslovakia, Rumania, Jugo-Slavia, Esthonia, Poland, Turkey, Latvia, Persia, and Afghanistan.

Bids for Credit.

He made a speech to the conference which was almost wholly a bid for the purchase of one billion dollars' worth of merchandise from other countries—on long time credit, of course—and soon was able to announce with intense satisfaction that America was not afraid to take a chance, the Reconstruction Finance corporation having made Russia a loan of 20 million dollars to buy American cotton.

Litvinov also, in conference with Prof. Raymond Moley, assistant secretary of state, put in some good licks for American recognition of the soviet government and now wears a most contented smile. He thinks he has reason to believe American recognition will be accorded at a not distant date.

The official head of the French delegation is Premier Edouard Daladier, who, however, went home the first week, leaving in his place Georges Bonnet, finance minister. But the overshadowing figure in the French delegation is squat, chunky Prof. Charles Rist, financial expert for the government and the Bank of France, whose mandarin mustache gives his countenance an oriental cast.

Rist Is Master Mind.

And a veritable "Pooh Bah" is Rist in the French delegation and to an extraordinary degree in the European world of finance. Bonnet, though finance minister, never makes a move in the conference without the approval of Rist, who up to 1926 was a professor of economics at the Sorbonne. In the financial crisis of that year he was drafted as a member of the French "brain trust" to plan the devaluation of the franc and not long afterward was made a deputy governor of the French central bank.

Prof. Rist has reorganized the finances of Rumania, Austria, Poland, and Czechoslovakia. So influential is his opinion on the continent that if he so much as breathes doubt of the capacity of the finance minister of a nation, particularly a nation in the French hegemony, that official is doomed to early retirement.

Among the British dominion delegates the outstanding figure is ruddy faced, white bearded Gen. Jan Christian Smuts of South Africa, soldier, philosopher, and economist who, born a Boer, was conquered by Britain and lived to become more British than the British themselves.

Invented Mandate System.

At the Paris peace conference he invented the mandate system of the league of nations covenant which enabled the British and French to take over the colonies and other territory of the central powers without actual annexation. He told the conference that the Lausanne decision [July, 1932] to reduce German reparations payments 90 per cent contingent upon America reducing war debts commensurately "placed the responsibility where it rightly belonged, on the shoulders of the United States."

But the United States, he said, had failed to fall in line and in consequence had suffered economic collapse.

WHERE CLUB OWNER WAS SHOT BY GUNMEN

OWNER OF NIGHT CLUB NEAR DEATH, SHIELDS GUNMEN

Shot in Dawn Ambush on South Side.

The usual gangland reticence confronted police in their investigation yesterday of the shooting of Al Strook, 33 years old, part owner of the Jeffery tavern, a roadhouse at 8301 South Chicago avenue. Strook, who is well known to the police as a hoodlum, was shot by two men in front of the roadhouse at dawn yesterday.

Physicians at the South Shore hospital ordered a blood transfusion in an effort to save his life. Although told that he probably was dying, Strook refused to talk to police.

Gunmen Threaten Guard.

Strook left the roadhouse about 3 a. m. At 5 o'clock three men in a green limousine drove up. All guests had departed and Sam Nedohon, Negro, a watchman and porter, who lives in the rear, was alone.

"Where's Al?" one of the men asked. When told he had left, they demanded Strook's home address Nedohon said he did not know it.

The men were about to depart when Strook returned, driving up to the side entrance of the tavern with a companion. The two men met him on the sidewalk under a canopy and fired two shots, one bullet piercing Strook's stomach and the other missing him.

Strook's Companion Flees.

Strook's unidentified companion hastily drove away and the two gunmen jumped into their car and fled. The porter obtained the license number on their car, but the plates had been issued to the address of a repair shop.

A description of the assailants was given to the police by Nedohon and Mrs. Sarah Rooney, 2014 E. 83d street, who saw them escape, but it was meager.

John Moroney, partner of Strook, was questioned and said he knew of no reason for the attempted killing. Police continued to hunt for a motive, recalling the late Ted Newberry's celebrated remark, "They don't kill 'em for nothing."

Wife Blames Robbers.

Last night Mrs. Florence Strook asserted her husband had been the victim of robbers and that his diamond stickpin and $60 were missing when he was taken to the hospital. She said several witnesses heard the men announce "this is a stick up," just before they started shooting.

Following an operation last night surgeons said Strook had a chance to recover.

The Jeffery tavern was bombed last December, supposedly either bacause of beer or slot machine trouble. It was raided by a hoodlum squad a few months ago and a slot machine seized. It was refused a license by the police department on the ground that it was a hangout for criminals but has been operating under an injunction issued by Judge Joseph B. David.

LEHMAN WILL CALL EXTRA SESSION FOR NEW YORK'S RELIEF

Albany, N. Y., July 16.—(AP)—Gov. Lehman announced today he will call a special session of the legislature to authorize New York City to levy additional taxes for relief purposes. He has not yet fixed the date for the session.

He made the announcement in connection with a letter he wrote to the New York City board of estimate and apportionment which last week petitioned him to summon the legislature to help the city raise unemployment relief funds.

"It is my intention to recommend to the legislature that instead of levying special state-wide taxes, it grant to the city of New York authority to levy additional taxes approved by the legislature, the proceeds of which are to be segregated and earmarked exclusively for home and work relief, and to be effective only to March 1, 1934, at which time the regular legislature of 1934 will be in session," the governor wrote.

In declining to recommend a state-wide tax, the governor explained that "I am frankly placing the responsibility for the securing of funds directly on the municipality where it belongs."

The governor urged the city to make further reductions in its budget to improve municipal credit.

Parents Too Strict, Girl Tries to Drown in Lake

Rose De Cook, 17 years old, 2816 Fletcher street, twice attempted to end her life yesterday in the lake near Oak street beach. Edward Agnew, a life guard, saw her jump in the first time and rescued her. As police were taking her away she tried to jump in again. She said she was despondent because her parents were too strict.

SMALLER PER CENT OF WOMEN WORKING NOW THAN IN 1913

Philadelphia, Pa., July 16.—[Special.]—The proportion of women wage earners was greater 20 years ago than it is today despite the popular belief to the contrary, according to the Philadelphia advisory council of the state employment service. This is true not only in Philadelphia but in the country as a whole, the council said today in a statement based upon a survey of working trends made by the industrial research department of the University of Pennsylvania. There has been no increase either in the relation of the women workers to the total working population or in their relation to the total number of women, according to the survey.

"COME BACK" WEEK STARTS IN CLEVELAND, O.

Cleveland, O., July 16. — (AP) — The flags are out, the signs and the bunting have gone up, and today a million Clevelanders swung into a celebration of "comeback week."

It will be a week of concentrated effort to drive away the depression "hang-over." In proclaiming the event, Mayor Ray T. Miller declared: "We want a happy city, a courageous city, whose people have forgotten the past and are looking only to the future."

"Minute men" will tell of Cleveland's progress at a series of luncheons this week. Their theme is: "Business is better in Cleveland." Stores in the downtown section and the outlying business centers have arranged special window displays.

The merits of the city of the vacation center will be stressed, partly through special maps being prepared for presentation to all visitors. These maps will show the points of interest, with sketches typifying activities in various locations.

Council to Pre-View Movie Inspired by Cermak's Life

Members of the city council will be given a pre-view of the movie "The Man Who Dared" tomorrow in the council chambers following a meeting of the committee on police and municipal institutions. The movie, which was inspired by the career of the late Mayor Cermak, will have its world premiere in Chicago early in August, according to Balaban & Katz officials. The picture deals with Illinois and Chicago, picturing half a century of the city's history. Many of the characters represent persons with whom the aldermen were acquainted. A private showing was given to members of the Cermak family last week by the Fox Film corporation.

COUNCIL TO OPEN AUTO THEFT TOLL QUIZ TOMORROW

Racket Takes $10,000,000 Yearly in Chicago.

The theft of automobiles in Chicago has grown into a racket which takes $10,000,000 annually from the pockets of the city's motorists, provides 200,000 thieves, fences, and other crooks with livelihood, and supplies criminals with their most important transportation for all types of violence.

These facts, disclosed by surveys made by crime fighting agencies, will be the basis of an investigation to be started tomorrow by a city council committee. The committee will hear evidence concerning the conditions under which the auto theft racket flourishes.

Records of the police department made available yesterday disclosed that from Jan. 1, 1928, until last July 1 a total of 143,740 automobiles were stolen within Chicago's city limits. The total value of this property amounted to $85,972,250. A large percentage of these machines was recovered, though many of them had been stripped of parts. Allowing for recoveries and salvage, the monetary loss to their owners amounted to $42,986,000.

Highest Insurance Rates in History.

A year by year record of Chicago's tribute to automobile thieves since 1928 shows that the "industry" has increased 100 per cent in that period. The tabulations explain why automobile insurance theft charges in Chicago have rocketed until they are the highest in the history of the insurance writers and several hundred times as large as insurance charges in cities as near by as Milwaukee or Indianapolis.

Costs of the racket are not confined to swollen insurance premiums and to direct losses through thefts, however. Police officials say that motorists are duped to the tune of another $2,000,000 a year by crooked garage owners who buy stolen parts and install them in making repairs while charging car owners for brand new parts.

Subjoined is a tabulation of automobiles stolen since 1928 and their average value as computed for each year by insurance experts who had available in making their calculations the record of every theft in Chicago:

Year.	Stolen Cars.	Average Value.
1928	17,932	$720
1929	16,435	730
1930	22,048	700
1931	37,776	625
1932	34,789	575
1933 [six months].	14,760	580

The insurance people explain that the comparatively high average value of the stolen automobiles is due to the fact that thieves usually take new machines. They say that fences refuse to deal in aged goods or in parts which have been subjected to hard use.

Shows Magnitude of Racket.

These tables, with the accompanying calculations of the aggregate value of property which passes through the hands of automobile thieves each twelve months reveal the magnitude of the practice of stealing automobiles.

The full scope of the racket is not apparent to observers who spend a day in the municipal courts or the criminal courts where automobile thieves are tried. Such trials tend to convey an erroneous impression that the racketeers operate in a haphazard manner.

Often the prisoners are mere boys, 13, 14, and 15 years old. Many are between 16 to 20 years of age. Most of them were arrested in stolen cars or seized as they were about to steal automobiles. Some of them were taken into custody at their homes where stores of stolen tires or accessories ranging from windshield wipers and mirrors to complete motors, wheels, radios, radiators, hub caps, etc., were found.

All of them plead for probation, say that they were going to sell the stolen articles, or the complete automobiles, to some one else. Most of the prisoners say that men they had met on the streets offered to buy the stolen goods.

Real Racketeers Avoid Risks.

The complete picture of the organized theft racket becomes visible only when it is explained by insurance representatives or by policemen such as Lieut. John M. Kelley, head of the stolen automobile section of the detective bureau.

The thieves are not carefully organized as are the gangsters who operate the alcohol or gambling syndicates. They are usually just such youths as those mentioned as appearing in the courts. In most cases they alone come into contact with the police.

The racketeers who reap the real profits run few of the risks and remain in the background are the crooked second hand parts dealers and the crooked garage owners. These men are directly responsible for the automobile thefts because they create a market for automobiles and parts which otherwise would be of almost no value to thieves.

Lieut. Kelley says that the racket grew slowly in Chicago when a few second hand parts dealers discovered that it was extremely profitable to buy their parts from boys who had stolen them from parked cars. In the early days of the racket the "real money" was in stealing complete automobiles and in selling them for a small part of their real value.

No Longer Sell Whole Auto.

The low prices of stolen cars created a market until state laws were passed which place the purchaser of a stolen automobile in much the same legal standing as the thief. Then followed the practice of altering motor numbers and selling cars. Police evolved methods of detecting changed numbers. Eventually the stealing of cars for the sale of the whole machines was abandoned by the thieves.

Now cars are stolen to be stripped, even of seat cushions and window glass, sometimes of the whole motor. Then the shell of the machine is abandoned in an alley.

The parts are disposed of much more readily than are the complete machines. For the thieves the ready value of automobile parts is due to the fact that they are unnumbered and are unidentifiable.

Failure to Number Parts.

The refusal of automobile manufacturers to number all the parts of the automobiles which are assembled at their factories is a trump card in the hand of the automobile parts thief.

Once stripped from an auto, parts are sold to fences—the persons who make a business of buying stolen goods and selling them at a profit. The fence is the "middleman" of the underworld. The fence, in turn, sells the parts to second hand dealers or to garage owners. Many times the thief himself sells his stolen parts to the stores and garages, eliminating the fence.

'FUR' SAMMONS IS BACK IN JAIL HERE FOR TRIAL

Heavily Guarded on Trip from Kansas City.

James "Fur" Sammons, he of the nervous trigger finger whom Chief of Detectives Schoemaker calls a "stir crazy" machine gun murderer, was brought back to Chicago yesterday by six detectives of the state's attorney's office, and guarded by two additional squads.

Caught in Kansas City.

Sammons disappeared following his release from prison on orders of Judge Edward D. Shurtleff of McHenry county and until his arrest last week in Kansas City, Mo., police had found no trace of him.

So dangerous is Sammons considered that the Kansas City authorities gave the Chicago police two armored cars with which to take their prisoner to Fort Madison, Ia. Then he was taken from a train at Joliet and the journey to Chicago made with adequate protection against any rescue attempt.

Disguises Appearance.

The notorious ex-convict, who was once sentenced to death for murder and then freed after serving 20 years in prison, had shaved his mustache, dyed his hair black, and was wearing glasses and collegiate clothing. He turned over $8,500 in cash to his attorney, W. W. Smith, and three diamonds worth $10,000. He came back to Chicago willingly, to avoid being sent to Maryland for a payroll robbery.

He will be arraigned this morning on two reinstated charges of assault with intent to commit murder.

URGE ROOSEVELT TO RENAME JUDGE PURDY IN CHINA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, July 16.—The American chamber of commerce here and the American Far Eastern Bar association have sent recommendations to President Roosevelt urging the reappointment of Judge Milton D. Purdy as judge of the United States court for China. His term expires next April.

Judge Purdy, who was originally appointed here in 1924, was formerly assistant attorney general in Washington, D. C. He is a native of Minneapolis. Politically Judge Purdy is a progressive Republican who took part in the Theodore Roosevelt Bull Moose movement.

Elements sponsoring Judge Purdy's reappointment stress his familiarity with the peculiar conditions prevailing here under Sino-American extraterritorial treaties which are scheduled for revision shortly.

GIRL WIFE SOLD INTO MARRIAGE, SHE TELLS COURT

Husband Confirms Story of $300 Purchase.

Circuit Judge Benjamin P. Epstein is expected today to annul the marriage of Kasper Felder, 27 years old, 5144 Ainslie street, and Marion Fisher, 18 years old, 4327 North Kenneth avenue. The judge announced that testimony given by the girl last Saturday will be embodied in the decree, although the annulment was sought by Felder.

The girl testified that she was sold to Felder by her stepfather for $300 and that she was given whisky on the morning of her marriage so that she did not know what she was doing. Felder in his plea merely said that they were married last December and that his wife had refused to live with him. During the proceedings the wife appeared suddenly in court, stating she had just learned of the action.

Girl's Story in Court.

"I never met Felder until two days before the marriage," she told Judge Epstein. "About Dec. 15, my stepfather said he had found a young man for me who was going to pay him money on our marriage. I thought he was joking and laughed.

"On Dec. 29, I was introduced to Felder, but nothing was said of marriage. The next day we went to a show with my mother and stepfather. When I got up the morning of Dec. 31, my mother gave me a drink of whisky. It made my mind a blank for several hours. I can only remember that about noon I was standing in the middle of a street with an automobile approaching me.

"I leaped to the curb and went home. There I was told that Felder and I had been married after going to the county building to get a license. I said there must be some mistake. My stepfather told me he would throw me down the steps if I did not go with Felder.

"I ran away from home. I never saw Felder again until I came to court just now. I would have tried to get the marriage annulled but I have no money. I hate Felder and never want to see him again."

Felder said the girl's story was true. Asked what his employment was, Felder told the judge he had not worked for two years. He said he had once farmed in Wisconsin after coming to this country from Germany four years ago. He said he received money from his mother to pay to his wife's stepfather.

ANTI-MACHINERY CAMPAIGN GAINS IN BUENOS AIRES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, July 16.—When a Buenos Aires cigaret manufacturer, seeking a striking advertisement, announced that he was temporarily scrapping his packing machines in order to provide work for several hundred women packers, he unwittingly gave impetus to an "anti-machinery" movement which is daily gaining ground in the city.

Some of his competitors felt constrained to follow suit and to draw public attention to their self-sacrificing efforts to combat unemployment.

The idea also appealed to the workers in other trades. The result is that labor union officials are now reading all available technocrat literature in order to present as strong a case as possible to employers possessing labor saving machinery.

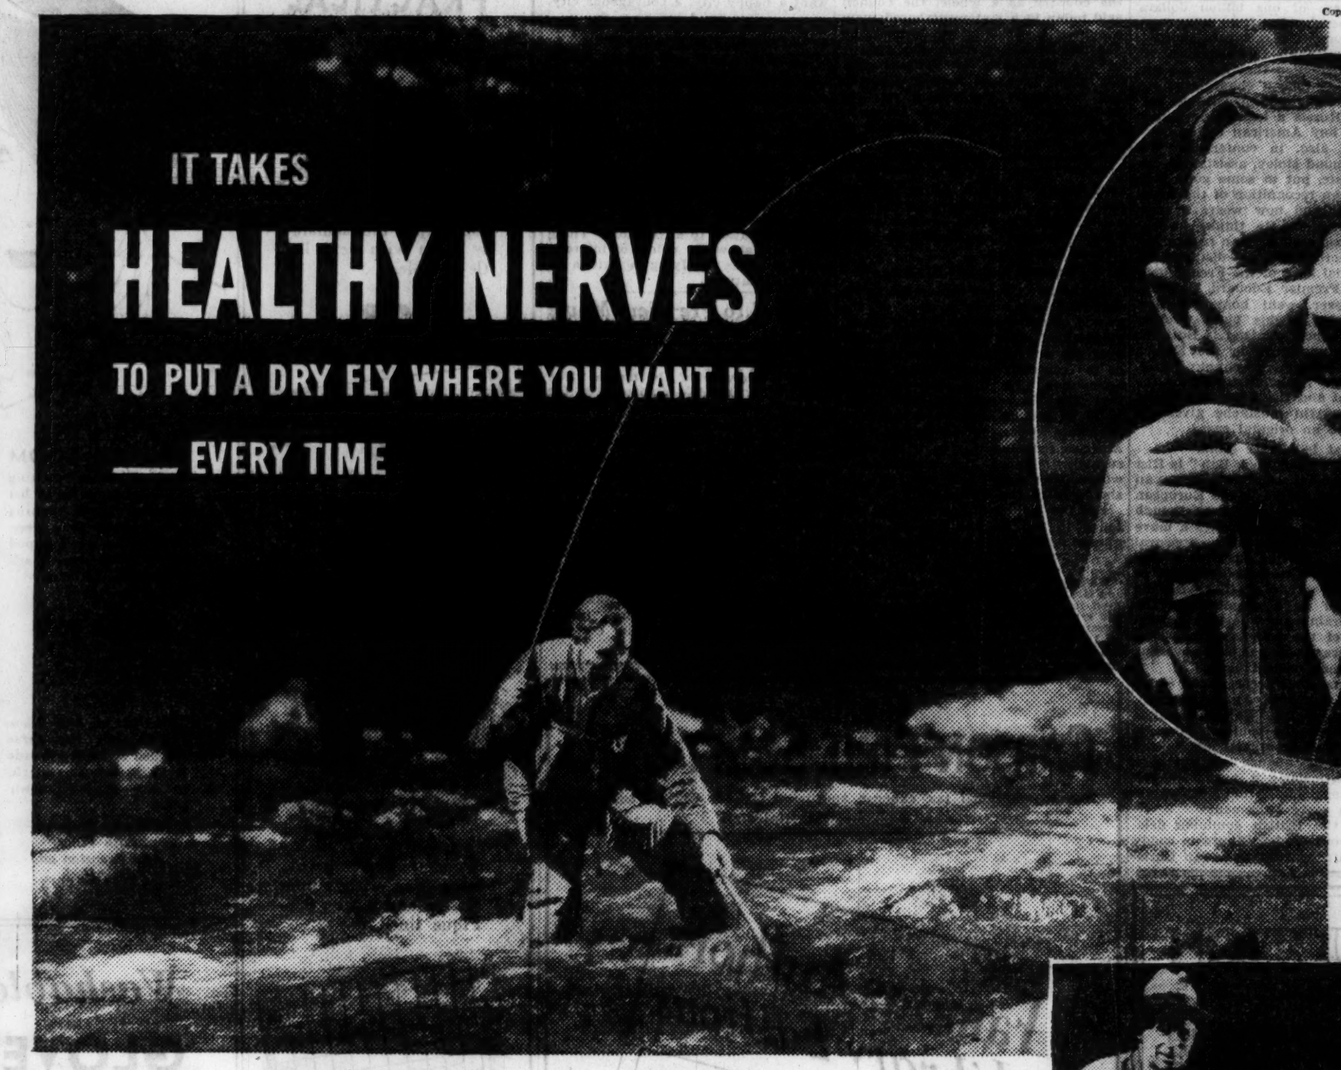
HEALTHY NERVES
TO PUT A DRY FLY WHERE YOU WANT IT
— EVERY TIME



● ABOVE—MILDNESS COMES FIRST in a cigarette, according to Mr. Neu, for enjoyment and for the sake of your nerves. Camel's rich, inviting flavor always seems to say, "Have another."

● ABOVE—ARTHUR J. NEU, of East Orange, N. J., pulls in a nice one! Few men know the importance of healthy nerves better than Art Neu does. He is national champion in dry-fly casting for accuracy. Just as a stunt, Mr. Neu has frequently flicked the ash off a friend's cigarette with a fly at 35 feet!

● RIGHT—A DAY'S SPORT is more enjoyable with plenty of Camels along, because you can smoke all you want—and still be ready for more when evening comes! Camel's costlier tobaccos never get on your nerves...never tire your taste! Camels are better for steady smoking. It is more fun to know!

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

ARTHUR J. NEU, champion fly-caster, says:

"Dry-fly fishing is a delicate art that takes the best a man's got in steadiness of hand and eye. To win the championship in accuracy at casting a dry fly, I had to have healthy nerves. And yet I smoke steadily—all I want to—without disturbing my nerves. That's because I prefer Camels. There is no question but that they are milder. And their rich, inviting flavor seems to say, 'Have another.'"

Turn to Camels. Like Mr. Neu you will find that Camels are milder...that their flavor suits your taste ...that steady smoking never jangles your nerves. So begin today!

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW
Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. The more you smoke them, the more you'll like them. Costlier tobaccos do taste better.

HOW WELCH'S MAKES CHILDREN RED-BLOODED

For many years physicians have recognized the value of Welch's Certified-Pure, Pasteurized Grape Juice as an aid to quick recovery from wasting illness.

Now a noted food authority has shown that the simple grape sugar in Welch's is predigested—is taken up by the blood immediately and changed to quick new energy without loss of appetite.

More than that, he has shown that Welch's compares favorably with mother's milk in protein content (body-building material)... contains more Vitamin B than orange juice... and also contains iron, calcium, phosphates and magnesium, so necessary for growing children.

Best of all, the children love it—will take it in abundance, though they turn away from less appetizing foods. In countless homes Welch's is helping anemic, rundown children build muscle and bone, gain rosy cheeks and buoyant energy.

If your children just pick at their food and are getting thin and weak before your very eyes—don't wait! Buy a bottle of Welch's today—and start them with a glass before breakfast, then once or twice during the day, and again before retiring. Continue—and in a very short time you will see wonderful results.

In the meantime send for booklet, "Red-Blooded Children," which you may obtain ABSOLUTELY FREE, simply by writing to The Welch Grape Juice Co., Dept. 286, Westfield, N. Y. A booklet every mother should read.

IMPORTANT: Be sure to insist on Welch's, because it is the Welch Process that retains in the bottled juice the healthful properties of ripe grapes so essential to the system. Only Welch's is Certified Pure and Pasteurized. It contains no adulterants, no synthetic flavors, no artificial coloring, no preservatives, no water, and above all, no tartaric acid. It is selling at the lowest price in 35 years, and is even cheaper by the case. Send for free booklet TODAY.

TELL OF RESCUE FROM OIL SHIP AFLAME AT SEA

Captain Refuses to Leave Tanker Petrol.

Charleston, S. C., July 16.—(AP)—A story of a day long battle against flames on a blazing oil tanker in a heavy sea, whipped by a strong wind, and finally rescue was brought to this port today by 36 survivors of the Cities Service ship Petrol.

Refuses to Leave Ship.

Capt. Sears refused to enter a lifeboat and went down with his ship. Binninger perished in the explosion that started the fire about 9:30 Friday morning. He was trapped by a bursting steam pipe in the ice room.

The survivors were brought just outside the harbor by the tanker Gulf Gem, and the steamer Trimountain, which reached the doomed Petrol at nightfall Friday after the officers and crew had battled the flames all day.

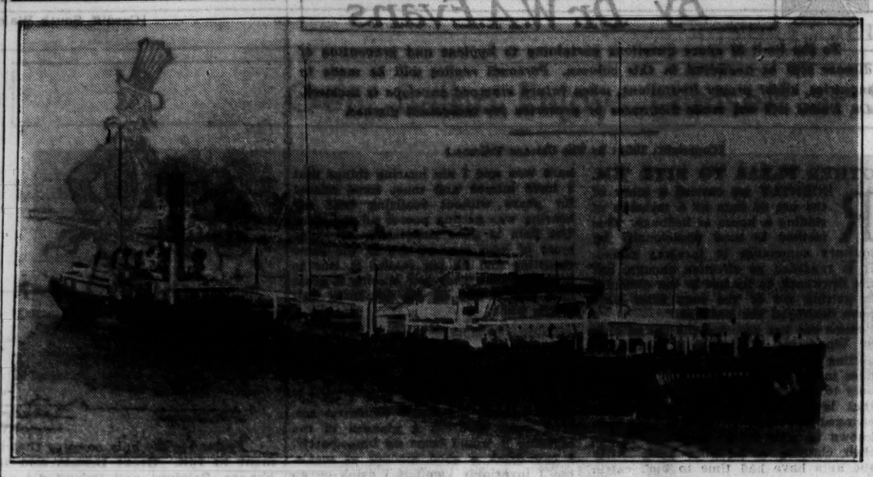
The first explosion, they said, tore away the tanker's wireless and it was impossible to summon aid.

Few Seriously Hurt.

Ten survivors, all uninjured, except for slight burns and bruises, were removed from the Trimountain by the tug Cecilia of Charleston. Twenty-six others, including two seriously injured, were transferred from the Gulf Gem to a coast guard patrol boat, which landed them here at 9 o'clock this morning.

The two worst injured—Second Assistant Engineer William J. Emsley, Somerset, Mass., and Messman John J. Sandow, Newark, N. J.—were taken to a hospital for treatment, while a representative of the Cities Service Transportation company, owner of the vessel, arranged to send the others to New York. Burning oil on the water added peril to the rescue. Andrew E. Waltzer, first assistant engineer, said the crew "acted with the utmost calm and bravery" from the time the explosion occurred until they were rescued.

Three Perish, 34 Are Saved as Flames Sweep Oil Tanker



The tanker Cities Service Petrol, which sank last Friday 160 miles east of Wilmington, Del., after fire had swept the ship. Capt. E. L. Sears went down with his ship and two members of the crew burned to death. Thirty-four others were rescued by the tanker Gulf Gem.

Versailles, Ill., July 16.—[Special.]—Illinois river traffic has become so heavy that the man power for lock gates at the La Grange locks was too slow and electric motors are being installed to take care of the greatly increased work. PLANS BOYCOTT, LEAGUE PLEA FOR GERMAN JEWS

Untermyer Calls Meeting of Nations at Amsterdam.

LONDON, July 16.—(AP)—A meeting of 25 or 30 representatives of principal countries has been convoked by Samuel Untermyer, New York attorney, with a view to extending a boycott against German goods and an appeal to the league of nations against alleged anti-Jewish atrocities in Nazi Germany.

The meeting will be held at Amsterdam next Thursday or Friday.

Untermyer, explaining the conference and its purposes today, said that a boycott already is well under way in many countries, but that its effects have been cushioned by a decision to allow stores to use up German stocks already on hand.

With the exhaustion of these stocks, he said, German manufacturers will begin to feel the full force of world-wide sentiment against repression of the Jews.

The appeal to the league of nations probably will be based on two counts—violation of the labor clauses of the treaty of Versailles in excluding Jews from German labor unions and persecution of the Jews as a minority people.

Untermyer said he is working in close collaboration with the British Jewish committee headed by Lord Melchett, but he expressed the hope the Amsterdam meeting would arrange to carry the boycott movement much further than the British group heretofore has been willing to go.

Untermyer, who came here with his nephew, Laurence A. Steinhardt, new United States minister to Sweden, will fly to Amsterdam Wednesday afternoon.

Austria Links Nazis, Hapsburgs.

VIENNA, July 16.—(AP)—In a speech at Altheim today Vice Chancellor Winkler warned that the determined fight of the régime of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss against Hitlerism does not mean that this is leading toward restoration of the Hapsburgs [the last reigning monarchs in Austria].

"We oppose with equal determination the activities of the legitimist reaction because the final result of such activities would be economic and national catastrophe," Winkler declared.

The National Socialists, or Nazis, followers of the tenets of Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany, were barred recently as a party in Austria by governmental decree.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE FIRST STEP IN COOLING A BUILDING.

The recent announcement that The Tribune Tower would be air conditioned has brought a flood of letters and inquiries to this office. Many of the communications came from those who had apparatus to sell, as was to be expected, but the response of the general public has been far greater. There is no doubt that the public wants artificial cooling in summer and is immensely interested in the progress being made toward the goal. Accordingly, from time to time THE TRIBUNE will report in these columns the advances made toward the solution of the problem.

The first step to be taken in cooling The Tribune Tower in summer will be to avoid heating it. That sounds like a truism, but, like a good many truisms, it is frequently overlooked. Ordinarily the outdoor temperature at night is considerably lower than in the daylight hours. Accordingly, as every capable housewife knows, the proper procedure in hot weather is to keep the windows and doors tightly closed during the day and to open them at night. During the daylight hours the shades or awnings also are drawn to keep as much of the direct sunlight out of the house as possible. This procedure is often resisted by less intelligent members of the household. They know that when they are uncomfortably warm in winter the thing to do is to open the windows; they conclude that when they are warm in summer the thing to do then is also to open the windows, even though the temperature at the moment in the house is many degrees lower than the temperature of the outside air.

Obviously the first thing to be done in air conditioning a public building is to emulate the good housewife in keeping the daytime heat outside. That will mean a vigorous campaign to keep windows closed during the day and to open them only to receive the cooler night air. It will mean a makeover of ingrained habits, but with persistence that should not be impossible.

Heat enters the building from outside and heat is also generated within the building itself. The ordinary electric light is a serious offender in this respect, and accordingly efforts will be made to equip the building with light units that produce less heat. Heat-producing machinery will be more effectively insulated than it has been. As preliminary, periodic temperature readings are now being taken in many parts of the building with a view to determining precisely what are the chief sources of heat within the building. Experiments in additional insulation of machinery are also to be undertaken.

The first task in attempting to cool a building is to avoid heating it. When that has been attended to the problem of equipping the building with cooling apparatus can be faced with some confidence that the problem is not an insuperable one, either mechanically or financially. Because in the present stage of technological knowledge it is more difficult to reduce the temperature in a building the ten degrees from 80 to 70 than to raise the temperature 70 degrees from zero any one contemplating artificial cooling must first seek to prevent, as far as possible, the production of unnecessary heat within the area to be conditioned.

FRED PALM LEAVES THE PEN.

Gov. Comstock of Michigan has released Fred Palm from the penitentiary. He goes out on parole following a second commutation of his sentence reducing the time of his imprisonment. Palm was sent to the penitentiary for life under a law, which Michigan later repealed, making a liquor law offense a felony within the meaning of the habitual criminal act under which the fourth conviction required the trial judge to sentence the culprit for the rest of his natural days. A small quantity of gin had been found in Palm's home and possession of it was his fourth felony. The real conviction was that of the political control of Michigan as one of rancid bigotry and of Palm of being a chump. He risked his liberty for a trifling amount of liquor which, to do him full justice, he said he did not know was in the house. The witch hunters found it there and the man was apparently doomed.

There were others who suffered in Michigan from this extraordinary law, but Palm became the historic case and as such a case he will remain as an illustration of what people can do when they lose their heads and are taken over by savage minded zealots. As an incident in American life, Palm should remain as an admonition against evils which may crop out in democracy.

It is not infrequently the case that a very obscure person becomes celebrated because some powerful trend of social and political emotions and events has caught him up out of inconspicuous life and made him a museum piece for the future study of historians. Peter Zenger, for instance, was a poor immigrant job printer. Around him, it came to pass, there raged the first battle for the freedom of the press in America. Dred Scott was only one of thousands of bondsmen, but fate selected him as the legal issue in the great court struggle to define the rights of free men in the American territories and the decision of the court destroyed the last chance of avoiding the American civil war. The history of oppression and the struggle for liberty contains many names of people distinguished only by the chance which threw them into the arena where the great contest was being waged.

Palm is the American exhibit in this day of an intolerance which strangely gained the upper hand of the political parties and sat enthroned for a while in the legislatures and in congress. His case represents the extremities to which bigotry can go and remains for the sober contemplation of American citizens. The laws of a nation can never be greater than the rights of the most obscure citizen. When he cannot rely upon justice the whole social order is insecure.

BUREAUCRATIC EXPANSION AND THE COURTS.

Some time ago the Pennsylvania railroad purchased substantial blocks of stock of the Lehigh Valley and Wabash. Later, the interstate commerce commission instituted Clayton act proceedings against the Pennsylvania. Section 7 of the Clayton act prohibits such stock purchases "where the effect of such acquisition may be to substantially lessen competition." The prohibition does not apply "to corporations purchasing such stock solely for investment and not using the same by voting or otherwise to bring about the substantial lessening of competition."

The commission found that the Pennsylvania company had violated the Clayton act and ordered the railway to divest itself of its holdings.

The order was resisted by the Pennsylvania in the federal court, which has found that the ownership of the Lehigh Valley and Wabash stocks by the Pennsylvania does not violate the Clayton act. It was their decision that the interstate commerce commission's interpretation of the law has been too narrow and that that body has attempted to write the words "may possibly be" into the Clayton act.

This case is one of many in which commissions have extended their authority or attempted to extend it beyond the intention of the legislation creating them. This is an inevitable tendency of bureaucracy, and if there is to be any area of individual initiative and liberty to be left to American industry and commerce it must be constantly resisted and checked. The commissions are in a fair way to run the courts out of the constitution or the constitution out of the courts. It is the courts that are the appointed guardians of constitutional rights and theirs the chief responsibility for turning back invasions of the narrowing field of individual liberty by ambitious authority. They should assert themselves and give citizens effectual protection from the aggressions of bureaucracy.

TAXI RATES MUST COME DOWN.

The rate war between the taxi companies has demonstrated what THE TRIBUNE has repeatedly predicted from a substantial reduction in rates, a large increase in traffic. The rates insisted upon so long by the two principal companies were not only depriving a considerable public of cab service but, as the present reductions will probably show and as one official at least is said to admit, have restricted the earnings of the companies themselves. No doubt the lowest rates forced by the present contest are in ordinary circumstances noncompensatory, but they indicate that the public will respond promptly to real inducements.

The results of the war will give a new basis for fixing rates attractive to the public and fair to the drivers and the companies. One thing is certain: taxi rates must come down substantially. A small patronage has been overcharged and a large potential patronage has been deprived of service. The reductions proposed by the managements of the two principal operators have been inadequate to stimulate traffic and extend service. It is now time to get down to brass tacks and fix a proper rate.

THE EXHAUSTION OF RELIEF FUNDS.

The squandering of relief funds in New York has had the expectable result of exhausting them. The consequence is that a million individuals, worthy and unworthy alike, who have been dependent upon public funds are in danger of being deprived of all support.

The same causes have led to the same results in New Zealand. There special taxation produced a 20 million dollar fund, but the money has been nearly exhausted, with the coldest months in the south temperate zone now to be faced. The government has ordered married men who are out of work to enter its labor concentration camps on pain of being deprived of public relief. The protests are numerous, but no alternative has been or is likely to be suggested.

The distribution of money to the undeserving, to loafers, and to those who are favored for the sake of their votes is bound to lead to the neglect of the truly deserving and to the speedy breakdown of the whole machinery of relief. We in this country cannot escape the consequences if we follow the trail blazed by New Zealand.

Editorial of the Day

REAL ESTATE CYCLE.

[Danville Commercial News.]

A new contribution to scientific business prophecy comes from a St. Louis real estate operator, Delbert S. Wenzlick. Studying records for the last 65 years, he finds that real estate has been rising and falling in cycles of 15 years, with little regard to the general business cycle. While the latter, according to various experts, has been shortening, the realty cycle seems to run about the same as usual. The last upward movement ended seven or eight years ago. By his figuring, therefore, another is just about due. It operates, he says, throughout the country almost regardless of local conditions.

Aside from this theoretical forecast many definite factors suggest an approaching recovery for buildings and land. Studying his own city, Mr. Wenzlick finds 20,000 delayed marriages, 20,000 doubled up families, 70,000 homes more than 50 years old and therefore obsolete, and 31,000 vacancies. As employment grows and incomes are restored—a process already under way—the vacant houses and apartments are reoccupied, crowded families undouble, young people marry, and other factors swell the demand for homes.

It would be strange if the new stock market boom were not followed soon by a thawing of real estate and a freshet of buying and building.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

SPEAKING OF CRICKET.

"Books on Cricket," saith Fanny Butcher, "Fill London Bookshelves." Which well may be, but books on cricket can keep off my bookshelves. I've never fully recovered from the first cricket game I ever saw. It was in Shanghai, and I was rickshawing around the streets with an American sergeant belonging to the Ninth Infantry. Suddenly the sergeant, who was a great baseball fan and a good player himself, gave a war whoop. He had been looking for a baseball game ever since he landed in Shanghai, and from his gladsome whoop I suspected he had found one.

"It hain't a baseball game," said the sergeant, "but it's probably the next thing to it. It's cricket, and they tell me that cricket is the way the Limejuicers play baseball." So we went out to the cricket game and got good front row seats. "You see," said the sergeant, "I wantta let off steam. I want to holler when they slide to second and get up and do a war dance when some guy knocks a home run. An' if I git a chance I'd like to shy a few pop bottles at the empire jest to remember the old days by."

I told him I understood that cricket was very different from baseball, much quieter—and that one single game lasted for days and days.

"Don't kid me, boy," said the sergeant. "They play with bats, don't they, and a ball? All right; when anybody begins to smack a ball around there's goin' to be action."

The crowd filed slowly in and sat softly down and a gentle stillness brooded over everything. Altogether it had the appearance of a first class funeral. Finally the players trotted slowly on to the field and the game began. The ball was hurled back and forth, but nothing seemed to happen. The sergeant wanted to turn loose a yell now and then on general principles, but I have some respect for the dead; I was sure it must be a funeral. A very cross looking and quite ferocious appearing English general sat next to us. He had long walrus mustaches and he glared savagely at the sergeant through his monocle every time my friend started to yell, so the sergeant kept quiet.

After a while the game stopped, the players walked off the field, and waiters appeared with dishes and began pouring tea and passing it around. "Jeeze!" gasped the sergeant; "they stopped the game to have tea!"—and he looked as though he was going to have a stroke of apoplexy.

After tea the game went on, the audience still sitting, looking sadly and calmly on. Something happened; a batter hit the ball a real sassy smack and it went sailing through the air, was caught by somebody and returned to a man near a wicket.

"Now kin I holler?" begged the sergeant.

"Wait," I said sternly, "wait and see what the English do. It's their game."

There was a faint clapping of hands from the spectators, and some bolsterous, overenthusiastic Englishman said right out loud, although in a conversational tone, "Jolly well bowled," but the people around him gave him a dirty look.

The savage looking general with the walrus mustache was evidently aroused to great excitement by whatever it was that had happened in the game. He pulled fiercely at his mustache and slowly opened his mouth.

"If he yells I'm a-goin' to," said the sergeant.

"Pretty!" said the general, patting his hands together; "very pretty!"

"Come on," said the sergeant, standing up; "I'm a-goin' to git the hell outen here before that guy er the empire er some of the players kiss me."

TWO SONNETS.

I.

Be nearer to my heart than root to earth,
Still you are farther than the farthest sun;
Love may be love, but souls have single birth,
Nor love nor death shall make us truly one;
Nor love nor life nor death. In that stark hour
When I must stand and bleakly come to know
That you have passed beyond my lightest power
To call you back, to beckon or forego,
Not even then shall Love within my eyes
Reveal your final splendor to my sight,
Nor Death recall you to me otherwise
Than as the helpless prisoner sees the night—
A narrow glimpse between his crowding bars
Of frosty summits set about with stars.

II.

Since this is so, O heart of all my days,
And all communion ends before we meet,
Across the chasm that separates our ways
The way is dark; our footsteps hesitate;
Fearing we walk, not knowing what we fear.
And this one star, our glory and our guide,
Love in the heart, unflawed and undismayed,
Is life and hope and all the world beside,
On whose frail gleam our destiny is stayed.
Let us be wary, in this pathless night,
Lest we lose that which is our only light.

DOROTHY KISSLING.

SECRETARY OF STATE HULL has held up one of Prof. Moley's expense accounts, the one that asks $3,000 for incidental expenses, $1,320 of which is for trans-oceanic messages. I wish I had thought of trans-oceanic messages when I made out my expense accounts years ago during the Philippine insurrection. I would just put in now and then, "Horse killed in action . . . 200 pesos." I had to kill so many horses in the Philippines to fix up my expense accounts I couldn't look a horse in the face for years. And even now I have nightmares.

OTHER FLEAS TO BITE 'EM.

RECENTLY we carried a story of the use of ants as a measure of ridding a house of bedbugs. This method is used occasionally by military commands in faraway places. It is regarded as effective enough, but the drawback to its use is the difficulty in getting rid of the ants after they have destroyed the bedbugs.

Some one has reported the use of ants by Wandering Willies as a means for getting rid of body lice. The body louse lives in the clothing, going on the body only to feed and to deposit eggs, a fact that is often overlooked by amateurs engaged in delousing. Hoboes have been known to strip to the buff and to put their clothing on an ants' nest. After the ants have had time to find, catch, and eat all the offending insects the ants are shaken out of the garments, whereupon the tramp dresses and goes on his way. The old method was for the wanderer to head into a municipal lodging house occasionally and then have his clothing fumigated as he underwent a thorough scrubbing.

The use of one insect for the purpose of destroying others is a matter that nature knows about and constantly employs, but man does not often lend a hand. There are other useful stunts that ants can be set to do. Spiders are among the best insect catchers. They destroy flies, mosquitoes, and other objectionable visitors. There is practically only one spider that is poisonous or that has enough poison to seriously discommode. Yet most of us wage war on household spiders. When a dragon fly or snake doctor comes in somebody tries to kill him. Yet the dragon fly is also known as the mosquito hawk and when he comes into a room it is because there are mosquitoes there, or he thinks there are.

One of the best mosquito catchers is the common leatherwing bat. But when one enters a room searching for mosquitoes somebody grabs a broom.

Coming back to the smaller world, several of the tiny household bugs to which we object invade our premises because there is food there for them and, in many cases, the food is some other and more harmful insect. I do not know whether ants and spiders are able to drive out fleas or not. But some one might give them a trial. We might even be willing to try cockroaches as a flea eradicating procedure.

EARACHE.

Surprised writes: My own happy experience prompts me to write you, hoping that others may benefit also. For several weeks I had a very painful earache and, although I know I should have done so sooner, I kept putting off a visit to my doctor until yesterday, when I could stand the pain no longer. In fifteen minutes I was in a new world. He cleaned out a large accumulation of hard wax and I am hearing things that I have missed and must have missed for years without realizing that my hearing was getting poorer all the time. The pain is gone completely. Perhaps more of your readers are in the same condition and do not realize it, due to lack of pain. They are missing a great deal and a trip to the doctor is well worth while.

WATER.

Mrs. D. N. R. writes: I am advised to drink plenty of water, as I had a bad kidney trouble. I know that I do not drink enough, but water nauseates me. If I were to drink a glassful in the morning it would come up immediately. I can drink a good amount at meals, but I invariably vomit if I drink on an empty stomach or between meals. From early childhood this has been true and yet I have never had any stomach trouble.

REPLY.

Why not limit your water drinking to meal time? You can take as much as you need. Coffee, tea, milk, soup, and other fluids are counted as water. So is watermelon. Have you ever had some one try to find out why you cannot drink water?

VALVULAR DISEASE.

R. F. T. writes: 1. Please give the full definition of valvular disease?

2. Is it serious?

3. Can a person of 21 outgrow it?

4. Can you live long with that disease?

REPLY.

1. I judge this person has one or more heart valves that have been deformed by an attack of rheumatism in childhood. He should know more about the condition of his heart than any outsider can tell him.

2. It may be. That depends on how badly the valve is crippled, on the condition of the heart muscle, and on the intelligence with which the party handles himself.

3. No. He may keep his heart muscle compensation up to a level where it is equal to all proper demands.

4. Some people with valvular heart disease live to be one hundred. However, that it much above the average.

PROBABLY RINGWORM.

F. K. writes: The skin between my toes looks dead, and peels easily. The nails of both big toes are growing thicker and yellowish in color, hard on top, soft beneath next to flesh so that they crumble and can easily be dug out in pieces.

1. Am I afflicted with a parasite?

2. Will I lose the nails of these toes?

3. Can I treat myself?

REPLY.

1. I think so. Ringworm of the nails and the skin between the toes.

2. You may. However, the chances are that you will not, but that you will wish you had. In ringworm of the nails these appendages become very thick and troublesome.

3. Lay treatment of ringworm of the nails generally fails.

A LEGAL CASE.

Chicago, July 12.—[Friend of the People.]—At 616 South Racine avenue there is a building in bad condition, with nothing but the outside walls left. Garbage is being thrown into it, and I expect a great deal of sickness and disease from this practice. What can be done about this? A. C.

The three story factory building has been vacant for some time. Final action in disposing of this building has been delayed because of the difficulty in locating the owner or any other person responsible for the management of the property. After a thorough search we have found through the corporation counsel's office that the property is in litigation, and this department, through the office of the corporation counsel, is going before the Circuit court of Cook county for permission to have the building made safe or removed. JOHN E. ERICSSON,
Commissioner of Buildings.

WATER SERVICE.

Chicago, July 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—We are behind two payments of our water bill and cannot pay it. We received a final notice to pay up in twenty days or water will be turned off. 1. Can they turn it off? 2. Is it not against the health law? J. S.

1. Yes, they can.

2. There is no law requiring furnishing water to persons who do not pay for it.

CORPORATION RECEIVERSHIP.

Maywood, Ill., July 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. I am a stockholder in a small corporation. The board of directors have put it into the hands of a receiver, and then closed up and quit business without notifying any of the stockholders. 2. Is this in accordance with the laws of Illinois? E. V. B.

1. It seems probable that some creditor took the court action of filing the bill asking for the appointment of a receiver. If the receiver were appointed, he would take over the business and the directors would have no further action.

2. Yes, as far as the facts stated are concerned.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 17, 1917.

COPENHAGEN.—Dr. George Michaelis has explained to the reichstag members that his first address, on July 19, will deal with both the foreign and internal problems which he expects to carry out as the new chancellor of Germany. The Berlin Boersen Courier understands that Dr. Michaelis will accept the reichstag majority peace resolution which was announced yesterday. The Lokal Anzeiger, on the other hand, says that Dr. Michaelis and Field Marshal von Hindenburg showed full accord in views, which it is hard to reconcile with the Boersen Courier's assertion, considering Von Hindenburg's oft repeated statement that the peace must correspond with the sacrifices made.

WASHINGTON.—With the Russians driving forward and with Germany, embarrased by domestic disaffection, compelled to divert troops from the French and Italian fronts to the eastern theater of war, American officials believe that the world now is in the presence of the supreme crisis of the great struggle. Will Germany crack under the strain? That is the question in the minds of all members of the administration since the receipt of the official dispatches describing the extent of the Russian offensive and the desperate moves by Germany to meet it.

WASHINGTON.—A storm of criticism of the inflated population estimates of northern states, which, it is alleged, will result in more young men being drafted in northern than in southern states in proportion to actual population, broke over Washington. After a heated debate, in which Senator Brandegee likened this draft policy to "playing with loaded dice," the senate adopted his resolution calling upon the secretary of commerce to furnish the population estimates upon which the number of drafted men has been apportioned to the states, and to explain the process by which the census bureau arrived at these figures.

WAR SUMMARY.—Petrograd says that more than 36,000 enemies have been captured in the offensive in Galicia, where the village of Lodziany was taken. Paris reports the repulse of heavy German attacks against positions recently won by the French in the region of Mont Haut. Berlin says the British were repulsed near Lombzaertzyde and the French were defeated in an effort to regain ground lost near Courtecon.

WASHINGTON.—Herbert C. Hoover last night refused to make any comment on the charge of Senator Reed of Missouri, made in the senate, that he conducted "gambling operations" in the purchase of supplies for the American relief commission in Belgium. The charge was denied absolutely by John Beaver White, member of the American commission.

WORLD'S FAIR QUESTION BOX

Requests for information concerning A Century of Progress will be answered in this column. It is urged that questions be stated briefly.

ANSWER—Write to Sears, Roebuck & Co., Arthington and Homan avenue. They are conducting a contest.

QUESTION—Will you please list the Fair buildings with no entrance fee? What is the entrance fee for the Belgian village and the Jehol temple? The Electrical building? What is the main entrance to the Fair? Is Fort Dearborn near an entrance, and, if so, what entrance?

ANSWER—There are 85 free buildings on the Fair grounds. To list them would require more space than we have here. Practically all the exhibit buildings are free. Belgian village and Jehol temple each 25 cents. Electrical building is free. All entrances are main entrances. Fort Dearborn is four blocks from either 23d or 31st street entrance.

QUESTION—Where are the information booths located on the Fair grounds? Where are tourist camps located?

ANSWER—Information booths are conveniently located throughout the grounds. The only tourist camps approved by A Century of Progress are the following: Century Cabins [2 camps], 123d and Ashland, Calumet Park, Ill.; 17th avenue, between Roosevelt road and 22d, near Edward Hines hospital; Continental Camp, Village of Progress, 211th and Illinois Central, and Dixie Tourist club, 127th and Halsted.

THE SCHOOL BUDGET.

Chicago, July 12.—To cut out the junior high schools doesn't seem to be enough to satisfy our most honorable board members, but besides that they are going to cut out everything half decent from the high schools, too.

What will become of our high schools eventually? Are the good and honest citizens of this so-called great city of Chicago going to stand aside and let a few selfish, uncouth individuals rule? We all have a say in this matter. Our children are going to these schools. I doubt whether the children of the board members go to public schools. I presume they go to the best private institutions and don't have to worry that the teachers aren't getting paid, and that's why they aren't getting treated so well, or that they nearly froze last winter because of the lack of coal.

The board members also seem to think that all these extra curriculum activities are fads and frills. Well, I doubt whether any one else thinks so. These activities were put in to make the high school work more interesting for the pupil. You know, "All work and no play makes Jack a very dull and dumb boy."

This city was supposed to have made a hundred years of progress in most of her undertakings, but she has failed terribly in the most important, education.

SARAH LEIFER.

SALVAGING THE JUNIOR HIGH.

Chicago, July 13.—To me, a product of the Chicago grade and high schools and mother of a 12 year old boy who has just finished his first happy year at Parker Junior High school, to my son and to me the headlines in THE TRIBUNE telling of the closing of the junior highs were like news of the death of a dear friend.

If we cannot continue the junior high schools for financial reasons, why throw out the baby with the bath? Why not save in the wreck as many of the ideas of the junior high schools as do not cost money? Before school opens up let us all get together, reconsider the objectives of education, and provide for the children such makeshift accommodations as we can under the circumstances. Part of the value of the junior high idea is the use of libraries. There are enough unused books in Chicago to supply the need. Neighbors and alumni could help in giving simple laboratory equipment so that the children would not be denied science; keep the foreign languages in the eighth grade; keep the progressive spirit. Don't forget the children who are being denied domestic science and manual training, perhaps the best work the schools have given. Could not this work be kept up by volunteers from the parents if no other way is possible? Schools must help the whole child to become the whole man. Don't let us spoil the schools and fill the jails and the ranks of the pauper spirited.

If schooling and better education make better citizens, and this has always been one of the ideals of America, let us show our faith by works now. Let parents, teachers, good neighbors, people who want to keep down their future taxes get together. NATALIE SCHRETTER.

SUBSTITUTE FOR PUBLIC KINDERGARTENS.

Chicago, July 13.—Our 4 year olds ought to be given some sort of class work or group play. If the board sets an entrance age of 5 for kindergarten pupils, and according to state law they have the right to do so, then I would suggest that our churches open playrooms for neighborhood children between 4 and 5. Their mothers could take turns supervising the groups. It would be good experience for the mothers.

EDUCATOR.

PARENTS AND TAXPAYERS.

Chicago July 13.—The bulk of the reading public and the voting public are parents. They are vitally interested in the education of their children. Out of the huge sums they pay out year after year in taxes, the one department which they feel gives them a fair return for their money is the department of education. Are these parents going to sit back and see their dollars thrown into Lake Michigan indefinitely, building airports and what not, while we go backward a generation or more in education? They say the R. F. C. is going to lend money for this project. That means the taxpayers. We foot every bill.

If these politicians have ever studied history, which is perhaps too much to expect, they would know that when people are pushed too far it is too bad for those on top. And once privileges are granted to a people it is well nigh impossible to take those privileges away again. I, for one, never had any tendency toward a Red complex before, but after reading this morning's TRIBUNE on the school board's action I felt violently revolutionary. Being an average sort of a person, I fancy that thousands of other decent citizens had the same reaction. MABEL B. MILES.

OTHER OPPORTUNITIES FOR ECONOMY.

Chicago, July 13.—I, as a member of the army of small home owners who have paid their taxes to keep our city government going, take this means of protesting against the severe cuts in the standards of our educational system. I would like to hear of an equal cut in the city hall and its cohorts. Why don't we hear of the same economy there? Our teachers as a group are conscientious workers who earn their pay. I would like to find out how many employés of the city hall do likewise. GEORGE H. REID.

TO REPLACE CRANE COLLEGE.

Chicago, July 13.—The $2,800,000 that the University of Illinois is reported to have saved and returned to the state might well have been used to support a branch of that institution here in place of Crane college. CHICAGOAN.

IN THE NAME OF ECONOMY.

Chicago, July 14.—The closing of Crane college and other eliminations made by the Chicago board of education are without question an insult to the intelligence of the people of Chicago, done in the name of economy. But, perhaps Chicago is not intelligent. Of course, now it has no chance of becoming so.

Why should there be a class distinction, providing education only for those who can afford university tuition, and ignorance for the rest, while political powers fill their pockets with the public's tax money? Under such circumstances why pay taxes? RUTH GUNDERSON.

UNFIT TEACHERS.

Chicago, July 11.—I have just read your today's editorial "Unfit Teachers." Characteristically enough, it gives a completely false impression. I was present at the board meeting referred to and I know what took place and what did not.

In the first place, the only sign of feeling given by the audience while the meeting was in session was some applause for one of the newest members of the board. In the second place, your "demonstration," if it could be called such, was the result, not the cause, of the adjournment. That action by the board was unexpected, since it had been in session only about fifteen minutes and since it had an announced intention to make a further heavy slash in its long ago adopted budget. When the adjournment was declared, therefore, there was a chorus of exclamations of surprise, followed by a few mild "boos." As an onlooker I venture to say that not more than a dozen persons made these. Surely the writer of this editorial cannot have been present at the meeting.

C. L. VESTAL,
President, Men Teachers' Union of Chicago.

PASSING THE SALES TAX ALONG.

Chicago, July 11.—I have just secured a copy of the general rules and regulations relating to retailers' occupation tax act, issued by the department of finance, state of Illinois, on June 30, 1933, covering what is known generally as the sales tax. It is with some surprise that I note in bold face type a very definite statement to the effect that this tax shall not be passed on to consumers. Upon inquiring among many of my friends I have found that generally speaking the public is unaware of this fact. In spite of this we find that most of the retail businesses are operating on the basis of passing this tax directly to the consumer. It seems exceedingly strange that such papers as your own have not made some comment and taken some steps to correct this situation. H. A. SCRIBNER.

JIBES ACROSS THE SEA.

Highwood, Ill., July 11.—The jibes of the English that so offend you are so obviously propaganda, written with the tongue-in-the-cheek, a sort of effort to whistle to keep up an ebbing self-confidence, that the very worst way to do is to take them seriously. Most Americans laugh at the English and poke fun at them, pooh-pooh them, and give them a taste of robust ridicule. Do not get us to take them seriously with embittered sarcasm, as that is a rôle the Americans do not fit into. ARTEMUS JONES.

Engagement of Three Girls Is Announced

Week-end Brings News of Romance.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THREE interesting engagements this morning! Cupid certainly seems to be particularly busy every week-end, for rarely is there a Monday when we don't have at least one engagement to announce. Today we are making known that of Miss Elizabeth Poole to a Baltimore resident, John Howland; that of Miss Gwendolyn Lee Juergens to John Richard Hurley, and of Miss Jean Aishton Ward to William Woollett.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Poole of 221 East Walton place are announcing that of their daughter to Mr. Howland, son of the late Dr. and Mrs. John Howland of Baltimore. Miss Poole is not at home just now, for she is visiting the Harvey Hoods at Pride's Crossing, Mass., but she will be here to receive the best wishes of her many friends in person very soon. Mr. Howland is a graduate of Yale university and of the law school of that university. No date for the marriage has been set.

Juergens Announcement at Family Dinner.

The Juergens-Hurley announcement was made at a quiet family dinner given last night by Miss Juergens' parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Paul Juergens, at their residence on Bellevue place. It isn't exactly a surprise, for their friends have known for some time of young Hurley's devotion to Miss Juergens, but that doesn't detract in the least from its being pleasant news.

Miss Juergens was graduated from Rosemary hall in Greenwich and was introduced to society at a joint debut tea with Miss Peggy Glidden in September, 1931. Miss Glidden arrives at home this morning from a trip abroad, by the way. Miss Juergens entered Smith college that fall and has just completed her sophomore year, which probably finishes her college career, although no date for the marriage has been set. Mr. Hurley, who is the son of Edward Nash Hurley and the late Mrs. Hurley, attended the Lawrenceville preparatory school and Princeton.

The engagement of Miss Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peirce C. Ward of Winnetka, to Mr. Woollett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph N. Woollett, also of Winnetka, was made Saturday night at a dinner dance at the Indian Hill club. About twenty young people were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ward at the regular club party and to them was imparted the news that the romance which started long ago when the young couple were in school had blossomed into an engagement. Miss Ward was graduated from Sarah Lawrence college last month and is one of the most popular and attractive girls in Winnetka. Mr. Woollett went to Culver and then to Hobart college. No plans for the wedding have been made.

Society to Entertain Distinguished Women.

Sharing the spotlight this week with the history making Italians who are giving the city the thrill of a lifetime are the distinguished women here for the meetings of the International Council of Women.

Like a phalanx they moved into the city yesterday and they will remain through next week-end for a round of brilliant parties interspersed with their more serious meetings. Dame Rachel Crowdy, England's celebrated social worker, is here; Mme. Kraemer-Bach, the French Portia; Dr. Yi Famg Wu, a Chinese educator, and Miss Margaret Bondfield, who was England's secretary of labor in the Ramsay MacDonald cabinet. And these are only a few of the many well known names that are included on the list of council representatives.

The high light among the many social affairs is the banquet on Thursday evening at the Palmer house. For this six of our most important society women are to be the hostesses. They include Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, Mrs. Charles Wesley Dempster, and Mrs. John W. Gary.

Tomorrow, of all the seven days, will be one of the busiest in a social way for the visitors. At noon Miss Agnes Nestor and the members of A Century of Progress committee responsible for entertaining distinguished women in industry who visit the city this summer will have a luncheon for Miss Bondfield in the trustees' lounge of the Hall of Science.

Mrs. Walter Wolf Will Give Tea.

Later in the afternoon . . . from four to six . . . Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, who is chairman of the hospitality committee for the international congress, will have a tea at her apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive. Mrs. Wolf will be assisted by the members of her committee who include Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes, the honorary chairman; Mrs. McCormick, Mrs. Goodspeed, Mrs. Huntly H. Gilbert, Mrs. Silas H. Strawn, Mrs. Dempster, Mrs. Hinckley, Mrs. Hubert Burnham, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. Augustus W. Eddy, Mrs. Linn, Mrs. George R. Dean, Mrs. Herbert E. Bradley, and Mrs. Gary.

After the tea many of these guests will return to the trustees' lounge for the dinner that Mrs. Linn is giving for Mrs. John Sloane of New York, who is head of the Maternity Center associations in the eastern city. Mrs. Sloane and Mrs. Linn have long been friends, and after the council meetings are over Mrs. Sloane will go out to Mrs. Linn's house at Shoreacres for a visit of several more days.

Guests at Mrs. Linn's party tomorrow evening will include Miss Jane Addams, Miss Bondfield, Miss Hazel Corbin, Mrs. Wolf, Dr. Joseph B. De Lee, who was the founder of Chicago's

Gen. Balbo Enjoys Himself at Society Function

Brave Gen. Italo Balbo seems to have been repaid for his effort in changing into a dress uniform late Saturday night and going to the Saddle and Cycle club to a dinner dance that had been arranged for him and his officers of the Italian trans-Atlantic air fleet for when this picture of him and Mrs. Harold S. Strotz was taken, he, as well as she, seemed to be enjoying himself hugely. Mrs. Strotz was chairman of the committee that planned the party, which came near being minus all its distinguished guests for they were almost too tired to attend it. Gen. Balbo and about 19 of his officers, however, managed to arrive at it about midnight, but it wasn't nearly as late nor as gay a party as it had been anticipated that it would be.

World Women Leaders Open Congress Here

Told Political Action Is Road to Justice.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

An American eagle spreading gilded wings across the draped folds of the Stars and Stripes looked down last night from the balcony rail of the Palmer house grand ballroom upon such an assemblage of women of the world as made history at the Columbian Exposition. Banners of the nations draped the balcony rail, and for each one or more distinguished women from a foreign land held a place of honor on the long dais as the international feminine congress of A Century of Progress was formally opened.

from abroad were grouped on or about the speakers' platform, many of them of world renown. As president of the National Council of Women, the sponsoring organization, Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, New York attorney, was the cynosure of a group that included Dame Rachel Crowdy and the Hon. Margaret Bondfield of England, Jane Addams of Chicago, and Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Baroness Ishimoto of Japan, and various others.

Sentiment entered into the order of the evening when Miss Phillips called the hundreds of women to attention with a light tap of the historic gavel first used by Elizabeth Cady Stanton in 1888, when she called to order the first great congress of women, held in Washington. It was used subsequently by Mrs. May Wright Sewall, one of the founders of the National council, at the memorable congress of 1892, and by Susan B. Anthony at a suffrage convention in Chicago, and at each succeeding annual convention until her death.

But it was sense that prevailed in the oratory of the evening. Crisp facts and figures thrown out as challenges to the multitude by these leaders for the days to come. Problems the world is facing and what shall be done about it were cited for the consideration of the six days of discussion and education, under the theme of the congress, "Our Common Cause —Civilization."

"The feminine quest for power wanes," Miss Phillips assured her audience in her keynote address. "But before women today lie great opportunities for the right use of that power. The time has come for men and women who are eager for the progress of civilization to abandon words for militant action.

"It is easy to resolute, and we have done much of it in the past. Words, by and large, have been an outlet for the speaker rather than a contribution to the listener. Until we are willing to substitute deeds there is little hope for the future.

"From this congress should come to organized womanhood an impetus to add to their right feeling a sound, scientific, factual understanding of the real causes which will produce results in social justice which have become not only desirable but necessary.

"Having this knowledge, and having always had a desire for broad social justice, women must be willing to do something about it. The obvious question is, What can they do? They can go back home and continue their study of these subjects. They can try to grow in that spiritual grace which we as a nation have been so sure that we have and they can go to work in an orderly way in their own communities. The present avenues of orderly change are governmental avenues. Women must use those avenues to make themselves felt.

"If you can see civilization as a living, moving, changing thing; if you can discard old forms and theories, your father's as well as your own, and know that new conditions demand new treatments, then you are ready to begin to answer our question—'Shall it be progress?'"

President Rufus Dawes of the World's Fair welcomed the delegates and visitors on behalf of the Exposition and the city. Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, chairman of the social committee, added to that the welcome of Chicago women in general and her committee in particular; Francis X. Busch, formerly corporation counsel, gave the city's welcome on behalf of Mayor Kelly, who could not be present.

"I think we have all realized," Miss Bondfield of England replied, "that in the conference there will be differences of opinion, conflicts of ideas; but that we can and will discuss things without losing our temper. During this congress women are going to have a glorious opportunity to help in settling some of these great problems. In that spirit we come to this conference. In that spirit we thank you most profoundly for the welcome you have given us today."

Dr. Wally Alexandrescu of Rumania, journalist and scientist, black haired, dark eyed and youthful, wound up her graceful expression of appreciation for the welcome to herself and her fellow delegates from abroad, with the assurance:

"We believe in American efficiency. We believe in American leadership, and we believe in the American future."

General sessions of the congress will open at 10 o'clock this morning in the grand ballroom of the hotel, with round table conferences on various topics starting this afternoon, to continue through Thursday.

White with Bright Colors Fashions Costume Jewelry for Midsummer Wear

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Midsummer costume jewelry is just about as smart as anything under a summer sun—for the newest necklaces are nothing more or less than snowy white cotton cords, that look like curtain tiebacks, with colored composition discs, squares, and oblongs strung along at spaced intervals from tasseled end to end. These are the accents for summer cottons, piques, and backless spectator sports frocks. They are especially attractive, with black and navy blue or brown linens and big floppy straw hats.

Another brain storm was caused by the newest cellophane jewelry—stunning colorful stuff, that glistens and gleams most interestingly. It can be worn with flowered silks and dotted swisses. Gorgeous color combinations are available for instance bracelets, necklaces, and pin clips wrapped in three colors, black, orange, and red, or yellow, blue, and jade green. They are stunning contrasts with dead white silk suits and dresses.

White finger rings are vastly becoming with deep suntan, big flat simple rings with a flock of matching flat white bracelets to clatter merrily on your arm. There are huge ball ring earrings also of white and high colors that are just what you want for dress contrast with the wide flat cartwheel hats.

Huge white and vividly colored pins, some fashioned like a feather, others just a long flat oblong, still others with five flat balls in a row, are splendid anchor pins for ascot ties, or just as chest decoration. All the price tags on this summer jewelry are surprisingly modest.

The coolest looking summer jewelry is the leaf green colored stuff or the pale watery green silk shades. Six of the wafer thin, flat bracelets, a pair of flat round earrings, and a finger ring, all delightfully low priced, are a fashion find. Wear the combination with your pale pink summer cottons, with your gay flowered prints, and for a spicy difference try them with navy blue and brown "sheers."

Presented Twice Daily at Enchanted Island.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Twice each afternoon this week, at 4:15 and 5:15 o'clock, "The Legend of the Piper," a one act opera, with book by Josephine Preston Peabody and music by Eleanor Everest Freer, is being presented in the Children's theater on Enchanted island at A Century of Progress. It is an attractive little piece telling the story of the musician who first piped the rats and then the children out of Hamelin Town. It is gayly costumed and presented alertly and smoothly.

Edwin Kemp and David Johnson are dividing the rôle of the piper between them, and there is alternating casting for several of the other parts. William Phillips and Raymund Koch for the burgomaster, Ruth Davis and Marie Valenti for one of the children, Dorothy Traeger and Marie Valenti for another, and several others.

Mrs. Freer, who was present for the first performance, was brought to the stage, but insisted on giving all the credit to the artists, to H. C. Howard, the stage director, and Leroy Wetzel, the conductor. But there was applause enough for all.

An Italian musical program called "A Venetian Night" will be presented in honor of Gen. Italo Balbo and the Italian flyers from the stage of the Floating theater in the north lagoon tomorrow night. It will feature Frida Savini, soprano and a protégée of Rosa Raisa; Ada Paggi, contralto; and Mario Fiorella, baritone, both of the former Civic Opera company; the chorus of the Civic Opera Chorus school, directed by Attico Bernabini; and Nina Mesirow Minchin, pianist.

The program will consist of popular opera excerpts and concert pieces and Italian folk music. The three soloists will sing arias and Italian songs and join with the chorus in concerted numbers. It will begin at 8:15 o'clock, and the first forty-five minutes will be broadcast by W-G-N.

Century of Progress Officials Drink Toast to Flyers in Water

Beer Glasses Empty When President Dawes Proposes Honor at Fair Luncheon.

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

THE toast that President Rufus C. Dawes of A Century of Progress proposed was drunk by all the guests at the luncheon given by A Century of Progress for Gen. Italo Balbo and the officers of the Italian trans-Atlantic air fleet yesterday in water, but the "Viva Italia, Viva Balbo," was just as strong as if it had been drunk in Italy's wines, and just as heartfelt.

If Mr. Dawes had proposed the toast a bit sooner it could have been drunk in America's national drink, 3.2 beer, for that was served with luncheon, but every one's beer glass was empty by the time Mr. Dawes arose to speak and to present commemorative medals of A Century of Progress to Gen. Balbo, Maj. Gen. Pellegrini, and Ambassador Augusto Rosso.

It was a gala occasion and no one seemed to mind the long wait before the airmen appeared—we became used to waiting for our distinguished guests Saturday—and when they did appear about 2:30 at the Trustees' Lounge in the Hall of Science they were given a royal welcome. Spic and span in white dress uniforms resplendent with wide blue ribbons [Gen. Balbo had a green one, too] and much gold braid, they filed in, followed by the noncommissioned officers, not so colorful as to uniform but interesting nevertheless.

"Where are their black shirts?" whispered one sweet young thing. "They're wearing black ties, instead," we answered, not knowing until Vittorio Liebman, Prince Potenziani's aid, told us later that the army and navy in Italy don't wear the Fascist shirts.

"Ah, here is Mees," the young officer stumbled over the name, but he remembered the face of the aforesaid sweet young thing with whom he had danced the night before at the Saddle and Cycle, which is quite a feat—even though the young lady is unusually attractive—considering the fatigue of the officers the night before, don't you think so?

Gen. Balbo sat between Mr. and Mrs. Dawes at the speakers' table decorated with Italian and American flags and pyramids of gardenias. On Mr. Dawes' left sat Ambassador Rosso, who acted as Gen. Balbo's interpreter for the short speech he made in reply to Mr. Dawes' welcome.

Gov. Horner at Speakers' Table.

Gov. Horner sat on Mrs. Dawes' right and on his other side was Mrs. Wat T. Cluverius and then Maj. Gen. Pellegrini, second in command of the air fleet. Mrs. Thomas F. Donovan was on Ambassador Rosso's left and on her other side was Mayor Kelly, then Mrs. Frank S. Parker, and then Harry S. New.

Mrs. Kelly, looking so lovely in a blue silk ensemble and a large brown hat that every one who didn't know her was asking "who is the stunning woman in blue?" sat next to Gen. Pellegrini on one side and then came Gen. Charles G. Dawes, Admiral Cluverius, Mme. Castruccio, Dr. Hugo F. Simon, the German consul general; Mrs. Graham, Gen. Abel Davis, Mrs. F. Hamilton Roberts, Col. Graham, Mrs. Daniel Burnham, Capt. F. Hamilton Roberts, Mrs. Abel Davis, Lieut. Col. Causey, and Mrs. Allen D. Albert.

Gov. White was next to Mrs. Arthur Meeker, and on her other side was Charles S. Peterson. Then Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Maj. Lohr, Mrs. Sunny, Dr. William A. Pusey, Miss Agnes Nestor, Count Elias, Mrs. F. H. Smith, Maj. Streyckmans, Mrs. Homer T. Buckley, and Ulysses Grant-Smith.

Prince Rospigliosi was Mrs. Tiffany's luncheon partner, and on her other side was Maj. Reed Landis. Among others there were Mrs. Edward Hines, Dr. Frank R. Moulton, Mrs. Herman Black, Dr. Albert, Mrs. Streyckmans, Princess Rospigliosi, Prince Potenziani and his daughter, Donna Myriam Potenziani; Lieut. Gov. Donovan, Mrs. Lohr, Mrs. Simon, Gen. Parker, Consul General Castruccio, Mrs. Andrew MacLeish, Prince Shoenburg, Miss Clara Lake, and Mr. and Mrs. John M. Handley.

Young Women Sit With Officers.

Some of the young women who sat at tables with the Italian officers were Miss Helen Dawes and her cousin, Miss Mary Dawes, Mrs. Robert T. Sherman [Jean Dawes], Mrs. Nathaniel Owings, Mrs. Stanley Zaring, Miss Louise Brewer, Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer, Miss Margot Atkin and Miss Phyllis V'alsh. When the ladies left the Trustees' Lounge to go to the Italian pavilion for the reception Prince Potenziani was giving, they all had tiny Italian and American flags, salvaged from the ice cream, sticking in their hats, adding more atmosphere to what proved to be one of the most colorful affairs of the day. So carried away were most of us that if we had known the words we would have joined in the Fascist hymn when the flyers and other Italians sang it so lustily.

The most important social affair on today's program for the Italian flyers is the reception and ball Prince Potenziani and the Italy-America society are giving at the Casino club. The hour for the affair to start is set at 10:30 o'clock, for the flyers are to attend a dinner and another reception and ball before they go to the Casino on Delaware place.

Receiving with Prince Potenziani will be his daughter, Donna Myriam, Gen. Balbo, Consul General and Mme. Castruccio, Ambassador Rosso, Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, Mrs. Frank Parker, Mrs. Wat T. Cluverius, Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes and Miss Clara Lake.

SWELL GARRICK

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

Swell Garrick—the World's Perfect Tailor's Dummy—is the label given him by those who didn't know that his well molded body had been created by athletic training, rather than tailoring skill. Maitland, a crooked gambler, is the purported guardian of lovely Rhoda Fairclough. He and Schewan, his chief, plot to trick Rhoda out of a fortune. Maitland has Rhoda adjudged insane. She has been administered a drug which will produce temporary madness. Having no proof of guilt Garrick determines to settle the matter in his own way. His solicitor tells him that if Rhoda can gain and maintain her liberty for twenty-eight days she will be considered legally sane. Garrick undertakes a bold rescue. He escapes to London with Rhoda. At night they burgle their way into a private boathouse on the Thames. Garrick hires Alf, a farm hand out of work, as a helper and buys his silence. One of the gang is shot during an encounter in Garrick's home and the police suspect Garrick. Garrick obtains a covered van and equipment and buys a controlling interest in "Jelks' World Famous Fair."

INSTALLMENT XXXI.

DISASTER.

"I've bought a sort of circus since I saw you last!" Garrick told Rhoda. "I'm afraid you'll be rather disappointed. There's only one merry-go-round, a tower you slide down on door mats, and a shooting gallery. We supply our own electric light from a steam tractor and we rent part of our ground to local exhibitors. O, and, by the way, you're a Canadian and——"

He stopped at the girl's startled protest and then explained.

"Touring the country in a caravan by ourselves we should have been the object of attraction whenever we stopped for the night," he began airly. "As it is, Mr. Jelks plans his stopping places beforehand and pays rent for them. The police see the lorries and the caravans drive up and, as they have granted the license, they're not interested in the company."

At Hammersmith they got out and he introduced her to the proprietor as Miss Maryland of Toronto, and then helped her back into the van.

The merry-go-round had already been dismantled and was stacked on its trailer. The helter skelter was lying about in sections, while the men took their time over the work.

"It's no use, Mr. Robinson! It's a blinking wash out, that's what it is! We've got no more hope of getting to Basingstoke then we have of driving round the moon," exploded Mr. Jelks. "I told the men—the regulars, that is—all about you and they didn't believe me. They said they were fed up and knew they'd have to wait for their money again. Had to promise them an extra 5 bob all round to finish the packing. When they've finished they're all going off except the two Wops."

Rhoda, who refused to be left out of the activities, unearthed a little sentry box affair, a relic of the fair's more prosperous days, and gave change and generally managed the financial affairs of the undertaking.

"What are 'Wops'?—and shall we need two of them at Basingstoke?"

"Wops! Why Italians, of course! They drive the steam tractor. That leaves me a driver short for the lorry that takes the trailer with more than half the show."

"One driver short and you're on the verge of suicide! O, my dear Mr. Jelks! I remember once when I was in the Rockies—but never mind that! I can drive the lorry."

"Well, I did have it in mind to suggest as much," admitted Mr. Jelks. "But seeing as you're the boss of the show——"

"Mr. Jelks, you think I'm a bit of a funny freak—but I like work. You'll find there's very little in this show business that I can't do," asserted Garrick, and wondered how on earth he was going to redeem this ridiculous boast if he had anything more difficult to do than drive a lorry.

In half an hour the tractor got up steam and the Italians drove it out. It was a little after midnight before the main procession was ready.

Mr. Jelks' caravan, which now had added to its other functions that of storing all the odds and ends, went first. Then Garrick's fitted van, with Rhoda inside, driven by Alf. Behind them Garrick himself driving an enormous lorry, with an equally enormous trailer.

Garrick's light van could have done fifty miles an hour but it had to accommodate itself to the fourteen of the lorry.

At the first cross roads out of London they overtook the steam tractor. At the next cross roads Jelks signaled a halt.

"Have to wait for the Wops!" he exclaimed. Thus the net speed was brought down to that of the tractor, which was about eight miles an hour.

It was nearly dawn by the time they had made the forty odd miles to Basingstoke. And it took another hour to maneuver the tractor and the lorries into position on their chosen ground. Early in the proceedings the police arrived and were dealt with by Jelks.

"That's the advantage, you see," said Garrick to Rhoda. "Now I suppose we shall have to help him with his show."

As soon as the labor exchanges were open Jelks engaged casual labor and soon there was plenty for Garrick to do. He had obtained a clean boiler suit from one of the Wops and was soon indistinguishable from the rest.

In the evening, when the show opened, he took turns at relieving the Italian driving the merry-go-round and thoroughly enjoyed himself. Rhoda unearthed a little sentry box affair and generally managed the financial affairs of the undertaking. While at work she painted her face brown in traditional gypsy fashion.

They were at Basingstoke three days and then moved on to Guildford. The "World Famous Fair" did indifferent business and made remarkably little money. But this did not damp the spirits of either of them.

A week passed that to them was a glorious picnic. And then out of the blue came disaster.

Later he blamed himself. He had been enjoying himself in security and Rhoda's constant companionship. He had neglected his offensive against the gang. And the gang, by one fatal slip of his, had tracked him where Scotland Yard had failed.

It was in the middle of their last evening at Guilford. Business had been fairly brisk and an Italian had just relieved him from a long spell on the roundabout. He emerged, crouching, through the little wooden door under the track, when—above the din of the steam organ—a voice spoke in his ear.

"Give up the girl, Garrick—or we'll whistle up the police for you."

He straightened, turned and faced Schewan.

"Hullo, Gorilla!" he said lightly. "How did you get here?" His voice was confident, but inwardly panic gripped him. Even if he could yet save Rhoda her safe retreat in the "World Famous Fair" had been cut away.

The steam organ of the roundabout had come to the end of "Annie Laurie." There was a blessed interval of thirty seconds or so, broken only by the ping of rifles in the shooting gallery, before the wheezy old machinery could reverse the drum and start it over again. In the interval Garrick said:

"It's a difficult choice, Gorilla. Give me a minute to think it over."

"I'm not hurrying you," answered Schewan. "Only don't start any tricks, because I'm not playing hide and seek any more."

Schewan's right hand was in his side pocket—and Garrick knew that, himself unarmed, he was covered with a revolver.

"I thought I'd beaten you this time," said Garrick. "How very clever of you to stop me! Congratulations!"

"Clever, eh! To catch you out being an amateur mechanic—why, you're almost better as an amateur crook! The first thing a real mechanic does if he gets a bit of oil on his face is to wipe it off. You had oil on your face last night when the show opened and you had it throughout the show. Nurse Amy happened to be on holiday in this town and she noticed that smear round about 8 o'clock and it was still there at 11 o'clock. Shall I call up the cops or are you going to tell me where the girl is?"

"Call the—er—cops!" drawled Garrick. "And—er—go to the devil!"

Schewan was momentarily at a loss. Garrick thought then that he was going to fire. They were standing in a roped off inclosure. The bustling throng of patrons of the "World Famous Fair" were at least twenty feet away. If Schewan were to fire he could almost certainly make a get away—and Garrick knew that it would be no use risking a frontal attack.

"Chief—it's all right! Ten to one she's here."

It was Dorling's voice speaking behind Garrick. Schewan kept his eyes on Garrick and his hand on the hidden revolver as he asked:

"What do you mean? Have you seen her?"

"As good as! There's an extra van there—near the entrance. I looked inside and flashed a torch. It's got up as a swell living room—no mistaking the feminine touch! And it's all much too clean for a showman's girl!"

"What d'you know about that, Swell Garrick?" demanded Schewan.

"In that case," smiled Garrick, "as you have found Miss Fairclough, you need not—er call the cops. Good night, Gorilla!"

"Wait!" The revolver in the pocket was within eighteen inches of Garrick's chest. "Is the girl here?"

"No, you idiot!" lied Garrick. "That van belong to the proprietor's wife."

It was unfortunate that Mr. Jelks, the proprietor, should choose that moment to bustle up to see why there were three men standing in the roped off inclosure.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

KIND: Sordid drama.

ACTING: Far superior to the scenario's deserts. Barbara Stanwyck handles her rôle of perpetual prostitute in a manner so astute and workmanlike as to make the picture a positive menace to silly or unreasoning young girls. A factory girl of no education, Lily bowls man after man down her alley until she is first mistress, and then wife of the president of a New York bank. And she makes it all seem easy, profitable and amusing. George Brent, Donald Cook, and Henry Kolker, as some of the men she subjugates, inject reality into situations that, differently handled, would be just plain comical. At that the audience does laugh occasionally in the wrong places.

DIRECTION: Able.

PHOTOGRAPHY, SETS, SOUND: Excellent.

DIALOGUE: What you would expect.

REMARKS: If, after all these years, producers are to make pictures like "Baby Face" because pictures like "Baby Face" are what the public demands, then I throw up my hands.

[Now I suppose you'll all go and take a look at the film and thus encourage the industry to turn out some more like it.]

THE STAGE

Fay Bainter, the actress who has been a star in many dramatic productions, will replace Luella Gear in the cast of "Gay Divorce," the musical comedy now at the Apollo theater, a few days hence. She is now in Chicago rehearsing the rôle, which will mark her debut on the lyric stage and involves the singing, or talking, of a hard boiled ditty entitled "Mr. and Mrs. Fitch." Miss Gear, who has been one of the featured principals of "Gay Divorce" since last fall, will return to her home on Long Island for a vacation.

Miss Bainter is regarded as one of the leading actresses of the American stage. Her last appearance in Chicago was as co-star with Walter Hampden in the revival of Barrie's "The Admirable Crichton" two seasons ago. She recently appeared in New York in the all star revival of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," in the role of Topsy. Other plays in which she has acted here were: "East Is West," "The Willow Tree," "The Dream Girl," "First Love," "Jealousy," and the all star revivals of "The Two Orphans" and "She Stoops to Conquer."

Pauline Frederick and her company moved from the Cort to the Garrick theater last night to continue their engagement in "Her Majesty the Widow."

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: by The Chicago Tribune.]

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

CASE 463.

At 8:10 p. m., July 4, 1933, Miss Ruby Marshall left her apartment on the fifth floor of the Hotel Oakwood. As she walked toward the elevator she passed Jane McGuire. The fourteen year old child had her Scottish terrier on a long leash and as they came opposite each other the dog growled and leaped at Miss Marshall. The woman screamed and ran back to her own apartment.

. . . . . .

Thirty minutes later Mrs. McGuire had a call from police headquarters informing her that Miss Marshall had received first aid at Mercy hospital from a wound on the knee where the McGuire dog had bitten her. Invalided for the last two years Mrs. McGuire, unable to look into the situation herself, immediately called her old friend, Prof. Fordney, informing him of the above and asking him to look into the matter.

He found Miss Marshall sitting on a chair in the emergency ward about to leave the hospital. Receiving permission to examine the wound from the doctor who had just taken care of her, Fordney raised Miss Marshall's evening dress, notice her hose were rolled below the knees, removed the bandage and found cauterized marks on the right knee cap. Turning to the physician he inquired, "Are you sure those are teeth marks?

"Why . . . they look like it to me!"

Lowering the woman's dress, the professor told her, "You certainly didn't show much intelligence in trying to frame this charge against Mrs. McGuire, toward whom I know you held a personal grudge for years. Her dog did not bite you!"

HOW DID HE KNOW?

[See solution on page 27.]

Perhaps you have a story or problem you would like to submit to Prof. Fordney. If so, send it to him care of this paper. He will be delighted to receive it.

Forecast Hit for Anna Sten in First Film

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 16.—[Special.]—Hollywood is showing advance interest in Anna Sten, blonde Russian actress, who hasn't had even her first film finished after fifteen months here.

Miss Sten, who was imported by Sam Goldwyn, producer at United Artists, drew a salary every week for fifteen months while she was mastering English, learning the tricks and technique by which Hollywood actresses project charm on to celluloid, and waiting for Goldwyn to decide what story vehicle was to be considered 100 per cent sure fire for her. Now she's working hard under direction of George Fitzmaurice to complete "Nana," from the Emile Zola story, and the professional observers around Hollywood think she may turn out to be another great European contribution to the screen as soon as her first film reaches the public. Something like Marlene Dietrich.

Her contract with Goldwyn gives her a big increase as soon as she finishes her second film. In the meantime her pay checks for fifteen months, the English lessons and other coaching Goldwyn prescribed for her, Goldwyn's investment in various story treatments and the expenses of keeping a staff screen testing and costuming her, fitting up sets and mechanical preparations, have exceeded $60,000 or $70,000.

United Artists thinks it will be $60,000 well ventured.

Engagement of Three Girls Is Announced

Week-end Brings News of Romance.

Maternity center, and Dr. Maurice Fishbein.

Party Wednesday for Miss Dingman.

On Wednesday evening Miss Mary Dingman, a member of the staff of the world's council of the Y. W. C. A. with headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, another council delegate, is to be the special guest of the Century of Progress hospitality committee of the Chicago Y. W. C. A. at the Chicago Woman's club. Mrs. Hermon B. Butler as the chairman of the committee will be the hostess.

Assisting her will be Mrs. William P. Hodgkins, Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick, Mrs. Frank P. Hixon, Mrs. Charles W. Gilkey, Mrs. William A. Vawter II., Mrs. W. A. Alexander, and Mrs. Philip S. Post.

Miss Dingman was the spokesman for women at the London disarmament conference in 1932 when on behalf of fourteen international organizations she presented to the conference a peace petition signed by 12,000,000 women in 56 different countries.

The Chicago Woman's club will be the scene of another party for the council women Friday noon when the club itself has a 12:30 luncheon in its attractive moderne dining room. That evening there is to be a reception in the Trustees' Lounge at the Fair, with Mrs. Dawes, Mrs. Andrew MacLeish, and Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy receiving.

Invitations have been issued by Mrs. Carter H. Harrison and her assistant hostesses at the Illinois Host house for another reception for the visitors at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Garden Party of English Union.

The week will reach a pleasant climax with the garden party for which the English Speaking union is putting cards in the mail the early part of this week. At 4 o'clock Sunday in the lovely lake bluff garden of Mrs. Gary in Glencoe the union will entertain for the English and Canadian delegates to the international congress.

It wouldn't be an English party if there were not hot tea, but there's also to be a great big bowl of orangeade under the big elm tree that dominates the yard. And then many of the guests will undoubtedly wander over into the James Simpsons' gardens, for they adjoin those of the Garys.

Assisting Victor Elting, who is president of the union, and Mrs. Gary with the arrangements are Mrs. Arthur Meeker and Mrs. Wolf.

"The Polish Week of Hospitality," at A Century of Progress will be opened this afternoon with a reception at 4.30 o'clock in the grand ballroom of the Drake hotel at which Titus Zbyszewski, consul general of Poland, will be the host. A short program will be given by Mme. Marie Bronarzyk, Polish coloratura soprano.

Entertain Conductor Before Concert.

Among the dinner parties to be given tonight before the Chicago Philharmonic orchestra concert at the Auditorium is one that Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Redheffer will give at their Lake Shore drive apartment for Jerzy Bojanowski, who is to conduct the orchestra tonight. Mr. Bojanowski has conducted the opera in Dresden, Warsaw, and Vienna, and is a delightful and charming gentleman as well as being an excellent musician.

The third annual sale of the Vocational Society for Shut-Ins is being held this year on Aug. 1 at Birchwood Farms, the summer home of Mrs. Joseph E. Otis at Harbor Springs, Mich. The sale, which will begin at 9:30 a. m., will feature a special line of summer luncheon sets. Mrs. Otis will be assisted by Mrs. Edward L. Hersey, Mrs. Otis' daughter, Mrs. Nathaniel Owings, Mrs. Frank M. Gordon, Mrs. Laird Bell, and Mrs. Dexter Fairbank.

Those who have children usually consider it a vacation to get away from their youngsters, for no matter how devoted mothers and fathers are, it is pleasant to go away without the children occasionally. But to Mrs. Francis Johnson an ideal summer vacation is to have four little ones, the children of her late brother, Richard Nevins, as her guests and that is what she is going to do very soon.

Just as she did last summer, she is taking a house in California, either in La Jolla or Santa Barbara, and young Richard, Louisa [named for Mrs. Johnson], Ann, and Katherine Nevins will be her guests for the next six weeks. Mrs. Johnson left Friday for the west and until she has seen the houses that are available she does not know where she will be.

As soon as she is settled her young visitors will join her from their home in Pasadena. Mrs. Johnson thinks it is very sweet of their mother to let her have them, but we think it is equally sweet of Mrs. Johnson to let their mother have a vacation, don't you?

In Washable Silk or Cotton, Model Is Appropriate for Many Occasions

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

Washable silk crêpes, linens, cotton voiles, and piques will make up smartly in this dress. The raglan sleeves, cut to fit easily, give a quaint and modish cape-like line to the silhouette. The hips are smoothly fitted and isn't the arrangement of the tied sash pretty?

The pattern, No. 2613, comes in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inch bust measure. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 35 inch material with ¾ yard of 2 inch wide ribbon.

Wild Elders Bring Shame to Their Children

Book by Ishbel Ross Tells Young Girl's Plight.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Why did the older generation talk about wild young generations? What did the young ones do that compared with the heedless debauchary of their elders? Mary thought of her mother's sophisticated friends tippling at cocktails all the time, purring over new young men and breaking up their homes without any qualms for their children."

Mary thought these things as she tried to steel her emotions against the terrific onslaught produced by the screaming headlines in the latest sensational divorce suit, that of her own mother and father, as revealed in Ishbel Ross' new novel, "Marriage in Gotham" [Harper's]. Mary, the charming daughter of Henrietta and Hector Tulloch, reads the story of her family's denouement in the library of the fashionable school she attends.

"With an electric shock she saw the name Tulloch blazing at her . . . Her hand shook as she forced herself to read on. Suddenly, words were starting out at her, each one like a blow in the face—large, black, staring, inescapable, captured in neat, tight print—an indelible public record of something purely personal and private, she thought subconsciously. . . This couldn't be her family, she thought, as if she were on the outside, looking through a pane of glass at something collapsing soundlessly, but with terrific force on the other side."

But there it was, in full view—a divorce suit filed by her mother, counter charges by her father! Famous architect, socially prominent couple, well known club woman, liaison of twenty years' standing, son's friend named corespondent, son and daughter at college'

Where divorce lightning strikes it isn't the foolish middle aged wife who grasps at happiness through a boy her own son's age who stirs pity, though heaven knows the attempt to hold to a vanishing youth with face lifts and dyed hair and beauty parlor frequenting is pitiful enough. Nor does the father, still in love with his wife in spite of a twenty year's liaison with another woman leave us moved with the pitying emotions reserved for a fine, sensitive young daughter whose world of faith and love and beauty collapses with one fell blow.

"A hard core formed within the girl as she realized that all the love and intimacy that had seemed to exist in her home had been false." And that hard core remained to blight, distort and demoralize the natural, wholesome emotions of the girl, Mary.

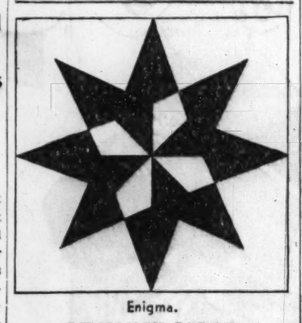
"Enigma" Adapts Itself to Many Color Schemes



Enigma.

BY NANCY CABOT.

This variation of the ever popular star pattern, called "Enigma," has, paradoxically, nothing enigmatical about it. It is easily identified for the design it is, and beloved of quilt makers because it is so easy to make. It has the added virtue of adapting itself to almost any color scheme.

For a quilt pattern of this design send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn street.

Hundred Children Will Enjoy Game as Guests of Sally

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

All set for the Sox game, kids?

July 27 is the date, you know! Mr. Comiskey has very kindly invited me to bring 100 boys and girls out to the south side park to see the Sox play Cleveland. I know just how much you youngsters go for baseball and how well you know it, so it shouldn't be any trouble at all to convince me that you really want to come.

So all you Sox fans get busy on your letters, tell me who you like best on the team, and why, or anything else you think will prove to me that you should be included in my group. I'll have room for 50 boys and 50 girls and I want to take those who will enjoy the game most.

Simply because you've enjoyed one of my parties, doesn't mean that you may not come to another, you know. Every one is eligible for all parties. The only rules are these: You must all write your own letters and include your name, address, and age in them. And those letters must be on my desk by Wednesday—so don't waste any time in getting them off to Sally Joy Brown, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

BY MARY MEADE.

With scorching days here, have you noticed the smaller members growing irritable and exhibiting lagging appetites? Some folks you know have reached the proverbial "last straw" and are resorting to threats. "Johnny, if you don't drink your milk you can't go out to play." And "Eat your carrots or you'll have to go straight to bed!"

Do these warnings sound familiar? I hope not! For one thing wise mothers are doing these summer days is making eating into an adventure for enthusiastic young diners. They're leading runabouts to use their imaginations and think a little more about the enjoyment and a little less about the necessity of eating their three meals a day.

It all centers about the game of "let's pretend." Gay stories about this food or that told while small folk are eating have vanquished many a plateful. A small, funny dog or a china pattern with a story to it designed on the plate has inspired all sorts of clean-up jobs. The only thing we must remember is that it's no fun pretending pleasant things about food that isn't cooked to perfection and served delightfully.

Then more imagining. If you have not tried them you just can't appreciate how good pea "marbles," spinach "grass," and potato "snowballs" can be—especially when surrounded by toast strip "fences." Nor can I think of anything more exciting (to young imaginations) than a potato ship floating on a gay sea of peas and carrots—or a "volcano" of mashed potatoes from which the gravy is pouring in a most lavalike fashion.

And another tip. Vegetables usually disappear down "red lanes" without any trouble if the youngster has planted his own small vegetable garden and watched it progress day by day. In fact, he even may be like the anxious young farmer who dug up his seeds a time or two "to see if they were there."

Along with the runabout's love of gardens comes a fascination for planting seeds. So serve prepared cereals in individual packages and let youthful diners "sew the seeds" in their bowls of milk. Also a "haystack" of dry cereal looks just like the one beside which "Little Boy Blue" went to sleep.

Chicken croquettes are delicious when shaped like little chickens with green pepper eyes and combs of parsley. Ground meat balls are fun, and so are toast "boxes" filled with scrambled eggs.

Sandwiches and cookies cut in the shape of chickens or dogs will delight young diners. Also try "soda fountain" milk served with straws—or as a special inducement use bright colored candy straws.

Glass custard cups are "goldfish bowls" in which little pieces of orange "goldfish" swim in lemon gelatin. Floating islands will be popular, as will "funny face" pears and peaches with cherry eyes and date mouths. Fruit in an orange shell "basket" will be devoured with gusto.

There seems to be no necessity for pretending about ice cream to induce the young ones to eat it, but a ball of ice cream on a fudge square forms a beautiful "Humpty Dumpty" for the not-too-young.

One warning only. Don't let any too-sensible grown-up laugh at the game or the joy will be spoiled.

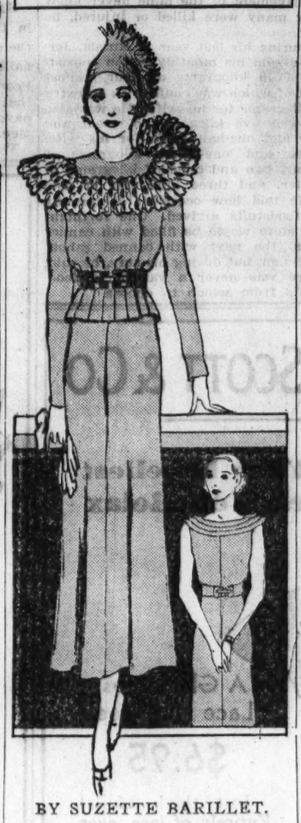
Birdlike Fashion Seen in French Daytime Suits



BY SUZETTE BARILLET.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Chanticleer certainly would seem to have presided over the rising sun of many of the new fashions. There are the many feathery treatments like Mainbocher's new "owl-feather" coat trims, with the "feathers" cut out of broadcloth to replace fur.

Schiaparelli gives a charming birdlike air to the youthful dress-and-jacket all-day suit sketched today, without resorting to any servile feather imitations. The suit is in dark pansy blue shantung with a wing-bertha of full ruffled blue-and-white elastic ribbon trimming the short collarless jacket, which pretends it is part of a two-piece frock till removed. This wing frill, by the way, follows exactly the same line in back as in front. The jacket is fitted in gores from its hem to a little above the dark blue leather belt, giving a peplum suggestion. It's open up the left side of the front and fastened on the shoulder under the upstanding, double ribbon crest.

The simple sleeveless frock also has a slightly upcurved shoulder line, achieved by three bias folds of the pansy blue shantung.

Antoinette Gives Helpful Tips to Readers.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Call it a yen for dramatic eyes, mysterious eyes, slumberous eyes, or just plain "come-on" orbs—your modern charmer would sooner be caught out without her hair combed than without her aye "dressing." And we don't mean with poultices, either. We mean her eyeshadow and mascara, the most devastating of all artificial aids.

However, before we go further into that—and we could go a long way were we only to count the number of victims brought down with a glance shot from behind a cleverly shadowed lid—I say, before we go further into the artificial aids, let's get the eye itself "lit" up. Yours, indeed, may be all that shadow and mascara could ask as stage setting for their grandiose act.

Again, yours and yours and yours may not be. Yours may be tired eyes, strained eyes, crinkle-lidded ones, or heavy. They may even look the part of old eyes without a right in the world for so looking. Anyway, there's magic in the eye lotion. There's magic in dousing the eyes well, mornings, with cold water.

Water salted to the taste of tears is a good old eye lotion. There's relief for tired eyes in applications of a washcloth wrung out of hot water. This releases the set muscles. Followed with a cold water application, eyes become more like their brilliant selves again.

Pat your nourishing cream over the eyelid surface. With so many women this is the only apparent neglected skin area. No wonder the skin crinkles and crackles early. Use a pad saturated with astringent around the upper and lower lid. This skin needs nursing along just as the skin on the cheek or nose or chin does. It's all of the same character, you know!

Keep the brows arched, thinned down [not too mean a line]. Keep the neighborhood free of straggling hairs with a tweezer, or they'll call you "untidy face."

Child Returns Good for Good, and Vice Versa

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

You get what you give.

In human relations, with a few exceptions, I believe that is true—not only between grownups, but between parents and children. If you're cranky and impatient with your children, you will get that back again in either crankiness or impatience, or in some coin very similar.

If you don't take the trouble to be courteous or even civil to your children, in time they will give back to you discourtesy or incivility. Being the funny human beings we are, many of us will lavish our sweetest smiles and nicest manners on outsiders about who we care little and lavish frowns and unmannerliness on our own familiars. Some people [including parents and relatives] often act as though children had no sensibilities at all, yet are surprised when a child gives back in turn the treatment he has received.

If you are responsive to your child's expressions of thought or feeling, later when he has matured a little he will be responsive to you in things that concern you either mentally or emotionally. If you keep your word to your child, he will keep his to you. If you trust him, he will trust you. I know these things are so. I have proved them myself.

Try it out, if you haven't. You get what you give.

ELECTRICAL BUILDING
A Century of Progress

THEATERS have found a way to draw the crowds in hot weather. Air conditioning! They have increased summer attendance tremendously because people seek the cool comfort of air conditioning. In increasing numbers stores are finding this new way to increase summer sales volume. Doctors, dentists find they can work better. Patients respond more quickly. Air-cooled homes become more livable, more healthful.

Electric air conditioning removes excessive humidity that makes summer heat intolerable. In an air-cooled room you feel better, work better, sleep better. Because windows are kept closed, dirt and noise are kept out. A self-contained, electric air conditioning unit is easily installed in one room or in an entire home or office. It is no more complicated than your radio or refrigerator. For full details call Ran. 1200, Local 168.

YANKEE ENGINEER REVEALS DETAILS OF SOVIET MINING

Places Gold Production at $38,500,000.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, July 16.—Soviet Russian gold production amounts to $38,500,000 annually. This revelation was made today by George Jermain of Escanaba, Mich., who spent three years in Russia directing operations for the mining trust. The soviet government has endeavored to keep the production figures secret. [Gold production in the United States totaled $43,419,018 in 1930.]

For almost a year Jermian supervised activities of the "glavzoloto," the chief gold mining trust in Russia, whose administration is controlled and directed by the G. P. U. [soviet secret police.]

Conditions for the workers in the gold mining camps are somewhat better than those endured by laborers in other soviet industries, but the food shortage has reached them and they too are going hungry, the Yankee engineer said.

Married His Interpreter.

Jermain was formerly a teacher in the Michigan school of mines. Like many other Americans in Russia, he married his interpreter, a tiny dark Crimean girl who often times accompanied him underground.

Jermain says that a majority of the accidents in the soviet mines are due to carelessness and reports that one man is killed for every 20,000 tons of coal mined in Russia. In the United States, he pointed out not one man is killed for every 5,000,000 tons mined. Jermain confirms reports of other American experts working in Russia that most of the expensive machines and equipment which were imported by Russia in 1929 have already been destroyed as a result of the incompetency of Russian workers. A machine the normal life of which would be 20 years in America, does not last one year under soviet management, he said.

Small Rations.

"Of 12,000 men employed by the Middle Ural copper mining trust, only 1,000 are underground workers," Jermain said. "The rations of the drillers are the largest. They receive 21 kilograms [a kilogram is 2.2 pounds] of black bread a month. The smallest ration is received by the ordinary miner—10 kilograms. The miners are divided into ten categories, each receiving different rations.

"Russian mines are not run economically. This costs them 1,800 rubles [about $900 at normal rates of exchange] to mine one ton of copper, while an ounce of gold costs from $60 to $80 depending on where it is mined. When considering the cost of depreciation of American equipment and the $1,500,000 the soviet government is spending annually on American mining engineers' wages, Moscow could have obtained more metal for this money abroad than it has obtained in Russia.

"Because of the growing famine many mines are being shut down completely and the workers of these camps have been left to go hungry.

"Another instance of incompetency is seen in the erection of ore reducing plants costing $1,000,000 miles from where the bodies of ore are located."

Transport System Bad.

Jermain also reports that the soviet transportation system is on the verge of a breakdown and, although passengers on trains frequently see the remains of tremendous wrecks, not a word ever appears in the soviet press. Last winter, he said, a trans-Siberian express left two carloads of workers for his mines on a sidetrack near Sverdlovsk to be picked up.

The engineer of the locomotive en route from the mines to pick them up sat down to warm his hands and his engine plowed into the cars, reducing them to splinters. The workers were killed. The G. P. U. surrounded the wreck in a few minutes and the management of the mine never knew how many were killed or injured, he said.

During his last year in Russia, Jermain said his monthly ration consisted of 19 kilograms of flour, almost half of which was chaff, with an extra 9 kilograms for his wife. He was also allowed five kilograms of meat and two and one-half extra for his wife; three and one-fourth kilograms of sugar, two and one-half kilograms of butter, and three kilograms of fish.

He told how occasional shipments of foodstuffs arrived. One fortnight the store would be filled with canned peas, the next with canned rabbit, then fish, but during his stay, he said, there was never a variety of food stuffs from which to choose.

SHOE REPAIRERS HAIL RETURN OF BETTER TIMES

Some 2,000 shoe repairers, assembled in the Hotel Sherman yesterday for the opening of their annual exposition, hailed the return of better times. People are buying better shoes and that means they will spend money to have them repaired, said the repairmen.

W. C. Hatch, one of the managers of the exposition, said that during the depression people bought cheap shoes and threw them away when the soles wore through. Nobody, he said, would spend $1.50 for repair work on shoes that didn't cost more than $2.50. Just after the war, when shoe prices were high, he said, the annual repair bill was half a billion dollars, whereas it is now 250 million.

Three thousand repairmen, representing all parts of the country, are competing for 500 prizes, including silver trophies, medals and certificates, for the best examples of craftsmanship. There are 3,000 pairs of shoes to judge, one of each badly worn, the other expertly remade.

The three day event is called the National Shoe Repairers' and Dealers' exposition.

GOLDEN GLOVES SQUAD OPENS TRAINING CAMP TODAY

IRISH CHAMPS DUE TOMORROW IN NEW YORK

Invaders Reach City Thursday.

Golden Gloves Week

THIS week's schedule of activities in preparation for the Golden Gloves bouts between the Chicago team and the champions of Ireland on Aug. 2 follows:

TODAY—Chicago's Golden Gloves squad leaves at 2 p. m. from the Van Buren street station of the South Shore lines for training camp at Grand Beach, Mich. Reception at Michigan City, Ind., at 3:30 p. m.

TOMORROW—Irish amateur boxing champions arrive in New York.

THURSDAY—Irish team arrives at Union station, Chicago, at 11:50 a. m. Reception at station and at office of Mayor Edward J. Kelly in city hall.

FRIDAY—Dinner for Irish boxers at Mid-West Athletic club at 6 p. m., followed by west side reception and dance at 8 o'clock in Garfield park.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

While Chicago's Irish are busy this week preparing an old fashioned reception for the amateur boxing champions of Erin, who arrive Thursday, Chicago's Golden Gloves squad will begin preparation for a reception at Soldiers' field on the night of Aug. 2, when the third international tournament sponsored by THE TRIBUNE will be held.

Ireland's eight champions reach New York tomorrow on the Majestic. They will be acclaimed at Union station at noon Thursday, after which they will proceed through the loop to the office of the mayor, Edward J. Kelly, who, as one Irishman to others, will give the boys proper welcome. On Friday night the west side will greet the boys from the old country in Garfield park and a week from tonight the south siders will see the brawny invaders in an outdoor festival in Jackson park.

Chicagoans Leave Today.

However, it takes two to make a scrap, and the parties of the second part, Chicagoland's Golden Gloves champions and alternates, conquerors of New York in the 1933 intercity matches, leave this afternoon for their training camp at Grand Beach, Mich. For one day more than two weeks, these boys will battle among themselves for the eight positions on the team which will meet the Irish. No matter how furious the camp struggle, you may now be assured that Chicago's team will return, fit and ready on Aug. 2.

Only one of the 15 amateurs who leave this afternoon has a strain of Irish blood, and while Ireland may have produced some of the world's greatest scrappers, in the ring and out, Chicago's Golden Gloves have proved, and will prove again, that no racial group has cornered the market on skill and courage.

Take Special Car.

Chicago's team will meet at 12 o'clock today for luncheon at the Illinois Athletic club. At 2 o'clock they will board a special car on the South Shore lines at the Van Buren street station for Michigan City, Ind., from there a bus will take them to the Golfmore hotel at Grand Beach, Mich. The squad will be in charge of Johnny Behr and Jabber Young. The members of the squad are:

112 pounds—Johnny Baltzer, Davenport; Lennie Cohen, Chicago.

Heavyweight—John Pacek, Chicago.

The first named boxer in each weight division, with the exception of the 126 pound class, is the Chicago champion. In the 126 pound class, George Van der Heyden was the runner-up, and he advanced when Leo Rodak, the champion, turned professional. Van der Heyden won his bout in the intercity series with New York. Five of the seven champions listed above also were victorious against New York, which indicates the caliber of the squad. Lennie Cohen, flyweight, and Billy Celebron, welterweight, also won their New York fights.

Two Are U. S. Champs.

In addition, attesting the strength of the international team, Celebron won the National A. A. U. welterweight championship at Boston and Max Marek won the national light heavyweight championship in the same tournament. Four of the boys—Ginter, Rothier, Marek and Pacek—won championships in the Catholic Youth organization tournament last winter.

No greater group of amateurs ever represented Chicago in the six years of Golden Gloves and if the Irish boys can lick them, they've every right to shout "Erin Go Bragh."

The Golden Glovers will arrive at Michigan City at 3:30 this afternoon. The Indiana resort city has prepared a reception for the boys, who will train at nearby Grand Beach. The Michigan City Kilty band and a committee will meet the train and escort

IRELAND SENDS MILKMAN TO GOLDEN GLOVES

Kennedy (center) poses with two brothers, his mother and a sister before the trip to America for the International Golden Gloves bouts on Soldiers' field Aug. 2. Irish Champ Learns Boxing in the Library

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, July 16.—The Irish welterweight champion, who will meet the Chicago champion in the International Golden Gloves bouts at Soldiers' field on Aug. 2, is a milkman who got his first knowledge of boxing out of books.

A library is not accepted as the proper place to learn ringcraft, but in the case of Jack Kennedy, 21 year old Dublin dairy worker, it not only compensated for a youthful shyness which kept him from getting his experience in a ring but it was easily accessible when long hours at the milk depot prevented Kennedy's appearance at a gymnasium.

Kennedy, unlike several of the other members of the Irish team now on the high seas en route to Chicago, fostered an enthusiasm for pugilism from early childhood. Three years ago, however, was the first time he was able to arrange his hours and muster his courage to enter a boxing club.

Some Fun, eh, Doyle?

He joined the famous St. Andrews' club of this city and reported late one evening for his first lesson. The initiation of a newcomer is one of the highlights in a boxing club's activities. There is something diverting about the helplessness of a beginner before a practiced performer.

Kennedy's first opponent was hand picked by the entertainment committee. He was Cadet Doyle, the most proficient boxer in the club. Doyle, wise in the ritual of the initiation, started by flicking several long lefts at Kennedy. He showed no concern when they did not land, putting it down as an accident.

Doyle then closed in to mix it and stopped short when a right cross shook him to his heels. His favorite punch, a right upper cut, missed and the jeers that had been planned for Kennedy were directed at Doyle. Doyle responded by wading in and soundly thrashing Kennedy.

Early to Bed—Early to Milk.

Kennedy, however, had made such an impressive showing that he was assigned to a class immediately and three months later he won his first championship the junior [novice] lightweight title of the Free State.

"The Doyle bout," Kennedy admitted, "was my first, but I had read every book I could find on boxing and had a fair idea of the rudiments before I ever put on a glove. It was very valuable, but the real knowledge of the game, I learned, can only be

GOOD OLD RAIN! IT GIVES SOX A CHANCE TO REST

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 16.—The White Sox have been looking around for the last six weeks for an extended vacation, and now they have it. Rain turned them away from their scheduled toil with the Yankees today, a matter that was suitable in view of the scare the world champions gave the Chicagoans with five homers on Saturday. And tomorrow is an open date, despite the postponement this afternoon, so the Sox can breathe more easily and perhaps tune up a bit before going back to their labors here Tuesday.

The rain here today was heavy, but despite this the Yankee officials gave positive indications of a desire to play. That was a complete turn around from their previous stands, when they always were on the look out for possible double headers. The change in policy is easy to understand. They are thinking of that 1933 pennant and are dodging double headers because it is far more difficult to win two in one afternoon than two in two afternoons. Manager Joe McCarthy also wants to keep his pitching staff in order at this critical point in the race.

Delay Games to September.

Further indication of the sudden unpopularity of double bills so far as the Yanks are concerned is that they will not dispose of today's washout during the present series. Tomorrow could have been used, but they are scheduled for an exhibition game some place. The Sox are here Tuesday and Wednesday, but will play only single games. The battles canceled this afternoon will be handled when they come back here on their final trip in September. By that time double headers will be acceptable. The Yanks by that time either will have the pennant fight under control or will be out of it entirely. A good bet is that it will not be the latter.

The Sox, after taking the first place Senators for three out of four and then coming here to be knocked silly by five Yankee homers in one game, are pretty well convinced that when the finish line is reached the McCarthy boys will be the first to cross it.

Think Senators Are Through.

The Sox figured that what they saw in Washington indicated that the Senators, after their amazing spurt in the west, had shot their bolt. And what the Sox saw here yesterday made them think the Yanks are just starting. Babe Ruth is swinging at balls as he did when he was at his best, and he hasn't been doing that all season. When the Babe is going good the Yankees go right with him.

When the current series is resumed Tuesday the Sox pitching honors will fall to Ted Lyons instead of Sam Jones, who was going to work today. Lyons by that time will have had a full week of rest. Manager Fonseca has kept him out of action with the idea that a vacation might restore some of his old ability. Lyons claims his arm is O. K., but he hasn't pitched a good game for so long that even the oldest citizens can't recall it. If he can beat a crowd of maulers such as the Yanks it will be satisfactory proof that the old boy isn't as close to being through as some people fear.

Real Tonic for Pitchers.

The Sox pitching, which right along has been their marked weakness, has improved considerably since it became known that one of the mound workers would have to go to make room for Harold Haid, recently purchased from Seattle. Six well pitched games have been turned in out of eleven played since this ax threat became established.

The revival of the pitchers made Fonseca change his plans. The fellows he was doubtful about were among those who came through with excellent performances. However, the necessary vacancy was created by sending Billy Sullivan home and retiring him temporarily. Sullivan spiked his own hand trying to slide, so there was no sense keeping him around. On top of this, his hitting and first basing were so futile that he was a handicap.

MR. GRIFFITH CAN HARDLY BEAR TO TAKE THE MONEY!

Senators' Owner Shies at Commercialism in Baseball

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 16.—What with those fist fights between the Senators and the Yankees, which stimulated business early in the season, and the recent rise of his ball club to the top of the American league, Clark Griffith, the principal owner of the Washington baseball firm, is likely to make quite a few shillings for himself and his stockholders this year.

CLARK GRIFFITH.

Mr. Griffith must be very happy over this, for, much as he deplores emphasis on the commercial phase of the industry as harmful to the romantic illusions of the customers, he would not be a baseball magnate if he were not a very practical business man himself.

Those Shillings Aren't Hard to Take.

In this phase of his character, the only thing which would be likely to please him more than making quite a few shillings would be to make quite a few more shillings. He may even do that before the season is over, in which case his pleasure will know only the widest bounds, if any.

Mr. Griffith, business man though he is, has curious ideas as to the customers' psychology. He thinks their thoughts should never be directed to the commercial phases of the business, but should be always tempted by the pure beauties of the contest itself, and the rivalries of the firms, or teams, as he would prefer to call them.

It cannot be that he regards business as something sordid, however, because if that were the case he would not be in business. He merely holds that, in the minds of the customers and of the athletes, thought of gate receipts, profits, and pay are an ugly weed-growth which are likely to choke out the colorful flowers of illusion.

Remember They're Fans, Not Customers.

He would like the Washington customers, or fans, as he would prefer to call them, because there, again, the word customer imparts an unpleasant suggestion of business—he would like the Washington ballplayers, not as employés, but as loyal followers of a loving leader, which would be himself. If one of those players should be sent away to the St. Louis Browns, as many of them have been from time to time, the fans are to consider that one as a renegade and the player acquired from the Browns in trade as an enemy who has seen the error of his position and turned square. Griffith puts great pressure on the customers' imagination, however, for he made so many trades back and forth between his club and the Browns that the lineups nowadays seem almost interchangeable.

It is hard for a customer, unless he minds the trading very closely, to know offhand whether to cheer or boo a given ballplayer during a game between the Senators and the Browns. The athlete might change uniforms, and character, between innings.

Boy, a Silencer for Cash Register!

If someone would be kind enough to invent an absolutely noiseless turnstile and a silent cash register, those would be great boons to Mr. Griffith.

I have always thought that the making of a lot of money was one of the most romantic themes, but Mr. Griffith thinks otherwise and he is set in his way. His taste runs rather to the Frank Merriwell story than to the Horatio Alger sort. Frank Merriwell always played the game for the game's sake and seemed, somehow, to live very well on will power, air, or the poetic license of Burt L. Standish, who wrote all about him but never troubled to explain how he got by at Yale and elsewhere.

As he thrived in the old barbarian

BERGER DRIVES OUT HOME RUN TO WHIP MALONE

English Gets 6 Hits and 2 Walks.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs and Braves yesterday afternoon went in for the turn-about-is-fair-play motif. The Braves won the first game of a double header, 2 to 1, on Wally Berger's No. 17 homer in the eighth and the Cubs took the second, 3 to 1, to give Guy Bush his fifth straight victory and his eleventh for the season.

The ranking of the first five teams in the National league remained the same, the Giants, Cubs, Cardinals, and Braves participating in split double headers and the Pirates being rained out.

Pat Malone worked heroically in the first game. He held the Braves to seven hits while his mates were making ten off Ed Brandt, but received little help from his supporting cast. He tied the score with the Cubs' lone run in the seventh inning, Berger's homer followed with two out in the eighth. In the Cub half of the eighth the Chicagoans sank themselves with some fuzzy work on the bases just as it seemed a big rally would effect another tie, or perhaps give Pat his first victory since June 5.

Crowd Enjoys Both Games.

The crowd of 28,000 seemed to enjoy both games, but, of course, liked the second one better, especially since they got the thrill of seeing the Cubs come from behind with two runs driven in by Riggs Stephenson in the sixth.

For the first time this year the Cubs had their 1932 world series team on the field, the rôle being rounded out by the return to action of Capt. Woody English, who has been resting for a week. And what a return Woody put on. The captain, during the afternoon, had a triple, a double, four singles, and two walks in nine trips to the plate.

English drove in Malone with his double for the only score in the first game. In the second contest he walked and scored the tying run. He also scored the Cubs' last run of the day after singling to start the eighth. A batting mark in the two games of a mere .857!

FIRST GAME

The ability and agility of Urbanski gave the Braves a run in the first inning. He opened the game with a single to center, raced from first to third while Bill Herman was throwing out Jordan and scored on Berger's long fly to Demaree.

In their half the Cubs had the bases full with one down, but couldn't produce. English celebrated his return to action with a line single to right and stopped at second when Bill Herman knocked a single to the same terrain. After Cuyler had lined to Moore, Stephenson walked, filling the bases. Demaree fanned and Hartnett popped to Whitney.

Each team wasted a hit in the second inning. Hogan doubled with two down, but Maranville fouled to Cuyler. Jurges beat out a bunt with one down in the Cub half, but was picked off first when Malone missed on an attempt to bunt. Malone then was called out on strikes.

Cubs Waste Two Passes.

In the third inning the Cubs let two passes go to waste. English got the first walk. Then Bill Herman flied to Berger. Woody was out stealing and then Cuyler walked. Stephenson flied to Berger.

Each team in the fourth inning permitted a pair of base runners to flounder. In the Braves' half Whitney and Lee singled with two down. Hogan ended the threat with a pop to Jurges. In the Cub half Demaree led off with a single to left, paused while Hartnett flied to Berger, and strolled to second when Grimm was passed. Jurges flied to Lee, and Malone fanned for the second time.

English led off the fifth with his second hit, a single to center, but Bill Herman, attempting to sacrifice, popped to Jordan and Cuyler lined into a double play, Maranville to Jordan.

Moore got the Braves' fifth hit off

Despite the Ohioan's performance, the high gun of the two days' shoot was Mark Arie of Champaign. Arie won Saturday's meet and turned in a score of 197 yesterday, to give him a total score of 395 for the tournament honors.

Hiestand was second with 389. He shot only 189 on Saturday.

FORMAL CHOICE OF U. S. DAVIS CUP PLAYERS IS MADE

PARIS, July 16.—(AP)—Ellsworth Vines, Wilmer Allison, George Lott, and John Van Ryn today were formally named to represent the United States in the interzone Davis cup tennis finals against England at Auteuil this week. Keith Gledhill of Santa Barbara, Vines' doubles partner, was named as alternate.

Although the draw will not be made until later in the week, it was expected that Vines and Allison again would divide the singles burden with Lott and Van Ryn handling the doubles assignment.

Lott and Van Ryn have been especially impressive in practice here. They played two sets against Vines and Allison today and won the second, 6-3, after dropping the first, 10-12.

The series with England will get under way Friday with two singles matches. The doubles will be played Saturday and the final two singles Sunday.

The winner of the interzone finals will face France in the challenge round July 28-29-30.

BOXERS ARE INJURED

BY JERRY CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD S. S. MAJESTIC, July 16.—Injuries to two of the Irish Free State champions, en route to Chicago for the International Golden Gloves bouts on Aug. 2, slowed down the team's training on the high seas today.

Patrick Gerald Mulligan, 6 feet 7 inch heavyweight, slipped on the deck, wet from rain, this morning while doing road work and fell, with his 210 pounds coming down on his left wrist. Mulligan was turned over to the ship's doctor immediately and spent the day baking out the wrist.

Ernie Smith, the lightweight champion, injured a knuckle on his right hand in the sparring drill and likewise was sent to sick bay. Neither boxer, however, was believed to have been seriously enough injured to prevent his participation in tomorrow's drill, the last the team will take before it reaches New York on Tuesday morning.

Paddy Connolly, the soldier flyweight, continued his sweating out process today, coming within two pounds of the limit. He is determined to reach New York at his proper fighting weight even if he has to go below to the boiler room and shovel coal.

Limiting of the audience at the sparring drill this afternoon had little effect on the boxers' enthusiasm and for the third straight day it was necessary to call a halt on some of the boys. The outstanding offender was Paddy Hughes, the featherweight, who boxed three rounds with Hennelly, the middleweight. Hughes had the better of the workout, which was stoped short when he ignored orders from Trainer Sergeant Dwyer to avoid slugging bees with the 160-pounder.

Fishers! Now's the Time to Get Mackinaw Trout

BY BOB BECKER.

The Mackinaws are hitting. This is the news which comes from northwestern Michigan where each season anglers put in considerable time going after the big lake or Machinaw trout. Some of the fish are taken from Lake Michigan by trolling deep while other catches are made in lakes of northwestern Michigan.

Fishermen who go farther north in Lake Superior also connect with fine catches of lake trout because Superior is well stocked with this species. Excellent catches are made around Isle Royale by summer visitors and also around St. Ignace island, the island which in recent years has been the mecca of brook trout fishermen.

Big spoons put down deep are lures which no laker can resist at this time of the year. When we trolled for 'em above Traverse City on one Michigan fishing trip we used flashing metal lures that looked big enough to scare a fish of any size. But the lake trout struck these large lures without hesitation and came up from the deep water fighting every inch of the way.

In recent years the lake trout has won a higher place in the fisherman's estimation and on fishing programs. Whereas few if any anglers ever paid much attention to a spring fishing trip for lakers, now we have large crowds of sportsmen hurrying north early in the season to connect with this species before the fish retire to deep water. With ordinary casting outfits and even fly casting equipment the fishermen have found new thrills in catching trout weighing from 5 to 25 or 30 pounds.

Right now this species is found in deep water. When we connected with lakers in Lake Michigan they were well over 100 feet below the surface. During the hot months of the summer the fish will stay down deep. But in the fall they will come into shallow water again.

Certain Michigan inland lakes such as Charlevoix, Leelanau, and Torch, Superior National forest and Quetico lakes, and the Lake of the Woods region in Canada, offer lake trout fishing throughout the summer and many bass and muskie fishermen take time off to troll for the big fellows. There is always inducement enough to troll because a real big fish can enter a prize contest. Lake trout are today rated as real game fish and represent a class in prize fishing contests.

Oster Perils Kid Leonard's Victory String

Willie Oster, Chicago middleweight, expects to halt Kid Leonard's winning streak of five straight in an eight round bout tomorrow night at Western stadium. Leonard appears to be easy to hit and if Oster lands he may knock out the East Moline fighter.

Nick Serondis, East Moline lightweight, will seek to avenge a defeat by Leo Ranieri in a four round contest.

Kid Leonard vs. Willie Oster [8].
Carlos Herrera vs. Frankie White [5].
Laddie Tonelli vs. Jack Ripp [5].
Leo Ranieri vs. Nick Serondis [5].
Davy Day vs. Eddie Smith [5].
Frank Wolfram vs. Hughie Allen [4].
Gordon Ross vs. Allen Gitles [4].

Art Donovan, Joliet, lightweight, and Eddie Chinski of Kankakee will finish training today for their six round battle tomorrow at the White City outdoor arena. Curtis Mills, Northwestern university student, will face Jack O'Brien of Hammond, Ind., in a five round bout. Others will bring together Lou Vine and Ed Esson and Guy Schriver and Georgie Williams.

In their most recent battle two weeks ago Phagan had an edge going into the last round, but a few seconds before the bell sounded Purvis dropped him with a right to the chin. The crowd booed when Phagan received the decision. Now Purvis plans to use the same punch to win Wednesday's contest. Phagan expects to beat him to it with his own right.

Irish Champ Learns Boxing from Books gotten by having other fellows biff you about a bit."

It was difficult for Kennedy to follow up his early conquests. His work in his father's dairy and on their farm outside the city took all his time. His daily routine then, as now, was begun by rising at sunrise for a six mile motor van ride out to the farm. He goes into the pastures with the milkers. Cows in Ireland are milked where they stand in pasture. Kennedy collects the milk from the milkers in a two wheeled cart and hauls it to the motor van. Then he takes it to the dairy in the city.

The next winter, however, he found more time to box and went on to win the County Dublin senior lightweight championship and enter the Leinster tourney. It was in this tourney that he suffered his first and only serious ring mishap.

Bad Luck Not So Bad.

He advanced easily through the preliminary rounds and was the favorite in the final bout against Timmy Kelly, the defending champion. Kennedy gave Kelly a good leathering for the first three rounds. In the fourth round a comparatively harmless punch caught him off balance and he stumbled to the floor. In falling he suffered a severely sprained ankle. He regained his feet but was unable to stand on the injured leg in the sixth and final round and Kelly was credited with a technical knockout.

Again his showing in defeat had been so impressive that the setback proved no hindrance to his career. He was selected over Kelly, the champion, to oppose the American invaders last summer. He defeated his opponent, a crafty boxer named Salek, beginning a series of interrupted international victories that included triumphs in Germany, Belgium, Wales, France, and Norway and a six round decision over S. Binazzi, the Italian title holder, in Dublin last month.

He's Coming to Fair.

Kennedy won the All-Ireland championship in 1932 as a lightweight, defeating Pat Quinn of the army, who had eliminated Kelly. This year Kennedy was forced to fight in the welterweight class and he won as he pleased to capture the Free State championship and qualify for the Chicago trip.

Tennis is Kennedy's chief diversion and he divides his time among this and his two chief occupations, defending his championship and studying the dairy business. He is especially interested in the Chicago trip this year because of the opportunity it will give him to study the modern American methods of dairying and cattle culture as they are exhibited at A Century of Progress.

The Cubs and Braves today will relax in the usual Monday holiday. They will play the series final tomorrow, with Lon Warneke going after No. 12 and Freddy Frankhouse seeking to say him nay. On July 24 Frankhouse, in a relief rôle, got a 2 to 1 decision over Lon. That was the day Lonnie kicked over the $25 stove.

The fans got 52 foul balls in the first game yesterday. This is next to the all-time high of 57.

Malone can start singing about that black cat being on his back again. He pitched well enough to win an average game, but had the ill fortune to draw Brandt when he was red hot.

It was the first time this year in which the Cubs have had two lefties poured at them in one afternoon. And it's rarely happened in the last seven years.

The season series now stands at ten victories for the Cubs and four for the Braves. Half of the Braves' victories were scored by Brandt. On June 22 he beat Bush, 3 to 1. Previous to that he had dropped two to the Cubs. The Cubs have beaten Zachary three times.

There was no great threat of rain during the entire show, but a heavy shower broke loose before any of the customers had time to reach their homesteads.

Frank Demaree, with three hits in the first game and one in the second, lifted his hit total to 102, thus becoming the first Cub to pass the 100 mark this season. Bill Herman was shooting for the 100 mark yesterday, too, but he made only two hits for a total of 98.

Lovelock Is Sure He Can Better 4:07.6

New York, July 16.—(AP)—Jack Lovelock, the curly haired New Zealand youth who smashed the world one mile running record at Princeton university yesterday, left the impression today with those who were thrilled by his remarkable victory over Bill Bonthron that he can do better than 4:07.6 for the distance, unbelievable as it may seem.

Lovelock, 23 years old and with two years more of medical study at Oxford before him, thinks so himself. A comparatively slow third quarter in 65.1 seconds yesterday compelled Lovelock to turn to speed up the final 440 yards in 58.9 seconds to erase the former world mark of 4:09.2, held by Jules Ladoumegue of France, and beat Bonthron by seven yards.

He Wants Pacer.

None who saw Bonthron's fighting finish fail to match his rival's speed, despite the fact the Tiger ran the fastest mile of any American in history—4:08.7—doubled Lovelock's capacity to do the distance in 4:06 or better. All he needs, as he remarked himself, is to be paced to the three-quarter mark in around 3:06, for he has the sprinting ability when he is in condition to do the last 440 yards of a mile in 60 seconds or faster.

Lovelock has developed fast since being unplaced in the final of the Olympic 1,500 meter race a year ago, and Bonthron, who did not make the Olympic team and never before had been really tested in the mile, emerged in defeat with the fastest record of any American.

Bonthron Gets Record.

Because three timers had officially clocked Bonthron's 4:08.7—one of them even faster—Princeton's 20 year old star probably will be credited with the United States mile record. It surpasses the present listed time of 4:12.4, made by Ralph Hill of Oregon in 1930, as well as the unofficial mark of 4:09.8 made by Glenn Cunningham of Kansas, at the National Collegiate A. A. meet in June at Soldiers' field, Chicago.

Cunningham and Gene Venzke of Pennsylvania, who ran to an indoor record of 4:10 in 1932, for the time being must yield all honors to Lovelock and Bonthron. The new world record holder may match strides in Europe this summer with Cunningham and settle the question of mile supremacy.

Malone, a single, with one down in the sixth, but was out at second when Whitney failed to deliver on the hit-and-run. Whitney afterward walked, but Lee popped to Bill Herman, who gave the customers a thrill by losing the ball in the sun and then finding it for a diving catch.

Fail to Capitalize on Break.

A break of luck and some fine hustling by Demaree were not enough to give the Cubs a tie in the sixth. With one down, Demaree popped a fly back of the pitcher's box and raced to second while Maranville and Urbanski each stood by for the other to make the catch. The effort was in vain, for Hartnett tapped to Brandt and Grimm bounced to Urbanski.

Anxiety about how Malone had been affected by his long uphill sprint was relieved when he fanned Urbanski to start the eighth and then made Jordan foul to Hartnett. He did not have such success with the next batsman. It was at this juncture that Berger knocked the ball across Waveland avenue. Moore was safe when Bill Herman took his eyes off a grounder and let it go into right field. Whitney singled to left, but the inning ended with Lee's foul to Hartnett.

Stephenson Caught at Third.

Poor base running deprived the Cubs of a chance to tie the score in their end of eighth. Stephenson led off with a single to left and Demaree made his third successive hit, a line single to short right. Stephenson apparently didn't observe that Moore was coming in fast for the ball or greatly overestimated his own speed. At any rate, he made an ill advised effort to reach third and was out by six or eight feet. Hartnett followed with a long fly to Moore and Grimm forced Demaree.

SECOND GAME

The Cubs wasted a couple of hits in the first inning. English led off with his fourth hit of the afternoon, waited while W. Herman fanned, and stopped at second as Cuyler caromed a single off Zachary's shins. Jordan then pulled down Stephenson's liner and ran to first to double Cuyler.

English continued his spree with a triple to right with one down in the third, but Herman and Cuyler couldn't get him home.

There was no hitting by either team in the fourth inning, but the customers got to watch Grimm put on one of his famed acrobatic numbers. Moore caromed a shot off Charley's glove. It looked like a certain single, but the Cub boss sprawled in the dust, recovered the ball, and from a reclining position tossed to Bush on first for the putout.

Break Goose Egg Chain.

The Braves broke the goose egg chain with two down in the fifth. After Lee had filed to Demaree and Hargrave had fanned, Maranville doubled for the Boston's second hit and reached third while Zachary was billiarding a single off Bush's shins. Urbanski then singled to center, scoring Maranville. Bush threw out Jordan.

Two singles failed to harm the Cub cause in the sixth. After Berger had fanned, Moore and Whitney singled to right. Lee then popped to Herman and Hargrave fanned for the second time.

The Cubs took the lead in the sixth. English walked. Herman, attempting to sacrifice, beat out a bunt past Zachary. The runners moved up on Cuyler's sacrifice and scored on Stephenson's line single to left. Demaree beat out a bunt, but Hartnett hit into a double play.

English opened the eighth with his sixth hit of the afternoon, and went to second on Herman's sacrifice. Cuyler's single to left scored him. Stephenson knocked his second successive single, but Demaree hit into a double play.

Mr. Griffith Dislikes Talk of Profits

days of college athletics, however, it is just possible that he was a subsidized athlete with a profitable laundry agency or peanut monopoly to see him through. If that were so, the author's reticence about his income and the source thereof, can be readily understood.

Alger Boys Had an Eye for the Dough.

Horatio Alger, on the other hand, wrote the story of the ragged orphan who saved a portly banker's daughter from death or a fate which is said to be even worse and came along in the last chapter to a partnership in the firm just as friendship ripened into love. He wrote it and wrote it and circulation of his stories certainly equaled that of Mr. Standish's, proving, I think, that Mr. Griffith is no more right than I am.

I have never encountered any one in the baseball industry as presumptuous and insidious as Mr. Griffith in matters which would seem to be not strictly a baseball magnate's business. He does not hesitate to advise a professional writer how to write about his ball club, and he has been so ready to help in such matters that he has actually succeeded, to some extent, in shading the baseball journalism of the national capital toward the tint which he prefers.

Johnson Case Is a Bit Embarrassing.

Last winter, when his ball club was about to leave for the south, one journalist who, by long experience with the team had learned to write to Mr. Griffith's liking, was detached and assigned to other duties, and a young maverick was named to go along whom Mr. Griffith had tried without success to impress with his ideas of fitness in a baseball story. Upset about this, a member of Mr. Griffith's family approached an executive of the paper and said it was too bad to withdraw Mr. A from the baseball club—"and after all these years, too."

"Not necessarily," the newspaper executive said. "Mr. A still has a job and is promoted to other duties. But, by the way, don't you think it too bad that Walter Johnson has been let out by Mr. Griffith and is unemployed at this time—and after all these years, too?"

MOTORIST PERILS PEDESTRIANS AND LOSES OWN LIFE

Drives Into Pole on Return from Beer Party.

Martin Waitlinski, 38 years old, 4540 South Honore street lost control of his automobile yesterday as he was driving home from the opening of a beer tavern, and died of a broken neck when the car struck a trolley pole.

The accident occurred at Wentworth avenue and 45th street. Before striking the pole and crashing into a parked automobile, Waitlinski drove over the curb, forcing several pedestrians to jump for safety. Paul Rattaree, 15046 South Damen avenue, who was riding with him, received a fracture of the jaw.

Killed in Fall Under Truck.

Casimir Svazas, 26 years old, 6062 South State street, was killed last evening when he fell beneath the wheels of a truck driven by Charles Wirshels, 3604 West 65th street, as the truck was leaving the Shady Tree picnic grove near Summit.

Svazas, attending a family picnic, sought refuge from the rainstorm under a tarpaulin on the truck.

Just as the truck was put in motion Svazas began to climb along the side of the truck towards the driver. When he slipped and fell off, a rear wheel crushed him to death.

The deaths of Waitlinski and Svazas and two others increased the 1933 motor toll in Cook county to 532. The other victims:

Christ Evart, 79 years old, a farmer residing in Morton Grove. Killed last night in Oakton street, just east of Waukegan road, by an automobile driven by Anton J. Snyder of Arlington Heights. Evart was crossing the road carrying two pails of water at the time.

Cantille Quarites, 78 years old, 4821 Palmer street. Fatally injured last night at Armitage and Kimball avenues by a car driven by Frank McKeever, 4342 Washington boulevard.

Indiana Harbor Jeweler Killed.

Miss Lillian Minion, 20 years old, of Cedar Lake, Ind., was fatally injured near that town early yesterday when her automobile collided with a car driven by Miss Agnes Paulick, 11114 Indiana avenue. Miss Minion's father, Melvin, whom she was driving to Crown Point to visit a doctor; Miss Paulick and three other women received minor injuries.

Mrs. Claude Hessee and Charles Van Ryn, 12 years old, both of Bellwood, were severely hurt, and five other members of the Hessee and Van Ryn families received minor hurts yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by an Alton railroad train in Lincoln, Ill.

MOVE TO MAKE CAR BUSES SHARE STREET REPAIRS

Council Asks Sexton to Draft Amendment.

Corporation Counsel Sexton has been directed by the city council to draft an amendment to the 1907 traction ordinances which would require the Chicago Surface lines to aid in maintaining pavements on streets over which the street car companies operate feeder and trolley buses. The amendment was suggested by Ald. Roger J. Kiley [37th].

The 1907 ordinance, under an extension of which the Surface lines now are operating, provides that the transportation companies must construct and maintain 16 foot rights of way on streets where street cars are operated in both directions.

The amendment would extend this provision to the streets on which the companies operate rubber tired vehicles.

"The companies pay to maintain the rights of way on streets with car tracks and should also pay for streets where they operate buses," said Ald. Kiley.

"Otherwise a grave injustice is done to motorists whose vehicle sticker fees are being used to maintain the rights of way for a private commercial company."

WILLIAM WARD, NEW YORK G. O. P. LEADER, IS DEAD

A multi-millionaire, he lived alone in his later years in a mansion called "The Castle" atop a hill in Port Chester.

Thirty years ago a prominent figure in national politics, serving on the executive committee of the Republican national committee, Ward in his later years was reduced to his leadership of Westchester county.

Ward's influence in state affairs was demonstrated in 1931. With the aid of Westchester's two state senators he temporarily blocked the legislature's investigation of New York City's government which led to the resignation of Mayor James J. Walker.

Ward once flatly refused President Taft's invitation to dine with him and other national committeemen at the White House. Instead he played rummy in a Washington hotel, explaining he never attended dinners.

Ward was married on Sept. 15, 1880. He had four children, two sons and two daughters, who survive. Mrs. Ward died twenty years ago.

Rites to Be Held Today for William Lautz, 91

Funeral services will be held today for William Lautz, 91 years old, who died Saturday at the home of his son, William H. Lautz, an architect who lives at 6806 Crandon avenue. Mr. Lautz was born at Westphalen, Germany, and came to Chicago 55 years ago. He was in the steel business until his retirement 25 years ago. The funeral will be conducted from a chapel at 6329 Cottage Grove avenue at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in Mount Greenwood cemetery.

3 DEAD, 3 HURT; MAYOR'S CAR IN INDIANA CRASH

Winchester, Ind., July 16.—(AP)—Three persons were killed at a highway intersection north of here today when an automobile owned by Mayor Roswell O. Johnson of Gary, Ind., struck another machine, driven by George Tanner, 49, of Saratoga, Ind.

Tanner was hurled from his car and killed instantly, as were Frank Rex, 51, and Mrs. Rex, 49, both of Saratoga, who had been riding with him.

Mayor Johnson, who with Mrs. Johnson and their son, Richard, was en route to Richmond to visit the mayor's brother, S. V. Johnson, suffered a sprained ankle. Mrs. Johnson's wrist was broken, and Richard, who was driving, was cut and bruised.

Officers who investigated were told that Tanner had driven onto the state road apparently without seeing the Johnson automobile.

COSGRAVE URGES SETTLEMENT OF ANGLO-IRISH ROW

KILTIMAGH, Irish Free State, July 16.—(AP)—William T. Cosgrave, former president, said in a speech here tonight that the land annuities dispute with Great Britain should be settled and the economic warfare between the two countries ended.

The economic conflict, he asserted, has cost the Irish Free State $1,000,000 a week, adding, "unlike any other country we brought a serious economic crisis on ourselves."

The proper course to be pursued, the former president said, would be for the Free State to arrange a conference with the British government and point out that a settlement of the dispute would be sound business for both countries.

GRAIN MARKETS RECALL BOOM OF THE WAR DAYS

Crop Damage Swells Trade, Lifts Prices.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Government crop reports, indicating the smallest yields of grain in thirty years or more, last week furnished the basis for the wildest speculative buying since the world war. The federal reports confirmed private estimates that the wheat crop would be under 500 million bushels, or around 150 million bushels below domestic requirements, and forecasts for other grains were proportionately small.

Prices advanced irregularly to new high levels and maintained the greater part of the gains at the close. Closing prices were around the best of the week, with all wheat futures well above the dollar level and more than double the low price of four months ago.

There were net gains at the close of 13½ to 14⅛ cents on wheat, 5 to 5⅝ cents on corn, 1⅝ to 2 cents on oats, 18⅞ to 20½ cents on rye, and 7¾ to 9⅛ cents on barley.

War Time Markets Recalled.

The rapid and wide fluctuations recalled war time markets to the old traders. In July and September, 1919, cash wheat started up from $2.24 and reached $3.50 in December. In 1920 cash wheat advanced from $1.58 in November to $3.50 in January.

Estimated production of wheat in the United States, as given by the government report, is 496,000,000 bushels. Unofficial reports from western Canada estimate the three provinces at 280,000,000 bushels, a loss of 128,000,000 bushels from last year's harvest. The total crop for the United States and Canada is estimated at 776,000,000 bushels. There is a good carryover, however, so there will be no shortage.

Eastern speculators and the public control the market. Purchases are being made on every dip and profits are taken on all bulges. The policy of the eastern traders is to buy wheat heavily every time the price advances into new ground, and so far they are understood to have been unusually successful.

Public Makes Profits.

The general public work in and out of the market on 3 to 5 cent turns, and have made money. They have disregarded views given by many professionals, who have traded more on price than on conditions, and base their operations more on conditions that make the market than on prices.

So far nothing definite has been heard as to the decision at the wheat conference in London, while Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and his assistants are preparing to pay farmers a good bonus for reducing their acreage. The wheat situation, both in this country and the world over, is regarded by traders as the most complicated in recent years.

Wheat advances from the low of the season ranged from 26¼ cents on May to 70⅝ cents on September. On the December option the advance has been 50⅛ cents, as trading started late in the season. At the close last week July wheat was $1.12⅞, September $1.15½ to $1.15⅝, December $1.18¼, and May $1.22⅛ to $1.22½. Prices for the week follow:

Income Tax Returns Set Low Record

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 16.—[Special.]—Fewer persons filed federal income tax returns last year than in any year since the tax was first imposed during the war. The bureau of internal revenue announced that fact today.

Preliminary reports show that 3,410,507 persons filed returns, compared with 3,707,509 during the previous year, a decline of 397,002, or 8 per cent. Not all of the returns filed were taxable; some showed no net income.

Illinois was second among the states in the list of returns, showing 281,591 filed last year. This total was second only to New York, which was 682,603. Pennsylvania was third with 276,825 and California fourth with 274,132.

Chicago Carries Major Share.

Chicagoans filed 174,510 returns, slightly less than 62 per cent of all those reported for the state, the federal compilation shows. Cook county, as a whole, had a total of 213,745 returns, about three-quarters of the state total.

Illinois towns outside of Cook county reporting more than 1,000 income tax returns during 1932 were:

Quincy, 1,132; Aurora, 1,858; Elgin, 1,215; Highland Park, 1,294; Waukegan, 1,268; Bloomington, 1,304; Decatur, 1,720; Alton, 1,235; Peoria, 3,745; Rock Island, 1,029; East St. Louis, 2,136; Springfield, 2,962; Danville, 1,328; Joliet, 2,227, and Rockford, 2,719.

Collections Down 43 per Cent.

Although the number of income tax returns for the entire country declined only 8 per cent last year, the total income tax collected from individuals declined 43 per cent, according to treasury department records. Only 320 million dollars was paid in income taxes last year by individuals, compared with 567 millions in 1931.

The shrinkage in collections, more than five times larger than the decline in returns filed, reflects the decrease of the national income last year, the treasury department says. It also indicates that persons of small incomes are bearing a heavier percentage of the income tax burden as large incomes are mowed down and incomes generally move into the lower tax brackets.

Includes All Returns Filed.

The number of returns includes all individual returns filed under the income tax law which required that an income tax return must be filed by every citizen of the United States, whether residing at home or abroad, and every person residing in the United States though not a citizen thereof, whose gross income for the taxable year 1931 amounted to $5,000, or whose net income amounted to: $1,500, if single, or, if married and not living with husband or wife; or $3,500 if married and living with husband or wife.

If an individual is single and the net income, including that of dependent minors, if any, is $1,500, or over, or if the gross income is $5,000 or over, a return must be filed. If the combined net income of husband and wife and dependent minor children, if any, is $3,500 or over, or if their combined gross income is $5,000 or over, all such income must be reported on a joint return, or on separate returns of husband and wife.

U. S. BOOSTS TAX RATES IN VAIN; REVENUE FALLS

Collects Most When Levy Is Lowest.

BY SCRUTATOR.

Proof that high tax rates produce less revenue than more moderate rates is supplied by the accompanying chart. The bars on the chart represent the actual income tax collections by the federal treasury for each fiscal year, commencing with the fiscal year ended June 30, 1922. The line marks the course of income tax rates for the same period.

With scarcely an exception the continuous reductions in income tax rates during the early part of the decade brought a steadily increasing revenue into the national coffers. And the largest income tax payments were made in the year which ended June 30, 1930, nearly two and a half billion dollars, the year when the lowest tax rates were in force.

Rates Rise, Revenue Falls.

Since 1930 the rates have been continuously increased, but they have failed of the purpose of bringing more money into the treasury. As the rate has gone up, the revenue produce has gone down. And just as the lowest rates produced the highest revenue, the highest rates have produced the lowest revenue. Income tax collections now are but a third of what they were when the lowest rates were in force.

John Maynard Keynes, the English economist, whose writings have strongly influenced the national administration in adopting the present policies, has shown that when excessive tax rates fail to balance a budget more revenue may be obtained by slashing the rates.

Keynes Points Analogy.

"Nor should the argument seem strange that taxation may be so high as to defeat its object," says Keynes, "and that given sufficient time to gather the fruits, a reduction of taxation will run a better chance, than an increase, of balancing the budget.

"For to take the opposite view today is to resemble a manufacturer who, running at a loss, decides to raise his price, and, when his declining sales increase the loss, wrapping himself in the rectitude of plain arithmetic, decides that prudence requires him to raise the price still more; and who, when at last his account is balanced with naught on both sides, is still found righteously declaring that it would have been the act of a gambler to reduce the price when you were already taking a loss."

Crown Zellerbach Shows $71,428 Loss During Year

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 16.—The Crown Zellerbach corporation and subsidiaries report a consolidated loss of $71,428 for the fiscal year ended on April 30, after minority interests, depreciation, depletion, taxes, and charges, without including a profit of $966,734 on the companies' own bonds purchased for redemption, which was credited direct to earned surplus. This compares with a net income of $1,512,499 for the preceding year, including $542,708 profit on bond purchases. Gross profit from operations was $5,241,714, against $9,567,675 the year before.

GEN. AMERICAN GETS BIG LIQUID STORAGE UNIT

The liquid storage terminal of the American Mineral Spirits company at Carteret, N. J., has been acquired by the General American Transportation corporation of Chicago, Lester Selig, president, announced yesterday.

The terminal is one of the largest on the Atlantic seaboard and has been used for the storage of gasoline, naphtha and gasoline, Mr. Selig said. He stated that work would be started immediately to double the capacity. When the work is completed the plant will have a capacity of 40 million gallons. It occupies 30 acres and includes tidewater docks and piers for ocean going tankers.

The acquisition gives General American Transportation a combined storage capacity of 120 million gallons, the largest storage facilities in the country.

Canadian Newsprint Rises 10,000 Tons in June

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., July 16.—Production of newsprint by Canadian mills in June was 10,000 tons greater than in the same month of the preceding year. This was the first increase to be recorded on such a comparison since early in 1930. The Canadian mills produced 171,419 tons as compared to 161,369 tons in June of last year.

Peoples Gas Net Income Shows Drop

Net income of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company for the second quarter was $742,249, compared with $1,394,295 in the like period of 1932, according to the quarterly report issued by the company. The 1933 net income was equal to $1.10 a share on 674,998 shares of stock outstanding, compared with $2.02 a share on 691,194 shares outstanding in the like period of 1932.

Gross income for the second quarter stood at $7,842,953, compared with $8,723,175 in the like period of 1932.

For the first six months of this year the net income of the company was $1,683,087, compared with $2,960,102 in the like 1932 period. Per share earning for the 1933 period was $2.49, compared with $4.28 last year. Gross for the first six months of 1933 was $16,075,188, compared with $17,985,563.

In a statement to the stockholders accompanying the financial report, James Simpson, chairman of the board, explained the reduction in the company's dividend to $1 in June as due to declining receipts as compared with last year, reduced revenues resulting from rate reductions and the ever increasing tax burden.

Mr. Simpson reviewed legislation passed at the last session of the legislature, saying the management feels that some provisions give the Illinois commerce commission the power to infringe unduly upon the rights of the management to run the affairs of the company. He said that the effect of the measures passed by the legislature will depend upon the "fairness and wisdom with which the Illinois commerce commission administers the law."

CAPITAL'S TIPS SEEN SHAPING MARKET COURSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 16.—Tips from Washington play an increasingly important part in shaping the day to day course of the "new deal" stock market. So habitually has the speculative element come to look to the nation's capital for guidance here of late that some observers have been moved to wonder if control of the market, like that of the country's major industries and business, is not being "centralized" gradually in the hands of government.

An example typical of many that might be cited as illustrative of this new attitude was provided only last Friday when a "tip," supposed to come from a high official source, that the administration was beginning to view the unrestrained bull operations on the exchange here with some anxiety, lest it too far outrun price raising movements elsewhere, was sufficient to cut the turnover a good two million shares under that of the day before and turn price averages downward for the time being.

Fear of a Setback.

The report had it certain advisers of the President were fearful that the CIRCUMSTANCE HAS slashed into estates and property holdings. But it has left unchanged the thinking of men for their families.

That which one hopes the future may bring to his wife, his daughter, his growing son is seen even more clearly now than in the past. These hopes need safeguarding today.

Is there a way to make certain that your thoughtfulness may continue down the years for your wife and children? Can you provide for their interests surely in that future when their financial well-being may rest with the discretion of another?

The Northern Trust Company believes that it is a time to weigh these questions carefully.

Never has The Northern Trust Company limited its sense of stewardship by merely legal requirements. It has felt the moral burden of trusteeship for those who are dependent . . . an obligation placed upon it by their natural protector . . . effective when he is no longer here to supervise.

It stands ready—an unchanging, ever living trustee—to carry out your plans for your family. Out of more than forty-three years of trust experience, it suggests that providing this continuing safeguard through your Will is perhaps more important now than in other years.

CAPITAL'S TIPS SEEN SHAPING MARKET COURSE

Wall Street Keeps Eyes on Washington.

stock bull contingent was riding for a crash, which might have a serious effect on the industrial recovery program for a time. Something of the same note of caution had been sounded once before, and the pace was likewise slowed up on that occasion, but a few days later came the reassuring word that those in authority thought prices might go a bit higher after all, and the so-called constructive forces cut loose anew.

With prices back around 1924 levels there has been an "understanding" for some time that the powers that be would be content—in spite of the high confidence a rising market is popularly supposed to register in the policies of a new administration—to see security prices back and fill around their present figures until other "prosperity indexes" have had a chance to catch up. The general goal of the "brain trust's" price boosting plans is reported to be the levels of 1926.

Move in Narrow Range.

Possibly this "understanding" among the big speculators who dominate the market just now has had something to do with keeping prices more or less stationary for the last few weeks. The net change from last week's operations was thus barely discernible, amounting, on the face of THE TRIBUNE'S index of fifty representative issues, to only one-hundredth of a point. On only one day of the six did the figures swing as much as a point.

There was considerable activity, however, the week's turnover amounting to 30,185,890 shares, or an average of more than five million a day; but it was confined more and more to the speculative element, with the public showing a growing disposition to retire to the sidelines to await further developments in the "new deal" program.

Cuts Loose from Dollar.

One noteworthy development of the week has been the market's action in rather definitely cutting loose from the fluctuating dollar, so long its guiding star. Similarly, it has shown an increasing inclination to ignore the gyrations of the grain and commodity markets.

A report that Washington might countenance the establishment of a gold metal market here served to send the gold mining issues kiting to the highest levels yet, bullish activity in this sector having become particularly pronounced in the last few days.

The administration's plans in behalf of the oil industry provided some stimulus to the petroleum shares, but the demoralization of this major trade has become so pronounced that it does not respond as readily to official restoratives as do some more susceptible issues.

Concern Over Prices.

Board room gossip about the street indicates a growing concern over the solution of the administration's current problem of reconciling the high prices it is having tacked on goods with the low purchasing power of the public. In other words, how rapid is going to be the consumption of the goods now accumulating in such heavy volume on dealers' shelves in anticipation of still higher prices?

The big speculators seem to think that cheapening dollars and the steady expansion of the administration's re-employment program will take care of the situation, even with millions of the newly created jobs going at a dollar a day. The impression has been abroad for weeks that everything was in readiness to start physical inflation the minute the psychological subterfuge shows signs of having spent its force. In other words, the street counts on a fresh output of still cheaper money to pep up prices once—and if—they start to lag.

FRENCH TRADE CHIEFS PREFER QUOTA TO DUTY

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, July 16.—French industrialists are concerned and generally displeased over the prospect of imminent abandonment of quota restrictions on imports by the government. The raising of tariffs by legislative action makes quotas no longer necessary.

The quota policy was a temporary measure adopted by the French government for protection of the home industry. These restrictions on foreign imports were hastily established by ministerial decrees which could promptly be enforced. But they were only intended to remain effective until new high protective tariffs were sanctioned by parliament.

French manufacturers, however, are frankly reluctant now to have the quotas, which rigidly limited foreign imports, replaced by higher tariffs. They evidently fear their foreign competitors will be able to pay the new higher duties and still undersell them or at least equal their prices on the French market because of lower production cost.

ANNOUNCE PLAN TO REORGANIZE THE 'OGLESBY'

Avoid Foreclosure and Receivership.

BY AL CHASE.

Reorganization of an eleven story apartment building project without expense to the bondholders, without a foreclosure or receivership and with interest payments at a reasonable rate resumed only a month after default, was announced yesterday. In addition the sinking fund requirements of the issue are taken care of in full for a year in advance and in part for two years.

This is the Oglesby apartment building at 6901 Oglesby avenue, in the south shore district. Adoption of the plan was made public by Sidney H. Kahn of the bondholders' committee. The other members of that group are: George W. Rossetter, chairman, and Jay C. McCord.

Financed in 1928.

The Oglesby is one of Chicago's large cooperative apartments. It was financed in 1928 by S. W. Straus & Co., with a $875,000 first mortgage 6 per cent bond issue. The building contains forty suites, mostly five to eight rooms, and thirty-six garages. Thirty-three of the forty flats are occupied by the cooperative owners.

"Up to and including the maturity due June 5, 1933, the Oglesby was required by its trust deed to retire $54,000 of bonds by means of a sinking fund," said Mr. Kahn. "Not only did it do this, but it was able to acquire out of surplus income sufficient bonds to tender in advance for the complete sinking fund requirements for 1934, amounting to $20,000 and also $1,000 of the amount due June, 1935. In addition it has kept its taxes paid up to date.

"Yet, in the last six months, the income of the mortgagor corporation declined to such an extent that it was unable to make the monthly deposits to meet the semi-annual interest and accordingly defaulted on the coupons due June 5. That necessitated the formation of a bondholders' committee to protect the interests of the bondholders."

Gradually Higher Interest.

The plan of readjustment provides for interest at 3 per cent to Dec. 5, 1933; 4 per cent to 1937, and 5 per cent to 1940. From Dec. 5, 1940, to the final maturity, interest will be paid at the present rate of 6 per cent.

All of the income of the property, after payment of operating expenses, etc., is to be deposited monthly with a depositary. These funds will be applied first to the payment of real estate taxes and interest on the bonds. The funds remaining will be used for reorganization expenses and then for retiring bonds. The mortgagor corporation will deliver to the trustee for cancellation $35,900 of bonds which it now holds.

"New contracts will be entered into with the apartment owners reducing their assessments and rentals approximately 20 per cent," said Mr. Kahn. "They will have the privilege of tendering bonds of the issue at par in payment of that portion of their rent which is applicable to the sinking fund under the revised leases. The plan includes conveyance of the property to a new corporation.

10,000 WORKERS AT HIGH POINT TO STRIKE TODAY

High Point, N. C., July 16.—(AP)—A strike of nearly 10,000 hosiery and furniture workers in this North Carolina industrial center tomorrow appeared inevitable tonight, following upon a massmeeting sponsored by the Industrial Workers' association at which final plans for the walkout were laid.

Representatives of 6,000 seamless hosiery workers and approximately 2,500 furniture wood makers pledged themselves not to report to work tomorrow.

Picket lines will be established when the first shifts are scheduled to go on duty at 5 a. m. But the workers were urged tonight to maintain order and conduct the strike peacefully. The workers are demanding 25 per cent wage increases and eight hour maximum shifts. They denounced a tentative code drafted by hosiery manufacturers.

STEEL OUTPUT NOW 57%; BACK TO 1930 LEVEL

Demand Is Broader from Several Industries.

Accompanied by a broadening demand from the oil and brewing industries, farm implement manufacturers and the railroads, an increase of two points brought the steel works operating rate to 57 per cent last week, according to the magazine Steel.

"The national average, reaching for the first time the 1930 trend line," says the review, "compares with 80 per cent as the average for July in the five years, 1926-30."

Continued pressure for material raised the steelworks rate 4 points in Chicago to 60 per cent; 5 in Cleveland to 87; 2 in Birmingham to 77; 3 in Youngstown to 66; 8 in Buffalo to 62; 2 in Pittsburgh to 48; and 2 points in eastern Pennsylvania to 42. The Wheeling, W. Va., district remains at 90 per cent, according to the review.

Code Strengthens Industry.

"An element of strength has been added to the markets by adoption of the steelworks industrial code, which was to be filed with the recovery administration July 17, raising wages and putting in effect a maximum work week of 40 hours," comments Steel.

"Steelmakers are confident of a revival in buying toward the close of July or early next month, as a comparatively small proportion of requirements for August and September have been covered. In the meantime, the majority of mills have sufficient backlogs to carry them at their present rate to the middle of August; and in a few instances all through next month."

The railroads, the ship and barge builders, and the oil and brewing industries are buying more plate, according to the magazine. Car and locomotive repair shops are more active. The Pennsylvania railroad will take 5,150 cars from storage for repairing this month.

Prepare for Grain Traffic.

Northwestern roads are getting their equipment into shape for a heavy grain movement. However, no substantial rail buying is in prospect till late this year, observes Steel. Structural shape awards for the week were only 5,700 tons. Following a brief let down, tin plate mills have raised their operations to 95 per cent.

Discussing the price situation, the magazine says that "while no further advances have been made in finished steel prices, it is evident that the large consumers of plates, shapes, and bars will have to pay more for their material after July 31, when single open market prices will go in effect.

"On some of the lighter finished products, chiefly sheets and strip there is a tendency to quote prices as advanced for July through the remainder of the quarter. Wire mills have adopted this policy."

NORTH AMERICAN AVIATION TAKES OVER SUBSIDIARY

New York, July 16.—(AP)—E. R. Breech, chairman of the board of North American Aviation, Inc., announced today the consolidation of the big Aircraft corporation with the General Aviation Manufacturing corporation. This is the first step toward consolidating related activities by North American subsidiaries.

General Aviation was acquired by North American as a wholly owned subsidiary as a result of a recent exchange of North American stock for certain of General Aviation's assets.

J. M. Schoonmaker Jr. remains as president of the General Aviation Manufacturing corporation. Temple N. Joyce becomes executive vice president and general manager. General Aviation Manufacturing corporation is the successor company to the old Fokker Aircraft corporation.

ACTION TO HELP OIL INDUSTRY IS TAKEN BY U. S.

Will Supervise All Shipments.

Washington, D. C., July 16.—(AP)—In an effort to throttle the excess production which has threatened ruin to the great oil industry, the federal government today issued regulations to prevent shipment in interstate commerce of petroleum produced in defiance of state authorities.

This action by Secretary Ickes, pursuant to an executive order by President Roosevelt last week, marked the federal government's first attempt to use its power in aiding states to curb wasteful and excess oil production.

Issued under authority of the industrial recovery act, the regulations opened a new phase of the administration's drive to restore prosperity. The oil industry will be the objective of another move in this direction Thursday when hearings open on its proposed code of fair competition.

Must Report Monthly.

Interior department lawyers worked day and night to get out the far reaching regulations under which President Roosevelt's order will be enforced, after Ickes had promised "vigorous" and "drastic" action to put it into effect.

The regulations directed all oil producers and shippers to report monthly to the interior department's division of investigations, headed by Louis R. Glavis, which is charged with their enforcement.

Furthermore, all transportation agencies were forbidden to accept petroleum or its products for shipment without sworn affidavits that it was legally produced, together with supporting evidence.

Pointing to an "interrelation of interstate and intrastate commerce in petroleum," the regulations held it was essential to have reports made on all productions and shipments, whether they were in interstate, foreign or intrastate commerce.

Start Aug. 5.

Every producer of petroleum is required to file monthly reports beginning Aug. 5 on production, sales and shipments, and a statement that none of it was in violation of regulations.

All shippers must file reports on all petroleum received, its disposition and a declaration that "upon information and belief" none was handled in violation of regulations.

Overproduction was defined as "petroleum produced in excess of proration quotas, oil-gas ratio requirements or any other purported conservation measure which tends to limit, directly or indirectly, the production of petroleum or the products thereof."

Tells Progress of Great Northern Refunding Plan

New York, July 16.—William P. Kenney, president of the Great Northern Railway company, is advising holders of the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba railway consolidated mortgage bonds due July 1, 1933, that at the close of business July 14 holders of $40,425,000 principal amount had assented to the extension of their securities under the plan of last May. One million dollars of the bonds had been paid and discharged, and the remainder of $538,000 had not yet been deposited.

Pullman, Inc.

Investors' Guide: Will you please advise me about Pullman stock? I have $250 and want to invest some way to make enough to send my daughter to college next year.—Mrs. P. F. G.

Answer: Operations of Pullman, Inc., are divided roughly into three divisions, the carrier business (Pullman company), investments and manufacturing, and miscellaneous.

Volume of traffic of Pullman company during 1932 dropped to the lowest point since 1909, and resulted in the first loss for almost two-thirds of a century. Virtual cessation of railroad purchases forced a practical suspension of manufacturing operations. Income from investments also dropped.

Deficit of the carrier division for the first five months of 1933 totaled $2,035,000, against $1,161,000 for the corresponding 1932 period.

Net loss of the system for the first quarter of 1933 was $1,762,000, against loss of $878,000 for the first quarter of 1931.

Loss of the carrier division in 1932 was $1,220,000, loss of the manufacturing division was $4,075,000, and income from investments $1,460,000. Net income for 1931 was $2,379,000, or 61 cents per share.

Net income for 1930 was $16,943,000, against $17,679,000 for 1929.

Current assets at the close of 1932 totaled $75,171,000 and current liabilities were $10,893,000. There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists solely of 3,820,308 shares of no par capital stock.

The carrier division enjoys a practical monopoly in its field. Earnings tend to fluctuate with general business conditions. The manufacturing division is strongly intrenched in its line. Increased carloadings not only bring the day closer when roads will have to replace old cars but places them in a better position to purchase them.

The stock is medium grade.

Whether you will make a profit or suffer a loss on any stock commitment is something no one can determine absolutely. In attempting to make a profit through market appreciation you are speculating, not investing.

Walworth Co.

Investors' Guide: Your opinion on Walworth first 6s will be appreciated. —I. O. T.

Answer: Drop in demand from industrial plants, oil and power industries, railroads, and building trades for metal valves and pipe have resulted in substantial losses for Walworth company during the 27 months to March 31, 1933. They resulted in default of interest, due April 1, 1933, on the first 6s, due 1945. The bonds are quite speculative.

LETTERS

U. S. HOME FINANCING.

St. Louis, Mo., July 11.—I was pleased to read the article in Sunday's TRIBUNE dealing with the Home Owners' Loan corporation in which it was stated that politics and Washington red tape have combined to such an extent that it will cripple its further activities.

The thoughts you have expressed have been my own thoughts for some length of time and this conclusion is further substantiated by reports I have received from members in various sections of the country. We have every reason to believe that President Roosevelt wishes this corporation to function in an orderly and efficient manner and to the end that it will bring definite aid to the home owner, but if its activities are to be controlled by those who are politically "Who's Who" in the various sections of the country, it is my firm conviction that little relief will grow out of this administration enterprise.

As I watched the development of this bill through congress, and later as it became a law, I could not help but believe that if it was to prove of real help to those for whom it was designed—the American home owner—it must be handled through organizations which are equipped to efficiently administer it, and who could we look to today who are better able to handle the administration of this bill than the mortgage bankers throughout the country? These men have their own organizations now set up and are in close and direct touch with home owners everywhere.

If this bill is to become a political football, wherein political appointees will be the recipients of the various offices who administer it, how will it be possible for it to develop into anything other than another raid on the public treasury wherein the home owner will benefit but little and the political appointee will receive all the 'cream'? In my opinion this will be the outcome unless it is administered through proper channels, in which event it will develop into something from which the home owner can expect to receive real help.

I am of the opinion that if more articles such as yours of yesterday were published in our newspapers throughout the country, perhaps we could expect to see some definite action taken in connection with this bill which would make it one of real benefit to our home owning public.

GEORGE H. PATTERSON, Secretary,
Mortgage Bankers' Assn. of America.

LIBBEY-OWENS GLASS EARNINGS RISE SHARPLY

Toledo, O., July 16.—(AP)—Net profit of $1,533,980 was earned by the Libbey-Owens Ford Glass company for the second quarter of 1933, it was announced here today in a letter to stockholders from John D. Biggers, president. The earnings were equal to 63 cents a share on the 2,409,832 shares of common stock outstanding.

The company announced Friday a 10 per cent wage increase had been granted its 3,700 employés.

Net earnings for the first half of 1933 totaled $2,157,083, or 89 cents a share, which compares with a profit of $48,130 in the first half of 1932 and a loss of $172,091 in the corresponding period of 1931.

During the first half of 1933 the company purchased $2,387,000 of its serial gold notes and has called the remainder for redemption Aug. 3. Since the call was issued $4,149,500 of the notes have been converted into common stock, leaving only $1,483,000 outstanding.

NEW CODE WILL RESTORE JOBS TO 15,000 MINERS

[Chicago Tribune News Service.]

Pottsville, Pa., July 16.—More than 15,000 anthracite miners, idle nearly two years, will be given work again as the result of the new administration coal code about to be placed in operation. This was stated at a meeting of miners here today.

It was asserted that the miners' working time under the code would not be more than thirty-six hours a week and might be as low as thirty-two hours. Thus, it was declared, the question of equalization of working time in this region would be settled.

For several years thousands of miners have been working every day and sometimes overtime as the result of the policies of coal companies in working only the cheapest collieries and leaving the others idle. The United Mine Workers have protested against this policy.

The Local Loan Co. was organized twenty-five years ago as a small loan company to serve the small borrower. Our system of making loans has always been up to or ahead of the times.

Local now conducts seven of the largest and most convenient offices in Chicago catering to the new and modern method.

Signature Only LOANS

Local does not believe that a man or woman should be forced to mortgage their household goods or secure comakers when they are capable of borrowing on their own signature.

Local still makes a small percentage of furniture loans, but the great part of our business and that which the public likes, are our regular rate, confidential
